CENSORS RADIO ATTACK ON REDS AND NEW DEAL

Station WMCA Cuts Coudert Talk.

New York, July 7 [Special].—A New York City radio station, whose former owner charged early this year that he had been forced to sell it to a friend of Harry Hopkins under "duress" which was "greased from the White House down," tonight deleted criticism of communism and the New Deal from an address prepared for delivery before the New York county convention of the American Legion.

Radio station WMCA refused to permit State Sen. Frederic R. Coudert Jr. [R., N. Y. City] to broadcast his speech until he had made revisions demanded by the station management after he had delivered an advance copy of it to the station. After concluding the radio address, Coudert told members of the Legion about the censorship.

Asks Legion to Rise.

Uncensored advance copies of the speech were delivered to newspapers in New York Republican committee envelopes. Among the deleted portions of Coudert's talk were charges that pre-war trends toward totalitarianism in this country have been "carried far toward their objectives under the impact of the war to destroy just such tyrannies abroad."

In bidding the Legion to rise "to guard the real values of American citizenship to all comers," Sen. Coudert read a deleted phrase in which he asserted a government "which owes its life in no small measure to the Browders, the Marcantonios, and Hillmans cannot be relied upon alone for the defense of constitutional liberties."

Coudert, as chairman of a special state investigating committee, incurred the enmity of local Communists some time ago by showing that many public school teachers followed the Red party line.

Radio Head Admits Censoring.

Nathan Straus, station president, admitted the station had censored Coudert's speech on its own initiative and not on the basis of any federal rule or regulation.

"Sen Coudert's original speech contained aspersions on our allies and material calculated to stir up disunity at home," said Straus, former administrator of the United States housing authority under President Roosevelt.

"In time of war, it does not seem fitting or right that such material should be broadcast," Strauss added. "This was explained to the senator as soon as a copy of his speech was made available to this station."

Coudert said that if he were to be censored "it should have been

KING PETER CHOOSES COALITION CABINET; 2 OF TITO'S MEN IN IT

LONDON, July 7 (AP).—King Peter of the Yugoslav government in exile announced formation tonight of a new coalition cabinet including two members from Marshal Tito's Partisan group, as had been agreed in conferences in Yugoslavia between Tito and the new premier, Ivan Subasic. Subasic also will be foreign minister and war minister.

Tito's men are Sreten Vukosavljevic, former undersecretary of agriculture and professor at Belgrade university, who will be minister of agriculture, food, supply, mines, and forests, and Dr. Drago Marushic, ex-cabinet member and former governor of Slovenia, who was named minister of justice and communications. Conspicuously absent was the name of Gen. Draja Mihailovitch, former war minister who has been denounced by Tito as "a traitor and Nazi collaborator." Mihailovitch has denied the accusations.

Others named to the cabinet are Dr. Juraj Shutej, a Croat, minister of finance, commerce, and industry; Sava Kosanovic, a Serb, internal affairs, construction, and welfare and health, and Izidor Cankar, a Slovene, minister of education.

Dewey Praises His Neighbors' Village Spirit

BY HAL FOUST.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Pawling, N. Y., July 7 [Special].—With homey, small town neighborliness, this village of 1,200 turned out this afternoon and welcomed their fellow citizen, Tom Dewey, on his first return here since being nominated for President.

The 42 year old governor beamed at his neighbors and responded extemporaneously with a eulogy to the American small town as an institution for which the wars are being fought.

"Here," he said, "we have what is typically American, a community of neighbors without intolerance, without distrust for each other, people always anxious to do something for each other. It's the essence of this country of ours.

A Strength in War Time.

"Without this traditional spirit, we could not hold a national election, free of venom, uniting and not disuniting the people for greater strength in war time.

"It's this American good neighborliness, most evident in the small town, that we are fighting to protect from oppression, from domination, by labor, or business or government."

The governor, whose farm is 2½ miles northeast of here, in the foothills of the Berkshires, spoke from the back porch of a two story brick inn, the Dutcher House, built in 1883.

Merchants Close Stores.

Most of the population of this two and a half century old Quaker community stood before him, in the shade of giant maples. The audience included the merchants, who had closed their stores, the nearby farm owners some of whom made their money in New York, 70 miles away, and the women and children.

Dewey spoke to and of these neighbors. There was the town druggist, who never complained because the governor received so many messages in the telegraph office that is located in his store. There was the chief of the volunteer fire department, who helped save Dewey's home a few years ago. There was the grocer, who helped housewives, including Mrs. Dewey, with their rationing problems.

Democrats Are Present.

Every one was there, Democrats as well as Republicans, and they all cheered repeatedly from the time Egbert T. Green, banker and village supervisor, opened the ceremony by saying that the Republican party has conferred a high honor upon Pawling by selecting "one of our neighbors as a candidate for President of the United States."

"We love and respect Mr. and Mrs. Dewey and their boys," Green told his fellow townsmen.

"We know and love Mrs. Dewey. She has taught in our Sunday school and played the organ in our nondenominational church. We know the boys [Thomas E. Jr., 11, and John, 8], who attend our school and our Sunday school."

Mrs. Dewey, in a broad brimmed white hat, turned up in front, and in a simple brown striped cotton dress, glanced at her well mannered sons beside her in the rear of the porch.

Lowell Thomas, author and radio commentator, who has a farm near Dewey's, introduced the governor as a fellow hay pitcher.

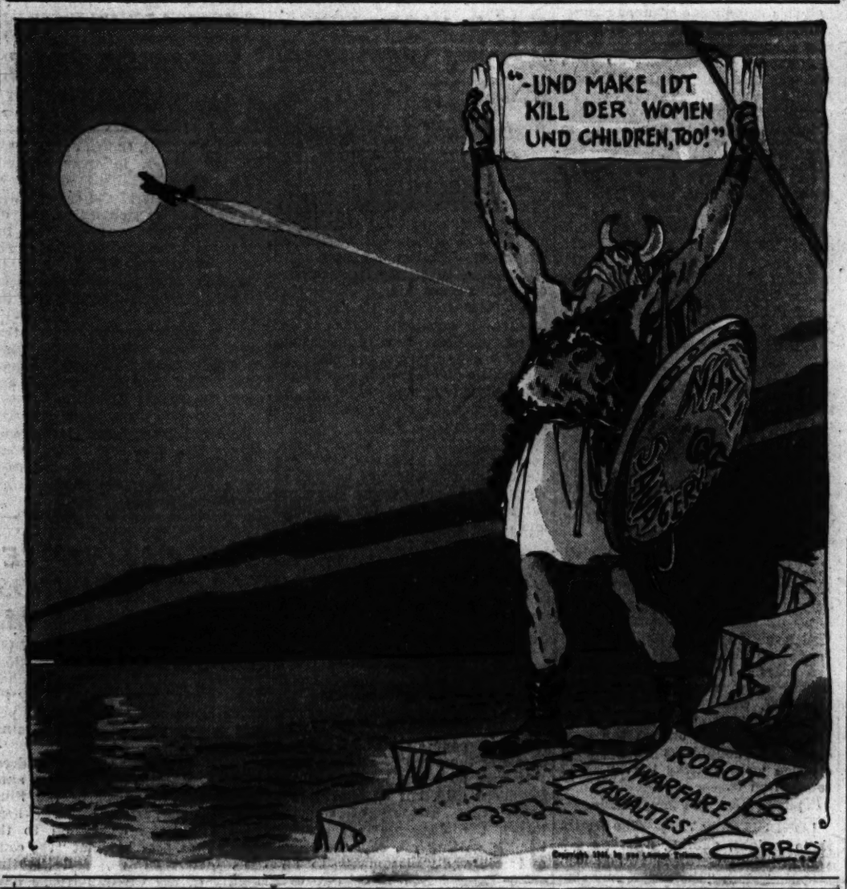
THE PRAYER TO THE PAGAN GOD



Beaverbrook Is Told What Writer Overlooked in Chicago

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE TRIBUNE, yesterday cabled Lord Privy Seal Beaverbrook, whose newspaper, the London Daily Express, published a dispatch critical of Chicago sent by its correspondent, C. V. R. Thompson.

In his dispatch Thompson, who came to Chicago to attend the Republican national convention, asserted that Chicago was not war conscious and that "every other building in Chicago must be a night club or bar." His assertions were immediately denounced as false by Mayor Kelly and other city leaders.

Col. McCormick's cable to the London publisher follows:

"Dear Lord Beaverbrook:

"Your correspondent, C. V. R. Thompson, did you a real disservice in his story about Chicago saloons and night clubs. While, of course, I do not know any more about Chicago night clubs than you do about those in London, I do know that Mayor Kelly is a man of impeccable private life, and I am sure would not tolerate such vice in his official capacity.

Mortal Offense to Kelly.

"Mr. Thompson has mortally offended this man, upon whom you must depend for the fourth nomination of Roosevelt, a proceeding which is already sorely taxing his conscience and his reputation for patriotism.

"It was hardly tactful to refer to the middle west, which knows it has a higher standard of education and of living than any part of the British empire, as if it were another Punjab or Lancashire.

"His reference to the newspaper situation here is correct. It has been a mistake to think that the west would defer abjectly to men whose only attributes are that they have graduated from Eton or Cambridge and that their women folks have bought into the British nobility.

"That is true to some extent in New York, but even there the most outstanding men are your friend, Joe Patterson, and my friend, Tom Dewey, who rose of their own efforts as did Grant, Lincoln, Coolidge, Eisenhower, and Nimitz, and come to think of it, as you yourself rose in this country, and we are proud of you.

Sees Clubs but Not Plants.

"It seems to me a waste of time that a reporter must travel a greater distance than from Lands End to John O' Groat's to the inland metropolis of a great nation to spend his time in night clubs and avoid the 2,300 war plants which make Chicago and its suburbs the second largest arsenal city in America—among them the Dodge plant, covering 475 acres, where the engines for the Super Fortresses are made; the Buick plant, which has made 50,000 Liberator engines; the Pullman company, which has revolutionized the art of ship building; the stock yards and the farms where old men are shortening their lives to produce the food you eat; the high schools of the middle west, the only part of the country where military instruction was given all thru the pacifist years, in consequence of which the middle west has furnished a large preponderance of the officers who led and died in the landings on the beachhead in Normandy.

"Mr. Thompson's visit to us has not conduced to solidarity nor to the permanence of the British empire.

"Yours sincerely,

"ROBERT R. MCCORMICK."

PUPPY SPREADS TERROR AS ITS BACK IS BROKEN

Four year old Juney Osborne trusted and adored his pet dog, Tip, until yesterday when the police puppy suddenly turned on its young master and bit a deep gouge in his upper lip. The child's father, Roosevelt Osborne, 37, of 30 S. Aberdeen st., then hurled the dog out of a third story window.

The dog's back was broken and it caused a short reign of terror in the neighborhood, biting and scratching several persons who gathered around the animal before it was destroyed by the police.

Wallace Is Quarantined as Plane Reaches Canada

Vice President Wallace and the crew members and passengers of the army bomber on which they are returning from China have been quarantined in Edmonton, Alberta, it was learned last night. Barnet Hodes, corporation counsel with whom Harold Young, assistant to Wallace, was visiting in Chicago yesterday, said that Young reported the co-pilot of the plane had scarlet fever. It was understood that the party would be under quarantine two or three days.

2 Congressmen Arrive in London as Seamen

LONDON, July 7 (AP).—Republican Representatives Hugh D. Scott Jr. of Philadelphia, Pa., and Gordon Canfield of Paterson, N. J., reached London today after working their way across the Atlantic incognito as members of the crew of a tanker laden with high octane gasoline.

SHOO CHICAGOAN FROM PRINCESS

Yanks' Hats Are Funny, Elizabeth Says.

LONDON, July 7—(AP)—Princess Elizabeth, 18 and pretty, was willing to be interviewed by an American army private from Chicago today, but the brass hats kept shooing him away from the future queen.

Gene Graff.

Elizabeth, with her parents, was visiting a United States 8th air force bomber base, and Pvt. Gene Graff, of 6332 Winthrop av., Chicago, was only trying to do his job as a reporter for the Stars and Stripes.

There were no barriers in talking with King George and Queen Elizabeth, but in approaching the princess, Graff met opposition.

Her First Visit.

"She was standing in front of the fireplace, looking at pictures on the wall and occasionally glancing around to study the faces in the room," Graff wrote in the army newspaper.

"Is this your first visit to an American camp?" he asked. "Yes, it is," she replied, "and I am enjoying it very much."

"Do you ever have American guests at your hou—er—palace?"

"Not unless they attend state parties or are being decorated by daddy," replied the shyly aloof princess. "If you mean at my parties and dances, the Americans have never attended—probably only because I haven't met any."

Then a British general edged between the young princess and the private.

Again He Tries.

Reporter Graff awaited another opportunity—three hours and two Fortress stations later. The princess was eating ice cream with three American Red Cross girls.

"Does a trip like this tire you?" he asked politely.

"I've been enjoying myself too much to think of being tired," she replied. "You know, I don't get to meet so many people very often.

"Those hats [she pointed to the canvas caps with jockey brims worn by the ground crews] certainly are funny. And I never realized a pilot has to wear so much equipment."

The princess seemed to grow more cordial and more inclined to talk, Graff wrote—but this time an R. A. F. wing commander intervened. "How long have you been in England?" he asked the doughboy.

Pvt. Graff made what he himself termed a "strategic withdrawal."

FLANK GERMAN ANCHOR TOWN; DOOM LA HAYE

Cross River; Smash Thru Swamps.

BY JOHN THOMPSON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

U. S. ARMY HDQ. IN NORMANDY, July 7.—Driving forward on a front widened to 33 miles, at least six columns of American troops today were hammering at German defenses along the base of the Cherbourg peninsula in some of the fiercest fighting of the Normandy campaign.

Battles raged all the way from the Vire river, which the Yanks crossed in a new drive before dawn under cover of a smashing artillery barrage to west of La Haye du Puits, whose doom virtually has been sealed.

Two columns outflanked St. Jean de Daye, eastern anchor of the German line based along the marshes guarding the approaches to Lessay and Coutances, after the Vire river had been forced by troops surging across in rubber boats for a three mile advance.

Cross Swamps.

South of Carentan, where the Germans had checked the Yank advance yesterday, another column crossed the Marais de Gorges after the water level of this swamp had been lowered by opening the sluice gates closed by the Germans weeks before the invasion.

West of there another column pressed forward along a narrow channel formed by the terrain and fought their way half thru the Mont Castre forest.

Two other columns were advancing on both sides of La Haye, while other Yank units battled in the rubble strewn streets in the western edge of the town.

The newest phase of the continuing American offensive began last night with a thunderous barrage directed along the western bank of the Vire east of St. Jean de Daye. For hours, every available gun dropped shells on German dugouts and gun positions.

Attack in Storm.

At 4:30 a. m. in a heavy rain storm, the doughboys pushed across the 100 foot wide river and bayoneted first line Nazis from their positions. Before daylight engineers had built and secured bridges and the rest of the force began moving westward.

The Germans retaliated at first with machine guns and mortars from positions farther back from the river bank, but later moved up artillery and shelled our troops as they forged slowly ahead.

Later another column struck south, crossing the Taute canal which angles off northwest from the Vire river and by late today had made good progress toward the hills around Saint Jean.

This drive was aimed at Coutances, 18 miles southwest, and its

ALGIERS, Algeria, July 7 (AP).—Because of differences of opinion with war department officials regarding political censorship, Col. Egbert White, director of Mediterranean editions of the Stars and Stripes, service men's daily newspaper, has been relieved of his command and ordered back to the United States, it was learned reliably today.

Col. White, a New York advertising executive, had sought to obtain more extensive coverage of political and other controversial news from the United States.

With the departure of White, army public relations officers will assume direction of the editions of the paper published at Oran, Algeria; Algiers, Naples, and Rome. Heretofore the Stars and Stripes in this area had been relatively free of war department guidance.

Move Follows Stimson Visit.

Col. White's removal came after the war department recently rejected his plan to have Mediterranean editions of the service paper receive 2,000 words daily from the Associated Press in addition to material from the Army News service and psychological warfare branch.

It also followed closely the arrival in this war theater of Secretary of War Stimson and Maj. Gen. Alexander D. Surles, director of army public relations.

Efforts of Col. White to make the Stars and Stripes as much like a metropolitan newspaper as possible were believed to have been the immediate cause of his ouster

Washington Guidance Opposed.

It was reported that he always had been supported by his superiors in this theater in his campaign against political censorship of dispatches from the United States, but that the morale service, which publishes other service papers, had supported the principles of censorship.

White is said to have argued that impartiality should be established and maintained by the editorial staff abroad rather than in Washington.

Simultaneously with his depature, the war department ordered the Stars and Stripes to discontinue its magazine supplement whereby troops received articles from national magazines at the time of publication in the United States.

French Criticism Stirred

The order ended prompt soldier access to articles in the Reader's Digest, Saturday Evening Post, and Collier's.

Three articles published in supplements recently evoked criticism among persons close to the French national committee and a few critical letters from pro-Gaullist G. I.s.

Service papers in other theaters receive news agency reports, but these services always have been under the army morale service section.

U. S. Asks Tokyo to Free Ill Yanks

Washington, D. C., July 7 (AP).—Repatriation of sick and wounded Americans held prisoners of war by Japan is under discussion with Tokyo, Sen. Thomas [D., Utah] disclosed today. The discussions—without result as yet—are being conducted thru the Swiss government.

Japan has refused thus far to repatriate military prisoners or any of the non-military construction workers taken on Guam and Wake, said Thomas, chairman of a senate foreign relations subcommittee.

Quoting a letter from Secretary of State Hull, Thomas told a reporter 19,919 American prisoners of war were held by Japan on May 25 and on May 23 there were 5,543 civilians held by the Japanese according to the Swiss government and the international Red Cross.

Report 17,175 Prisoners.

Military intelligence, Hull said, reports only 17,175 war prisoners held by Japan, but that figure takes into account unofficially reported deaths in the Philippines. The provost marshal general, he added, advises about 7,000 civilian internees have been reported.

Hull's letter spoke only of returning home Americans held by Japan; the question of an exchange [the United States holds comparatively few Japanese prisoners of war] was not treated in it.

Some progress has been made in furnishing food, medical supplies, and clothing for the imprisoned Americans, Thomas said.

Reds Balk at Plan.

The Japanese, he said, offered to send a ship at regular intervals to Vladivostok, Russia, for additional supplies, but the Russians balked at allowing the Japanese to enter that port and suggested two others.

Shipment of mail for prisoners of war from the United States by air to Teheran and thence to Japan across Russia has started, Thomas said. Japan has indicated willingness to ship homebound prisoner mail by that route, but none has been received yet, he added.

Workers Out Again

Twenty-three of 56 machine repair men on the second shift at the Dodge Chicago plant of the Chrysler corporation, where engines for B-29 Super Fortress bombers are made, went on strike at 7:10 p. m. last night, the company announced.

The strike began a few hours after the war department announced that B-29's had bombed the Japanese homeland for the third time. A strike in another department of the plant occurred in June when Japan was bombed for the second time.

A company statement said the men who struck last night "left their work because a first shift lead man had been promoted to a second shift foreman by the management." The striking employes are members of the CIO United Automobile workers' union.

Washington, D. C., July 8 [Saturday] (AP).—An aerial task force of B-29 Super Fortresses smashed at the great Japanese naval base of Sasebo and industrial targets at Tobata and the steel center of Yawata Friday night without the loss of a plane.

The third successful attack on the Japanese homeland was announced in bulletins from 20th air force headquarters in Washington.

The attack was announced, apparently while it still was in progress, early Friday afternoon, and a second report was issued early Saturday after all of the gigantic planes had returned safely to their base in China.

Second Attack on Yawata.

This second bulletin issued by Gen. H. H. Arnold, commanding all army air forces, said:

"The 20th bomber command force of B-29s which yesterday attacked naval and industrial targets in the Japanese homeland have returned to their bases without the loss of a single plane.

"The targets hit were Japanese naval installations at Sasebo and vital war industries at Tobata and Yawata, all on the Island of Kyushu. Yawata was previously bombed on the night of June 15.

Raid on War Anniversary.

"The mission was flown from China bases on the seventh anniversary of China's declaration of war against Japan.

"No further operational details are available at this time."

[A Tokyo broadcast said the big port of Nagasaki, south of Sasebo, also was struck and claimed four planes were shot down. It said "small fires" were extinguished and there was "practically no damage." Earlier imperial headquarters had said that "more than 10 enemy planes" were repulsed by the Japanese air force, which suffered "hardly any losses."]

Like U. S. Base at Norfolk.

Sasebo is one of the three great naval construction, repair, and supply yards in Japan proper. It is on Kyushu Island west of Yawata.

Comparable to the United States naval bases at Bremerton, Wash., or Norfolk, Va., Sasebo, just north of the important port and industrial city of Nagasaki, contains an arsenal, a marine corps establishment, and a naval air service base, in addition to the sprawling navy yard.

Gen. Arnold issued the bulletins in his role as commander of the 20th air force. Because of their great range and tremendous bomb load, the Super Fortresses of the 20th air force—of which the China-based 20th bomber command is a part—operate directly under Arnold and the joint chiefs of staff in Washington.

No details of the attack were available, but Arnold's first statement showed that, like the mission three weeks ago against Yawata, this was another night attack by the high altitude, high speed bombers. The bulletin said:

"Headquarters 20th air force, Communique No. 3; B-29 Super Fortresses of the 20th bomber command attacked naval installations at Sasebo, Japan, tonight.

"Bombs were dropped also on industrial objectives at Yawata, target of the Super Fortresses' June 15 assault on Japan.

Hit Heart of War Effort.

The blows at Yawata and Sasebo were aimed directly at the heart of Japan's war potential. Only two other big naval bases, complete with building and repair facilities to handle the largest warships, are believed to exist in the homeland. These are Yokosuka and Kure, which like Sasebo are headquarters of naval districts.

Steel, the product of Yawata, is the most critical item in Japan's armament and ship construction program.

The initial attack on Yawata was carried out in the pre-dawn hours of June 15, when a great weight of explosives was dropped on the industrial city at the northern end of Kyushu Island. Four Super Fortresses failed to return from that mission. One of them was shot down over the target, two crashed and burned after the attack, and one is listed as missing.

The first American attack on the home islands of Japan was carried out by 16 B-25 Mitchell medium bombers under the command of Lt. Col. James H. Doolittle on April 18, 1942. Doolittle, now a lieutenant general, led the planes which took off from the aircraft carrier Hornet to bomb Tokyo and other industrial cities on the island of Honshu.

None of the planes of that mission reached the safety of designated air fields in China.

600 MILES FROM TOKYO.

The Japanese naval base of Sasebo is about 500 miles east of Shanghai on the Chinese mainland and approximately 600 air miles west of Tokyo. The city has a population of approximately 100,000.

The naval base, which is at the entrance of Omura bay, has a fine landlocked harbor 1½ miles long and one mile wide. In the town are many war plants for the Japanese navy.

Sasebo has been a closed port for many years. Foreigners have not been granted entrance since 1937. In addition to the big naval base Sasebo has naval air facilities and directs a naval district that extends westward to the China coast and far to the south.

Turns Out Many Subs.

As the third largest among the Japanese homeland bases, it is logical to assume a major portion of the enemy fleet would be operated from that base. Also, nearby Nagasaki is one of the largest shipbuilding centers of Japan. The Sasebo base turns out a large proportion of Japan's submarines, destroyers, and other smaller warcraft.

Many dry docks, including graving docks, capable of handling cruisers are located at Sasebo. They range in length from 377 to at least 761 feet. The base also has a large naval hospital.

The Island of Kyushu, on whose northwest shore Sasebo is located, is rich in Japanese lore. It was on this island that the Japanese forebears first set foot to oust the original inhabitants and conquer the other islands in the group. According to Japanese belief, it was on this island that the first Mikado descended from Heaven to rule the empire.

NEW TURRETS ON B-29

Washington, D. C., July 7.—The B-29 Super Fortresses protect themselves from enemy fighters with a new system of remote fire control whereby gunners direct gun turrets from comfortable, strategically located sighting positions.

The war department permitted disclosure of this today after announcement of the second B-29 raid on Japan.

Briefly, the system might be called an elaboration of the common method of firing turret machine guns aboard other bombers. Most of those are manipulated by a double-grip handle connected to an electric sight and an activating device that moves the gun.

Split Up Sights and Guns.

In the B-29, for the first time in aircraft, the sights and guns have been separated by some distance, making possible a wide choice of locations for both guns and gunners. Thus it is possible to give a wider arc of fire and to concentrate the fire power, with the gunners in positions of best visibility.

Remote fire control is almost necessary in a pressurized bomber such as the B-29. The crew rides in heated cabins having pressures equivalent to about 8,000 feet altitude tho the plane may be several times that high. The pressurization problem was greatly simplified by putting the turrets outside the cabins.

Once Fired in Open.

In early models of heavy bombers the waist gunners fired thru open hatches, fighting high winds and cold. Recent models permit firing thru a blister. In the B-29, gunners can sit or kneel at large semi-spherical blisters providing at least 180 degrees of vision and need handle only a light self-computing sight.

One gunner has a topside position which provides vision in all directions. Each side gunner can cover half a sphere.

JAP FLIGHT FROM SAIPAN CRUSHED BY U. S. GUNNERS

U. S. PACIFIC FLEET HDQ., Pearl Harbor, July 7 (AP).—Steady advances on Saipan and the crushing of an enemy attempt to evacuate 200 defenders were reported today as American troops, aided by new carrier aircraft strikes, pressed for a knockout at the northern tip of the Marianas Island.

Using barges, the enemy force tried to sneak out to sea Tuesday night. The move was detected and American artillery quickly broke it up, Adm. Chester W. Nimitz reported.

The escape attempt reversed recent enemy tactics. Previously they had been trying to make sneak landings from barges at night behind the American lines.

Nimitz said that American troops have reached a point less than two miles from the northeast tip of Saipan and that behind their lines American troops have buried 8,914 Jap dead.

Raid Rota and Guam Again.

Opposition by the remnants of Saipan's defenders continued strong.

Speedy carrier task forces again sent their planes to batter air strips and ground installations on Rota and Guam Islands, south of Saipan, Nimitz reported. There was no enemy interception, but two American planes were lost, presumably to anti-aircraft fire. One pilot was rescued in the Wednesday night raid.

One Japanese plane was destroyed on the ground and two were damaged at Rota.

Another heavy strike at Truk, about 750 miles to the southwest, was made Wednesday by heavy bombers of the 7th army air force. Thirty tons of bombs were dropped. Neutralizing raids also mere made against bypassed enemy bases in the Marshall Islands.

Help Civilians Escape.

As the American ground forces moved in to exterminate the Jap defenders of Saipan, they offered sanctuary to civilians caught in the fighting.

One highway was designated by American commanders as the escape route for Jap civilians who wanted to get away. Food, water, and safety were promised.

Between 10,000 and 15,000 civilians were believed cornered in the battle area with the remnants of Saipan's garrison. Saipan is of strategic importance because it offers a base for bombing raids on Japan itself.

A rugged area of about four square miles, at the base of a 600 foot cliff, was the setting for the enemy's last stand. A pocket of resistance still held out on the west coast, but doughboys of the 27th division were putting the finishing touches on it.

Island Lost, Say Japs, Nazis.

LONDON, July 7 (AP).—The Berlin radio tonight, quoting a Tokyo dispatch of DNB, German news agency, said that since "the Americans captured the air field at Aslito" on Saipan Island, "loss of the important island fortress must be reckoned with."

F.D.R. WORRIED ABOUT WAY WAR IS GOING IN CHINA

Extended Jap Lines One Bright Spot.

Washington, D. C., July 7 (AP).—President Roosevelt sketched a gloomy picture of the war in China today but brightened it slightly by observing that the Japanese have stretched their supply lines dangerously thin elsewhere.

Mr. Roosevelt told his news conference the fighting in China is not going well and frankly expressed concern over the military situation there. He agreed with a reporter who said the American people are not fully aware of the seriousness of the situation.

But, he said, Japan's strategic position is not a good one from the standpoint of global war because of her extended and harried communication lines between the homeland and occupied territories.

Shipping Being Destroyed.

We are destroying Japanese shipping — especially cargo vessels — faster than the enemy can replace it, Mr. Roosevelt said, and he reminded newsmen too that we are now within bombing range of Japan.

Later it was announced that B-29 Super Fortresses had bombed Japan again, and Chungking reported Chinese troops had made a smashing comeback in Hunang province, driving the Japanese back 25 miles and breaking the siege of Hengyang.

It may be wishful thinking, the President said, but he expressed a belief that because of shipping losses the Japanese are having trouble getting oil, raw materials, and military replacements to and from their forces flung out over vast expanses of the Pacific.

Distance a Big Factor.

Mr. Roosevelt described Chinese coastal operations as an occupation of movement, pointing out that China has lost some coastal spots and regained others. But the distance from Japan to China is not nearly so great as that of other Japanese supply lines, he continued, obviously accenting the simpler problems of warfare for the Japanese there.

It is our hope, he said, that the Chinese will be able to resist more strongly as the Japanese move deeper inland.

CHINESE DRIVE WITHIN MILE OF TENGCHUNG, JAP YUNNAN CITADEL

CHUNGKING, China, July 7 (AP).—Chinese troops, in their Salween river offensive, have driven to within one mile of the eastern wall of ancient Tengchung, main objective of the campaign and the principal Japanese Yunnan province base, an official bulletin said tonight. A force of 200 Japs was destroyed three miles northeast of the city.

Fifty miles southwest of that area, Chinese units pushed against the Japs at Lungling, a Yunnan base which once was captured and given up by the Chinese.

In North Burma, American troops gained 100 yards in Myitkyina, last Jap stronghold in the area, and there was fierce resistance within the besieged city.

CHINA'S FINANCE LEADER PLEADS FOR MORE ARMS

Bretton Woods, N. H., July 7 (AP).—Speaking from the allied nations monetary conference, China's finance minister appealed today for more arms and equipment to permit a full scale offensive against the Japanese.

In a nationwide radio address commemorating the seventh anniversary of the start of the Sino-Japanese war, Dr. H. H. Kung, head of the Chinese delegation to the conference, asserted that "the courage, determination, and fighting ability of the Chinese troops have been proved time and again." But, he added, "our greatest handicap has been the shortage of equipment."

Saying allied forces are making "substantial gains" in the struggle to open the Burma road, Kung added that "the quicker we can get supplies to China the sooner we shall achieve final victory."

When victory comes, Kung said, "we plan to lay the economic foundations of a modern China, not in order to compete with other industrial countries of the world but for the purpose of raising the standard of living of our people."

Chinese Rescue Hengyang; Gain in New Hunan Drives

CHUNGKING, China, July 7 (AP).—Chinese troops in a dramatic comeback have smashed thru the encirclement ring around vital Hengyang, surrounded Japanese troops east, south, and west of the city, and seized the initiative in all the Hunan province fighting, the Chinese high command said tonight.

An army spokesman announced on this seventh anniversary of the start of the war that these counterthrusts would remove for some time the threat of complete Jap occupation of the 1,000 miles of Peiping-Hankow-Canton railway thru China, a major Jap goal.

The high command said reenforced Chinese began their counter-offensive the morning of July 4, penetrated Jap lines, and occupied 10 strong points.

Two Towns Under Attack.

Attacking key points on the various enemy advance routes, the Chinese also broke into Yungfeng, 45 miles northwest of Hengyang, and battered at Yuhsien, 38 miles northeast, and Liling, 80 miles northeast of Hengyang.

The siege of Hengyang was broken, the Chinese said, on its 12th bitter day by Chinese who stabbed suddenly from the southwest of the battered rail junction, after attacks by United States 14th air force flyers had disorganized Jap supply and communication lines.

Other Chinese forces attacked an enemy force which, by-passing Hengyang, had swung south and cut the railway at Leiyang. This force has fallen back 35 miles and Leiyang now is back firmly in Chinese hands, said Maj. Gen. C. C. Tseng.

Japs Halted on Canton Front.

He said that as a result of this remarkable comeback, after weeks of defeat in Hunan, the Jap threat to Kweilin, provisional capital of Kwangsi to the southwest, and Kukong, provisional capital of Kwangtung to the south, had been eased.

He also said the Japs have been halted north of the Canton area in Kwangtung, where a new offensive had been aimed northward for juncture with the Hunan enemy forces. These troops already had pierced Chinese defense lines around Lungmoon and Tsingyung, east and west of the Canton-Hankow railway, but were thrown back.

Hails Yank Airmen.

Tseng gave credit to Maj. Gen. Claire L. Chennault's American airmen for the Chinese deliverance at Hengyang. He said the planes continually bombed and strafed the enemy, completely disorganizing his supplies and communications.

Chennault said his 14th air force flyers in two days had killed more than 1,500 Jap troops in raids which included strikes at two big enemy airdromes in Canton.

Finds Cache of U. S. Gold in Bahama Isle Cave

NASSAU, Bahamas, July 7 (AP).—The government announced today that $1,570 in United States gold coins, some dated as late as 1907, has been found in glass jars in a cave on Exuma Island. George Cooper, the finder, delivered the gold to Sidney Eldon, receiver of crown dues, and was paid an equivalent amount in British currency.

4TH 'SAFE AND SANE'? NOT FOR JAPS ON SAIPAN

BY HAROLD SMITH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SAIPAN, Marianas Islands [Via Navy Radio], July 4 [Delayed].—Today's witticisms among the army and marine troops blasting the last of Tojo's Saipan elite into kingdom come centered about the familiar phrase, a safe and sane Fourth. The observance was neither in the region of one infantry regimental command post where several Chicagolanders helped wipe out 33 Japs who had infiltrated for a pre-dawn attack.

Pvt. Louis Worley, 35, of Wichita Falls, Tex., in a forward foxhole, first detected the enemy marching in a double column and singing as they emerged in the moonlight into a clearing near headquarters.

"I didn't know they weren't our boys until they were 20 feet away," Worley said. "Then I opened up with my rifle and killed three. The others veered off to a nearby gun emplacement."

Foil Attack and Slay 14.

In the crew were Pvt. 1st Class Norris Adams, 20, Mount Sterling, Ill.; Pvt. 1st Class John Crow, 21, Prairie City, Ill., and Pvt. 1st Class Albert Detullio, 25, Millville, N. J. The Japs let go with grenades and rifles but with bad aim. The Americans did better. With grenades and rifles, they broke up the attack. Daybreak revealed 14 enemy dead within a 50 foot circle.

Meanwhile, part of the enemy sneaked to another part of the command area where they were spotted, creeping in single file, by Corp. Arthur Hepp, 25, of 2947 N. Damen av., Chicago; Pvt. 1st Class Al Gorman, 27, 1337 E. Johnson st., Madison, Wis., and Pvt. Archie Little Walker, 19, a Ponca Indian from Kaw, Okla.

"One Jap tossed a grenade that glanced off my helmet," Hepp said. "I dropped the lead man in his tracks. Walker and Gorman picked off the next two and the rest did a quick fadeout."

25 Feet from Commander.

All three Japs fell within 25 feet of the regiment commander's trench.

Our only casualty in the attack was an infantryman who was slightly wounded by grenade fragments.

Three of the dead Japs apparently were staff officers. As usual in such attacks, the Japs were clad in the best uniforms and the officers were wearing Samural swords. The magnetic grenades they carried indicated they hoped to knock out some of our medium tanks.

But It Doesn't Mean They Will Not Face Bare Facts

Oklahoma City, Okla., July 7 (AP).—A reporter who stood on a downtown corner checking women's hosiery habits concluded that soldiers and sailors are more inclined to whistle at women with stockings than at those without.

LAST NOEMFOOR AIR BASE SEIZED BY MacARTHUR

Field 800 Miles from Philippines in Use.

ADVANCED ALLIED HDQ., New Guinea, July 8 [Saturday] (AP).—Gen. MacArthur's forces captured Noemfoor's Namber airdrome without opposition July 6 to conclude the occupation of that island's three air strips—all within bombing range of the Philippines—in a whirlwind five-day campaign.

The success, scored in Dutch New Guinea's Geelvink bay area, within 800 miles of the Philippines, was announced today.

Instead of driving across the island's western coast from the sector where the two other air fields were won, the troops were put ashore near Namber the morning of July 6, covered by destroyers and rocket-firing infantry landing craft. By noon, the occupation was completed.

Landing Outflanks Base.

Kamiri airdrome, captured a few hours after the first landing of Noemfoor July 2, already is being used by allied planes. Kornasoren field was seized two days after the island was invaded.

There are indications that some Japs fled Namber in boats, while others hid in the hills. Their flight may have been hastened by a previous Yank landing on a flanking islet within artillery range of Namber.

By 1 p. m. Thursday, the troops had advanced well beyond the strip toward the northeast. Since the air fields were the prime objectives, the Noemfoor campaign is concluded for all practical purposes.

Support Saipan Attack.

In support of the invasion of Saipan in the Marianas, Liberators of the far eastern air force attacked Yap in the western Carolines July 5 and 6 and caused heavy damage to that air base despite attacks by 60 Jap planes. Fifty-five tons of bombs were dropped on the airdrome, township and waterfront, causing large fires and explosions.

On July 5 one Liberator was lost and two interceptors were shot down. Ten fighters ineffectively opposed the bombers the next day.

Other planes attacked the few air bases still in Jap hands on Dutch New Guinea to the west of Noemfoor, and Rabaul, New Britain.

YANK CONFIRMS JAP'S USE OF GAS AGAINST CHINESE

CHUNGKING, China, July 7 (AP).—A Chinese army spokesman today said Capt. Ralph Thompson of the American chemical warfare intelligence had substantiated Chinese charges that the Japanese had used mustard gas against Hengyang. Thompson has personally examined some victims and a detailed report from him is being awaited, the spokesman declared. He said the report would be communicated to the American and British governments.

[In Washington, D. C., Acting Secretary of War Patterson said the war department had "no firm confirmation" on the use of gas at Hengyang, but it was known that authorities in the United States capital were scrutinizing closely all such reports.]

ASHCRAFT MAY GET COURT POST, QUIT HOUSE RACE

State Rep. Alan E. Ashcraft Jr. [R., Evanston] has been proposed as a master in chancery by Circuit Judge William V. Brothers, it was learned last night. Signatures of the other Circuit judges are being gathered and it is expected he will be appointed within a few days.

Ashcraft is contemplating resigning as Republican nominee for the legislature. He has been one of the outstanding new members during his two terms. The court work, added to his law practice, would require all of his time, he said.

RUSSIANS POUND AT WILNO WITH GUNS, PLANES

Claim Gains All Along Central Front.

LONDON, July 7 (AP).—Russian troops closed tightly around the outer perimeter of Wilno [Vilna] today, placing that ancient city, less than 100 miles from East Prussia, under artillery and air bombardment, Moscow announced tonight. It added that the Russians were continuing their westward sweep all along the 350 mile central front.

South of Wilno the Red army advanced to within four miles of Baranowicze, a railway junction, and in the area of the Pripyat [Pripet] marshes soviet forces captured the district center of Stolin, 38 miles from Pinsk, the broadcast Russian bulletin said.

Fighting in the south has spread to the areas of Tarnopol and Luck, a German radio commentator declared, with the Russians throwing in powerful formations. Tarnopol is 75 miles east of Lwow. Luck is 35 miles southeast of Kowel, where the Reds were 175 miles from Warsaw.

Reported at 1941 Line.

British press dispatches quoted a commentator for the Nazi propaganda agency Transocean as saying the Germans in the Kowel area had withdrawn to the Bug river, the soviet frontier line from which Hitler launched his drive into Russia in 1941.

A retreat to the Bug, one of the natural barriers guarding Warsaw, would mean that the Nazis were retiring to the shortest line of defense before the approaches to the Polish capital.

A broadcast German high command report said only that "in the area of the upper Dnestr and Kowel the enemy assaulted German positions at several places."

4,000 Nazis Reported Slain.

The liquidation of encircled enemy pockets in the Minsk area continued, and the bulletin said 4,000 Germans had been slain during the day and 3,000 captured east of the White Russian capital.

Wilno apparently was the object of the soviet drive northwest of Minsk, where more than 250 places were occupied today, but at the rate the Russians were advancing they might reach East Prussia within four days.

The Germans' hopes of an effectual resistance along the 300 mile Daugavpils [Dvinsk]-Wilno-Brest Litovsk line seemed to be fading rapidly. Brest Litovsk and Daugavpils both were bombed heavily last night. The Russian bulletins said many military trains were destroyed.

Russian forces were reported to have driven deeper into the Finnish front.

YANKS TACKLE 'NEW CASSINO' ON ITALY FRONT

ROME, Italy, July 7 (AP).—A bitter struggle reminiscent of the fight for Cassino raged today in the ruined village of Rosignano, 13 miles below Livorno [Leghorn]. The Germans were striking back furiously at American forces along a 30 mile front extending inland from the west coast.

After three days of house to house fighting inside Rosignano, American infantry was reported in possession of two-thirds of the flattened village. It was a grim yard by yard advance for Lt. Gen. Mark W. Clark's doughboys, who repulsed enemy conuter-attacks.

Inland from Rosignano, American and French troops engaged in increasingly furious combat as they probed into the mountainous outposts of the German's Gothic line, the strongest natural defenses in Italy. Just ahead of allied forces are peaks rising to 6,300 feet.

Nazis Get More Weapons.

Remnants of 24 German divisions, reënforced by hundreds of new weapons, fought to give the Nazis time to complete the Gothic defense belt. Reconnaissance disclosed that the enemy was working feverishly on fortifications in the Futa pass area, 20 miles north of Florence, tho allied troops still are 20 miles south of Florence.

The Germans were knocked off high ground at several points yesterday but the day's fighting left the front substantially unchanged all the way from the west coast to the Adriatic. It was obvious that the drive into the Gothic line would be arduous.

[A German broadcast war bulletin said the allies attacked Thursday along the entire Italian front but were "repulsed with losses, apart from some minor dents."]

Germans to Shorten Line.

Withdrawal into the Gothic line will enable Field Marshal Albert Kesselring to shorten his front more than 40 miles because of indentation of the eastern coast by the Adriatic sea.

In some 5th army localities yesterday the Germans attempted to regain the initiative by infiltrating into American positions but were beaten back. German artillery was increasingly active. Illustrative of the enemy's new wealth of armor, an allied spokesman reported that in the last six days the 5th army had knocked out 75 to 80 German tanks and self-propelled guns, including 15 Tiger tanks.

8th Army Clears Height.

The hardest fighting on the 8th army front was in the neighborhood of Arezzo, 36 miles southeast of Florence, where allied infantry drove the enemy from 2,815 foot Monte Lignano, four miles south of Arezzo. Indian troops in the Tiber valley north of Rome slugged past Umbertide, but no progress was reported on the Adriatic coast, where Polish troops were within nine miles of Ancona.

[The Vienna radio announced that allied aircraft were flying over upper Austria this morning.]

A PRYING YANK SCARES JAP INTO QUITTING BATTLE

ABOARD U. S. CARRIER FLAGSHIP, Western Pacific, June 22 [Delayed]—(AP).—A curious American pilot frightened a Japanese aerial gunner right out of the June 18 [United States date] air-sea battle in which 403 Japanese planes were shot down. Ensign Walter Harold [Mouse] Albert, Braintree, Mass., said it happened when he pulled alongside an enemy bomber, "to make sure it was a carrier plane."

"Sure enough," he continued, "I spotted his tail hook. Then I saw the rear seat gunner with his gun poking out at me. But he didn't shoot. He just folded down that gun and pulled the canopy shut over him. I guess he was scared to death."

Eight Japanese fighters, jumping one of our search units—two lumbering torpedo planes and a Hellcat fighter—failed. Among the Yanks who brought them down was Lt. [j.g.] Harry C. Thomas, 2020 E. 72d pl., Chicago, who performed the unusual feat of shooting down a fighter from his torpedo plane. Lt. Elmer Kraft, route 1, Gilman, Ill., squadron executive officer who never had shot at a Japanese before, brought down one.

Dutch Flyers Bomb Japs from Bases on Own Soil

San Francisco, July 7 (AP).—For the first time since 1942 a squadron of the Netherlands Indies army air force is operating against the Japanese from Dutch territory, Aneta, Dutch news agency, said today. Aneta said pilots trained in Jackson, Miss., bombed Japero on the south coast of Netherlands New Guinea, on Wednesday. They flew from bases on the Netherlands part of the island.

NAZI EMBASSY IN ROME YIELDS SABOTAGE DUMP

Allies Seize Hidden Explosives.

BY SEYMOUR KORMAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Italy, July 7.—A large quantity of explosives, incendiaries, mines, and grenades was removed by the allies from the German embassy, where the stores had been hidden for the use of saboteurs, it was disclosed today. The embassy is near the Basilica of St. John Lateran.

The cache included 1,400 pounds of plastic explosives, 80 incendiaries, 40 primers, 25 wooden box mines, 40 tick grenades, 10 egg grenades, 15 prepared charges, 8 electrical detonators, safety fuses, and 50 limpets, 20 clams and 65 flowerpots. The three latter were described as bombs to be attached to the walls of houses or placed on tables.

There also was found enough material for five radio transmitters.

Big Cache in Ancient Wall.

The authorities of the Rome area command, acting on information that German saboteurs had been drawing from the embassy stores, notified the Swiss minister, who is in charge of German interests. The Swiss minister's representative accompanied the allied authorities to the embassy on June 8.

The searchers discovered the main explosive dump in a cellar dug into an old wall running thru the embassy garden. Some of the plastic explosives had been molded to resemble lumps of coal.

Much of the cache was in an unstable condition, creating a menace to persons and property in the vicinity.

Blasts Mark Removal.

While some of the explosives were being piled into a scout car, several incendiaries began burning, denonators were ignited and the garden underbrush was suddenly a mass of flame and explosions. Explosions and fires occurred in the garden for several hours.

The explosive material carried away was dumped into the Tiber river.

The Swiss were present all thru the removal operations, which lasted until June 23. An inventory of the items confiscated was presented to the Swiss minister. When the work was completed, the premises were returned to Swiss protection.

STIMSON SAYS SPIRIT OF TROOPS IN ITALY MAKES VICTORY SURE

ROME, Italy, July 7 (AP).—After a tour of the 5th army front lines, United States Secretary of War Stimson said today he had found in American troops an "inestimable quality and desire to engage the enemy." Because of this, he said, "the future of the war is safe."

"The spirit, attitude, and appearance of our men is magnificent," Stimson declared. "I am extremely encouraged about our progress in the war. Our men have shown they are not afraid of the enemy and when they get at him they have mastered him."

Simson declined to prophesy when the struggle in Europe would end but said, "This is no time to let up." He declined to discuss his audience with Pope Pius XII. Stimson complimented war correspondents on the job they had done in reporting the fighting for United States readers.

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras, July 7 (AP).—Several soldiers and demonstrators were reported today to have been killed and several others wounded in a clash Thursday in the city of San Pedro Sula.

Reports received here said the demonstrators were opponents of the government, and that they paraded and shouted "Long live the Liberal party" and attacked the garrison chief.

Flee Government Police.

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica, July 7 (AP).—Diplomatic sources said tonight the Salvadorean government was sending vehicles, medicine, physicians, and nurses to the Honduran border to meet Honduran civilians who fled after a clash yesterday with government police. Travelers said that a demonstration was held today in the Honduran province of La Paz demanding the resignation of President Andino Tiburcio Carias.

The message was broadcast on July 5 and again on the 6th.

CHICAGO PRIEST KILLED BY JAPS; PARENTS TOLD

A letter written by a German missionary has brought word to Mr. and Mrs. Albert Kotrba, 1842 Laflin st., that their son, the Rev. Joseph Kotrba, S. V. D., has been reported killed by the Japanese on New Guinea.

The letter was written May 17 by the Rev. W. Schoor, who now is in care of the American army at Hollandia, and reached Chicago several days ago. He related that he and Father Kotrba were among missionaries taken into custody by the Japs after they had occupied Bogia in January, 1943.

Some time later, Father Kotrba was taken away by Japanese soldiers who said he was to be used as a guide. Some months later, the Rev. Schorr wrote, he heard that some missionaries had been killed because they were suspected of being spies. The name of Father Kotrba was mentioned as among them.

GERMANS LOSE FOUR MORE OF THEIR GENERALS

LONDON, July 7 (AP).—Germany has lost four more of its generals, it was announced today, increasing to 31 the number of top-flight officers lost in the last month.

The German radio said Gen. Emil von Vickede, commander of an army corps, and Lt. Gen. Karl Eglseer, commander of an Alpine corps, east front veterans, had been killed on June 23.

Moscow's war bulletin announced the capture today of Maj. Gen. Muller-Bulow, commander of the 246th infantry division, and Lt. Gen. Traut, commander of the 78th German assault group.

GREEK PREMIER SAYS RED PARTY ASKS IMPOSSIBLE

CAIRO, Egypt, July 7 (AP).—George Papandreou, premier of the Greek government in exile, refusing to make further concessions to the Communist dominated Eam party, rejected tonight demands which he said meant "surrender" of Greece to a small dynamic minority.

Papandreou said in a speech prepared for broadcast that Eam insisted that either the generalissimo of all Greek guerrilla forces or his chief of staff be an officer of the party's Elas army and also demanded the post of the under secretary of war.

AMERICANS GAIN IN NEW DRIVES ON 33 MI. FRONT

Planes Bomb Nazi Guns.

Normandy-based Thunderbolt dive bombers blasted German guns that had been holding up the Yanks southwest of Carentan. Here the Americans widened their salient astride the road to Periers.

At La Haye, it appeared that the Germans soon must fall back to Lessay, four and a half miles south, or let the Americans spring the trap which was barely two miles from closing south of the town. The Yanks were in possession of the Mont Castre heights, two miles east. They had pushed to a point three miles southeast and across the only road in the south leading to Lessay.

La Surellerie, a mile south and slightly west of La Haye, was captured. From there the Yanks drove within 200 yards of the highway, but the railroad to Lessay still was in German possession.

After seizing Hill 121, three miles southeast of La Haye, American artillery commanded the slope leading down to Lessay.

Inside La Haye, the doughboys faced machine gun fire from every house still standing and from every pile of debris. The fighting in the town was described by some Yanks as the worst they had yet encountered on the peninsula.

MILE FROM CAEN

BY E. R. NODERER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SUPREME HDQ. ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, July 7.—British forces advancing north of Caen were about a mile from this stubbornly defended German anchor on the extreme eastern end of the Normandy front tonight.

Earlier, British patrols were reported to have penetrated into the dock area of Caen without meeting German opposition, but there was no elaboration on this move at headquarters.

After having been grounded all day by weather, more than 450 R. A. F. Halifaxes and Lancasters swooped low to bomb German troop concentrations north of the town. The bombers were escorted by Spitfires. The area was described by one returning flyer as "stuffed with Germans."

Little fighting was reported at Carpiquet, three miles west, but the British move toward Caen threatens to outflank the German defenders of Carpiquet air field.

Headquarters branded as untrue German claims that the allies had launched a new push on Caen from the northwest down the Bayeux road with several divisions.

The Germans also reported three large concentrations of tanks and transports north of Caen and said this indicated an early attack on a big scale.

OFFICIAL BULLETINS

"Allied forces have made some progress southwest along the Carentan-Periers road.

"West of Airel our troops have captured a small bridgehead over the Rive Vire.

"Air activity over the beaches and battle area up to noon today was confined to reconnaissance patrols."

GERMAN WAR REPORT.

Following is the Friday German war bulletin broadcast by Berlin and recorded by the Associated Press:

"In the Norman landing head, the focal point of fighting yesterday was again in the area extending southwest from Carentan to the west coast of the Cherbourg peninsula. In difficult forest and bush terrain, embittered hand to hand fights often developed. Our troops repulsed all enemy attacks, supported by strong air attacks.

"The opponent, who broke in at Le Plessis and Montgardon, was thrown back in a counter-thrust. Mopping up in the forest terrain east of La Haye du Puits is still in progress after the enemy had entered.

"By fighting means of the navy in the waters of the invasion front, one cruiser, three destroyers and six laden transports of 32,000 tons were sunk. Another cruiser was damaged severely. North of the Seine, German patrol vessels sank one British artillery E-boat and damaged several others last night. In the waters off Brest, an encounter occurred Wednesday night between four German patrol vessels and four enemy destroyers. Two destroyers were set ablaze. One of our own vessels was lost."

Chutist Dropped by Nazis in Eire Escapes Prison

DUBLIN, July 7 (AP).—John Francis O'Reilly, an Irishman who was arrested after the Germans dropped him by parachute in Eire last December, has escaped from prison, it was learned today. A reward of $2,000 has been offered for his recapture.

ADMIT INVASION MOVES SLOWER THAN HOPED FOR

BY WES GALLAGHER.

SUPREME HDQ., ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, July 7 (AP).—It was freely admitted today that progress of the allied invasion of France has not been as fast as was hoped for when the western front was planned, because of fanatical resistance by the Germans on every foot of ground.

While officers made no secret of this, they hastened at the same time to say that after one month of fighting, the front could not be described as "unsatisfactory," and noted that it had engaged or tied up 50 to 60 enemy divisions, as the Russians had asked.

Headquarters has definite information that the Germans have been forced to use in France divisions which were earmarked for the Russian front.

"After all," one officer said, "we have landed and established a front, and a month ago we were not too sure whether we could do that."

Give Number of Reasons.

Slowness of progress has been attributed to a number of causes by various officers, but the chief one that emerges is that the Germans have reacted violently and fought fanatically for every bit of ground.

The worst June weather in 25 years has prevented the allies from using their air superiority to the fullest extent, and channel gales caused considerable damage and delayed unloading of ships.

The weather has been important because it was at its worst during the early unloading stages, when more supplies and troops might have paid big dividends before the Germans could get set.

Under cover of clouds, the Germans have been able to bring up reserve divisions, altho under great difficulty, and now their progress will be extremely costly.

Last-Man Fights Delay Allies.

It is considered probable here that Hitler already has earmarked from one-third to one-half of his tank divisions for the battle in the west.

And even "scratch" divisions such as garrisoned Cherbourg, have fought for the most part virtually to the last, delaying the allied advance. Sharpshooters have remained behind in great numbers, and small, isolated units have fought for days, taking up valuable allied time.

SECOND FRIEND OF DICE PLAYER HELD AS SLAYER

Geise Alton Wagster, 44, of 3150 N. Honore st., who had confessed the fatal slugging of George Hurt, 41, of 1825 Wellington av., recanted yesterday and accused Ralph [Red] Chadwick, 29, of 1621 Barry av., of the crime.

The police also accused Chadwick after they discovered what they said were his bloody finger prints on a door in Hurt's apartment. Wagster said he had taken the blame because he was afraid Chadwick would kill him if he implicated him.

Friends for several years, the three came here from Martin, Tex., where Hurt was a known dice player. Last Wednesday after a prolonged drinking bout, Wagster said, Chadwick accused Hurt of having cheated him out of $119 in a dice game and struck him twice with a wrench.

Chadwick interrupted Wagster once. He said: "You lie!"

LONDONERS FLEE BELOW GROUND TO FOIL ROBOTS

25,500 Children Are Sent Out of City.

BY LARRY RUE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 7.—German robot bombs roared over southern England in increasing strength tonight as a large part of London's civilians moved underground and 15,000 children prepared to leave the capital tomorrow. When these children are evacuated, it will make a total of 40,500 in four days, including 15,000 who left today.

The exodus was reminiscent of the 1940 blitz days, and again many of the city's functions were moved underground, including the great law courts of the Strand, which were transferred to small, reinforced basement shelters. The London county council also met in a basement. Authorities said there are shelters sufficient to accommodate all Londoners, with bunks for 4,000,000.

Mothers Get Assistance.

To care for the child evacuees, transport and reception arrangements, similar to those which four years ago provided for the exodus of 500,000 to 750,000 in three days, are working smoothly again.

In addition to mothers and teachers traveling with the children, members of the women's voluntary services also are aboard the special trains to serve food and take care of the youngsters on their long journeys to areas now safe from the robot raiders.

In reception centers, food officers and local education and welfare authorities take over responsibility for the youngsters.

Pupils Don't Escape Exams.

The children do not escape school examinations as a result of the evacuation. End of term tests will be held in the areas to which they are sent. Children who already have failed in examinations may be given a second chance if the teachers decide they were affected by war conditions.

Provisional arrangements for extending the London evacuation areas were disclosed. In parts of Surrey and Kent, inside the London region, remaining "neutral" areas will become evacuation areas from which children, expectant mothers and the aged may be evacuated at government expense

Hosts to Be Paid.

Registration of mothers with children under 5 years who desire evacuation under the government scheme will open tomorrow in the Greater London area.

During the last 48 hours the pace of registration of child evacuees has quickened. Recently the government decided to increase billeting allowances and the new hosts and hostesses of the little Londoners will be paid on the following scale:

For children under 5, $2.10 per week; 5 to 10 years, $2.30; 10 to 12, $2.40; 12 to 14, $2.60; 14 to 16, $2.80, and 16 to 17, $3.30.

The first of London's deep shelters, which Prime Minister Churchill promised yesterday would be brought into use shortly, is expected to be opened to the public tomorrow. All eight are expected to be open by next week-end.

Reports Son of Former French President Killed

LONDON, July 7 (AP).—The Nazi controled Paris radio today said Jean Marie Lebrun, only son of Albert Lebrun, former president of France, had been killed during a recent air raid in the vicinity of the Seine and Marne rivers.

BAG 114 NAZIS IN BIG AIR BATTLES OVER GERMANY

LONDON, July 7 (AP).—More than 1,100 United States heavy bombers under strong escort pounded 11 high-priority targets in central Germany with 3,000 tons of bombs today, and fought a great aerial battle in which 114 enemy planes and 36 American bombers and six fighters were shot down.

Another great sky battle raged over German Silesia, where about 75 miles southeast of Breslau more than 500 heavyweights from Italy set fire to oil plants near Blech-Hammer and Odertal. Many German interceptors were shot down by these raiders.

British heavy bombers attacked military targets in enemy occupied territory tonight while a force of Mosquitos again hit Berlin, it was announced officially.

The big task force from Britain went after an airplane assembly plant at Mackau, synthetic oil plants at Lutzkendorf, Bohlen, and Merseberg, a bomber assembly plant at Bernberg, a bomber component plant at Ashersleben, engine works and ballbearing plants at Leipzig and an assembly and repair plant at Halle.

Chicagoans Bag Planes.

Thunderbolts, Mustangs and Lightnings led the attack which handed Hitler his biggest aerial setback since D-day. They knocked down 75 planes while the bomber gunners knocked off 39 for the greatest bag since a task force raiding Berlin May 19 downed 125 planes.

Two Nazi planes were shot down by Capt. Fred Haviland of 6041 Matson av., Chicago. Single kills were scored by Lt. Russell Sobieski of Cicero, Ill.; Lt. Wallace Earnest of 912 92d st., Chicago; Lt. Samuel Betounes of Fort Wayne, Ind.; Lt. Rupert Tumlin of Lafayette, Ind., and Lt. John Goodwyn of Saginaw, Mich.

Included in the scores of planes shot down were a half-dozen Junkers 52 troop transports which Capt. Fred Christensen of Watertown, Mass., destroyed over a German airdrome. This won him the record for a single day's kills in this theater.

Raids Only 15 Minutes Apart.

The twin attacks were closely synchronized. The bombers from Italy struck at their targets near the Polish border only 15 minutes after the last bomber had left Leipzig for the return to Britain.

While the heavyweights from Italy struck Silesia smaller formations of Liberators bombed an airdrome and rail yards in Zagreb, Yugoslavia.

Troop Trains Blown Up.

ROME, July 7 (AP).—A concentration of crowded German troop trains ready to depart for northern France was shattered Wednesday when American Liberators bombed the rail yards at Beziers in southern France.

Reconnaissance photos showed at least 150 of 400 rail cars in the yards were destroyed from at least 100 bomb hits. One explosion destroyed a train of 25 oil tankers.

Tito Reports Partisans Capture German Base

LONDON, July 8 [Saturday]—(AP).—A broadcast bulletin by Marshal Josep [Tito] Broz said today Partisan forces had captured Trilj, a German base about six miles southeast of Sinj and 15 miles northeast of the port of Spalato [Split]. Yesterday Tito reported Cazma, about 35 miles east of Zagreb, captured.

"She said to get Wheaties and—uh—three boxes of Wheaties—and—let me see. There were some other things—did I mention Wheaties?"

Did you mention Wheaties to your grocer lately? Are you enjoying Wheaties concentrated whole grain nourishment and satisfying malt-sweet flavor? Better order two or three boxes. Have lots of milk, fruit, and Wheaties, "Breakfast of Champions"—every day.

HENRI CHARPENTIER'S Column

On July 4th our beautiful flag waved throughout our land—it waved as well in many other lands accompanying our fighting boys. The sky was clear that night—stars twinkled down on us—stars which are duplicated in our lovely banner and each of which represents a grand immortal American. They, too, join us in wishing our heroic boys a speedy victory. We in the rear must buy more bonds to facilitate this end. Thank you, Henri Charpentier, Cafe de Paris.

BRITISH AWARD MEDALS TO 10 HEROIC YANKS

BY JOHN THOMPSON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

FIRST U. S. ARMY HDQ. IN NORMANDY, July 7.—While batteries of still and movie camera men recorded the simple ceremony and the rumble of big guns produced the sound effects, Gen. Montgomery, commanding allied forces in Normandy, pinned British decorations on seven American officers and men today for heroism during the invasion of France. Three others were to have been decorated, but two still are in the hospital with wounds and the other is in line leading his battalion.

Those receiving awards included:

Maj. Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, commander of the 101st airborne division, who jumped with his men in the invasion of France, and received the distinguished service order.

Capt. Sam H. Ball Jr. of Texarkana, Tex., D. S. O.

Tech. Sgt. Phillip Streczyk, New Brunswick, N. J., military medal.

First Sgt. Norman Day, distinguished conduct medal [address unknown].

Names of the other recipients cannot be given because of censorship restrictions.

Ceremony Held in Field.

The ceremony was brief. The men stood at attention in the tall grass before headquarters' camouflaged tents while the army's chief of staff, a major general, read each man's citation slowly.

Then in turn, beginning with the airborne commander, each man stepped forward and saluted Gen. Montgomery. Wearing his dark blue beret and trimly tailored battle dress, Montgomery returned their salutes, shook hands, spoke a few words and pinned on the ribbons.

All Return to Duty.

After the officers and men had returned to their positions the general passed slowly down the line again shaking hands. He was followed by Gen. Bradley.

Sgt. Ricks actually arrived after the ceremony, having come direct from the line so Montgomery held a separate show for him. It was all over in less than 10 minutes and officers and men returned to duty.

Nazis Loot Cherbourg of Art Treasures Thru Ruse

CHERBOURG, July 7 (AP).—The works of art from this city's museum were looted and carted off to Germany thru a Nazi ruse early in the days of the occupation. Vichy ordered city officials to pack the treasures for removal to the interior of France. The Nazis waited until the work was done and then changed the destination to Germany.

Sketched in European War Zone

One Now Missing

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Brindisi, 613 N. Racine av., received word last Saturday that their son, James, 20, an army private, whose sketch appears above, has been missing in action in France since June 11. The sketch was made by Gary Sheahan, Tribune artist, before the start of the invasion. Brindisi enlisted in the army in 1942 after being graduated from Wells High school. He had been overseas since last December. His father is a city electrician.

G. E. Roosevelt Daughter, Italian Husband Separate

ROME, July 7 (AP).—Mrs. Margaret Roosevelt Pallavicini said today that she and her husband, Alessandro Pallavicini, are separated and she had written her father, George E. Roosevelt, of New York City, that she expects to return to the United States in September. During the Germans' occupation of Rome Mrs. Pallavicini and her 6 year old daughter lived in a convent.

AWESOME ROAR OF ROBOT BOMB HEARD ON RADIO

The awesome effect of the noise of flying robot bombs on Britishers was experienced vicariously yesterday by many American radio listeners. The scream of the robots, as realistically recorded by the British Broadcasting corporation, was rebroadcast over the Mutual network.

Listeners were not in full agreement in their description of the sound of the flying robots—probably because the staccato gunfire of anti-aircraft batteries was well mixed with the bomb noises.

A representative of the BBC described it as "a quite distinctive sound—not like anything I had ever heard." He added that it was somewhat similar to the sudden roar of a streamliner rushing by, lasting only a second or two and then gone.

Another earwitness called it a "big whooshing noise." There was general speculation as to why the robots have been dubbed "Whistling Willies." No whistling effect was observed in this broadcast. All agreed that they sounded nothing like airplanes.

BUREAU TO SEEK CIGARET VENDOR LICENSE FEES

Clifford Keller, superintendent of the city license bureau, said yesterday the bureau will begin a drive Monday to collect cigaret vendor license fees which are past due for the second half of this year.

The fee is $110, payable in semi-annual instalments. Only 3,700 of the 9,437 licenses issued for the six months' period ended June 30 have been renewed so far this month, Keller said.

Collection of delinquent $50 license fees for juke boxes has been almost completed, he said. Charges against 19 juke box operators summoned to License court were dropped yesterday when the men showed they had purchased licenses since receiving summonses.

That Priceless Boy of Yours

If you had your choice between your boy coming safely home or your getting a million dollars, we know which you'd take.

You can't measure American boys in dollars. To have the opportunity to bring even one boy home who might otherwise have fallen on a foreign battlefield is a greater privilege and responsibility than the chance to make 1, 2, 10 or $100,000,000.

To save the lives of our boys—that's why we've been working.

We can give you an accounting in dollars for what we did last year, but that is secondary. More important is this accounting in lives.

In terms of American boys, yours and ours, we cannot give you a detailed report. But we know that the hundreds of scientific aviation instruments and controls which Bendix has developed and built have made safer and easier the flight, navigation, and defense of transport and battle planes . . . that this "Invisible Crew" is helping mightily to bring safely home planes and crews that might otherwise never have returned.

We know that devices created and manufactured by Bendix—for carrying commands, giving alarms, locating targets, and aiming and firing guns on naval and merchant ships have aided vitally in the destruction of enemy vessels . . . have helped to save tons upon tons of Allied supplies and thousands of precious lives.

We know that starting, stopping and steering equipment—originated and produced by Bendix—on jeeps, tanks and trucks have helped these vital fighting units to plow straight through to their objectives . . . have vastly increased the survival chances of their gallant crews.

We know, too, that Bendix contributions to communications—radio, electronics, and allied fields—have been just as effective in speeding victory . . . just as helpful in enhancing the powers of our fighting men and saving their lives.

All this we know, and that is why we have been—and will be until Victory—interested primarily in creating and producing the sinews of war. That is also why we prefer to give you an accounting first of all in terms of what we are doing for your boy.

But figures, too, are revealing, and so we want you to have a financial accounting as well. Here is what we have done with the funds supplied by your purchases of War Bonds and government securities, and your wartime tax payments:

We have pyramided production to thirty times our pre-war level. As a result our payrolls last year totalled more than $198,000,000.

Our gross sales, royalties and other operating income for the same period amounted to $918,753,465 before making refunds to the government amounting to $140,000,000 reflecting efficiencies in manufacturing and our policy of reducing our profit margins as volume increased.

Our accounted profit was $14,722,704.

What does this figure mean in terms of per cent? Not 25%—not 10%—but actually 1.79%, or less than 2% of net sales.

In 1943 we increased our deliveries to the Armed Forces by more than $400,000,000, but our increased profit as a result of this added volume was less than two-thirds of 1%.

We're going to have a tough time returning to peacetime operations because we have expanded so greatly. We have no way of knowing what the cost will be. But for the purpose, we set aside out of last year's earnings $7,500,000.

In wartime, we repeat, accounting in dollars is secondary. We pledge to you to continue our all-out effort to bring home that priceless boy of yours.

RID FRENCH SOIL OF GERMANS THIS YEAR: DE GAULLE

General Predicts Early Rebirth of Nation.

BY WALTER TROHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 7.—Restoration of the French republic as the heart of a great empire by the end of this year was predicted today by Gen. Charles de Gaulle, head of the French Committee of National Liberation.

The French leader, who conferred with President Roosevelt on French-American relations, said that the last German will be driven out of France before the end of 1944. He made the prediction in a short speech delivered at the home of Henri Hoppenot, French delegate.

As the general opened his first day in the capital by laying a wreath at the tomb of the Unknown Soldier, Mr. Roosevelt told his news conference that his talks with De Gaulle will not include discussion of possible recognition of the French committee as the governing agency of France.

Plan No Commitments.

This Presidential declaration was regarded as confirming capital expectations that the administration would be effusive in its greetings to the French leader but would make no policy commitments.

Mr. Roosevelt said that his talks with De Gaulle would deal with the French underground movement, particularly in the southern part of that nation.

Before about a hundred members of the French official colony here, De Gaulle was enthusiastic about the future role of France. He acknowledged the political and military blunders that led to the fall of France in 1940, but assured his audience that his country would rise again to play a major part in world history.

Oust Germans This Year.

"I believe the end of the year of 1944 will not come before all Germans have been driven from France or made prisoners there," he said. "France has suffered greatly, but is still worthy of the faith of all Frenchmen. France must either be great or perish."

In his ten minute talk the general made no reference to his committee or its activities. He referred only to France and called upon his auditors to renew and maintain their faith in their country.

He stressed the suffering the French are enduring in the present invasion, adding that the good being done for France far outweighs the immediate trouble. The arrival of American troops, he said, produced the reaction he had expected—the welding of all French people into solidarity against the Nazi invaders.

Greeted with Gun Salute.

As the general entered Arlington cemetery to place a wreath at the tomb of the Unknown Soldier, he was greeted with a 17 gun salute.

At noon the French leader lunched with the chief executive and began discussion of French-American problems. Mr. Roosevelt said his conversations today and tomorrow would embrace the whole question of government in liberated areas, but that there is no agenda for the conference.

There was no detailed report from the French or the White House on the first conference. Before he leaves for New York Monday to go on to Canada, it is expected De Gaulle will meet with the press to explain his aims in detail.

Calls on Pershing.

In the afternoon De Gaulle called upon Gen. John J. Pershing, commander of the American forces in World War I., at the latter's suite in Walter Reed hospital. The two soldiers agreed that the allies should march into Berlin to close the European phase of the present conflict.

"If we had gone to Berlin in 1918," we wouldn't be going there now," P shing said.

"At least this time we will go there," De Gaulle promised.

WATCH AWARDED BLIND WOMAN, AT WARD'S 25 YEARS

Mrs. Augusta Dickinson, blind ediphone operator in the stenographic department of Montgomery Ward & Co., yesterday was awarded a gold wristwatch by H. L. Pearson, vice president and treasurer, in recognition of her 25 years of work with the company. Sewell Avery, chairman of the board, presented her with a bouquet of 25 roses.

Born on May 5, 1900, in Germany, Mrs. Dickinson came to the United States when she was 4 years old. She was graduated from the Jacksonville [Ill.] School for the Blind and commenced her job at Montgomery Ward's on July 7, 1919.

Her employment record lists her as "an exceptionally good operator, conscientious and punctual." Mrs. Dickinson's husband, a state department employe, also is blind.

The Inquiring Camera Girl

BY MARYON ZYLSTRA

[The Tribune will pay $5 for each interesting question submitted by a reader and used by The Tribune. Today's question was submitted by Margaret Davis, Champaign.]

THE QUESTION.

What is the worst conversational blunder you've ever made?

WHERE ASKED.

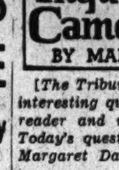
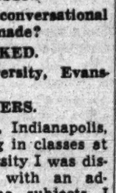
THE ANSWERS.

Tom Koch, student, Indianapolis, Ind.—Before enrolling in classes at a university I was discussing with an adviser the subjects I wanted to take. I told him I was interested in a certain subject, but had been cautioned against the professor. It turned out that he was the professor I was trying to steer clear of.

Jean James, student, the Homestead, Evanston—My girl friend and I were walking down the street and just before we met a girl I nudged my chum and said, "I think that girl is about the horsiest looking dame I've ever seen." My friend rather hesitantly replied, "That horsey looking dame is my cousin."



Lillian Bell, student, South Bend, Ind.—A group of us girls had been discussing the various fellows before they arrived at a house party. They spoke of one boy whom they called "Bluebeard" because he had so many girls. Later I asked, "When is this Bluebeard coming? I'd like to meet him." I had just been introduced to Bluebeard.



Beverly Singer, student, Milwaukee, Wis.—In a small gathering of friends I was telling the joke that my mother and father are first cousins, but I'm all right—then demonstrated that I was quite wacky. When I finished going thru my antics a girl at the table said, "Well, my mother and father are first cousins."

John W. Winans, student, Paris—When I was in an army hospital the fellows always had girl friends visiting them. One of the girls asked me where I had been injured. I was embarrassed and pointed to the spot on my leg. She laughed at me then and said she meant where geographically and not where on my body.

Adele Katz, student, Rolla, Mo.—Just as I left one of the buildings on the campus the other afternoon I remarked to one of my girl friends, "Thank goodness the professor shaved off that repulsive mustache." I looked up to see that the professor with the clean shave had been following us down the steps.

EGAN RETURNS TO TESTIFY ON QUIRK SLAYING

James Egan, the state's star witness in the Martin [Sonny Boy] Quirk murder, has returned from California and again will testify for the state against the four remaining defendants charged with the slaying of Quirk a year ago, it was learned yesterday. Egan will be held in the "protective" custody of the state's attorney's office.

The defendants who are scheduled to go to trial Monday before Judge Harold G. Ward in Criminal court are James Fawcett, alias Red Forsythe, Ray Deskovitz, Jerome De Jonckheere and Robert Bock. Assistant State's Attorneys Francis McCurrie and Alex Napoli have been assigned to the trial.

Egan was named in the Quirk murder indictment but the charge against him was dismissed after he testified against John J. Williams, south side bookie, and two co-defendants, who were acquitted.

SOLDIER WHO HID LOOT IN CHURCH FACES MIND TEST

Judge Harry H. Porter in Evanston Municipal court yesterday ordered a psychiatric examination for Pvt. Kenneth Altenburg, 21, of 619 Davis st., Evanston, when he was arraigned on three charges of burglary. Altenburg was seized early Tuesday morning and led his captors to a basement room of the First Methodist church, Evanston, where he had hidden loot taken in several burglaries. He has been absent without leave from the De Ridder air base, De Ridder, La., since June 17. Judge Porter continued the hearing to July 21 pending the examination in the Cook county behavior clinic.

BRIBER NAMES 6 LOAN MEN HE SAYS HIRED HIM

Mason, Mich., July 7 [Special].—Maj. Charles F. Hemans, Lansing lobbyist, and a former Democratic regent of the University of Michigan, testified in the legislative graft conspiracy trial today that six officials of finance companies hired him to bribe members of the Michigan legislature, and cited bribes he said he had paid to lawmakers who are among the 22 defendants.

Hemans named defendants Abraham Cooper, president of the Union Investment company of Detroit; Samuel N. Hopkins, vice president of the company; John E. Hancock, assistant vice president and Detroit branch manager of Associates Discount corporation; George Omacht of South Bend, Ind., general counsel of that corporation, and Mark S. Young, Detroit representative of National Discount corporation, as having been present at the meeting at which he said he was hired.

He testified Ernest J. Prew, former vice president of the General Finance corporation of Detroit, who has pleaded guilty, and about six other finance company officials also were there.

Tells of Bribe Need.

At that meeting, Hemans said, he informed the group that "to protect themselves," in the legislature, it would be necessary to make "payment to legislators to influence their votes."

Hemans testified before the Circuit court jury that the group agreed to pay him a fee of $2,500 and reimburse him for expenditures to "pay off" legislators and treat them to whisky and meals.

Then he named 10 legislative defendants to whom he said he paid bribes as the agent of the finance company defendants, to influence their votes on bills and amendments in the 1939 legislative session as charged in the warrant.

He testified he paid $750 to former Sen. Miles M. Callaghan [R., Reed City], who has pleaded guilty to accepting bribes, and to the following defendants in the trial: $100 each to Representatives William G. Buckley, Joseph J. Kowalski, and former Rep. Joseph L. Kaminski; $125 each to Rep. Earl C. Gallagher and former Sen. Ernest G. Nagel, and $450 which he said was divided among Representatives Walter N. Stockfish, Adam W. Sumeracki, and Martin A. Kronk, and former Rep. Stanley J. Dombrowski. They represent Wayne county districts.

Identifies Cashiers' Checks.

The latter four, he said, were known as the "four counts." He declared that mostly he paid the money to Stockfish to divide among them.

Hemans identified canceled cashiers' checks issued by a Lansing bank as representing payments of $65 each to Stockfish and Sumeracki and $50 to Dombrowski as part of the "pay-offs."

The legislators, he asserted, were paid to "do as they were told" by him in voting on bills and amendments, and agreed to this arrangement. He testified that Nagel, however, accepted money from him on one occasion to refrain from "pushing" a bill, but "pushed" it anyway because "the other boys had paid him more money."

Usually, Hemans said, he took legislators into the bathroom of his hotel room to pay them. Hemans was still on the witness stand giving direct testimony when court adjourned until Monday.

SOLDIERS SEIZED IN CHASE ADMIT STEALING PURSES

Four men, including two soldiers absent without leave, were questioned at the state's attorney's office yesterday after three of them were captured in a stolen car in a long chase thru west side streets. The chase ended when park police shot a tire of the car at Taylor st. and Fairfield av., where the car crashed into a light pole.

Those caught in the car are Pvt. Bradford J. Fields, 27, of 850 Windsor av., said to be AWOL from Camp Butner, N. C.; Pvt. Theodore Griffin, 21, of Thomaston, Conn., also said to be AWOL, and Edward Craig, 46, alias John E. Carson, who admitted being an ex-convict. Also arrested was Patsy Savoia, 26, of 726 S. Claremont av., who volunteered misleading directions to police in the chase. All four will appear at a police showup Sunday.

Fields and Griffin admitted numerous purse snatchings, in one of which they stole $17 from Mrs. Dora Bearce, 2159 Farragut av. on Thursday night in front of 5234 N. Damen av. They also are held for robbing Stanley Ingmanson of $1.88 in a gas station at 2754 Lawrence av. They admitted serving time together. They had an obsolete revolver in the car when arrested. The automobile was stolen from A. Kaplan, 3172 Sheridan rd., on June 9.

Frank D. Kissel after riding son's bicycle to court at judge's order.

Frank D. Kissel, 32, of 162 Sawyer av., Markham, where he was police magistrate in 1942, rode a child's bicycle into the lobby of the County building yesterday in compliance with a court order by Circuit Judge Philip J. Finnegan.

He gave the bicycle to his former wife, Bess, 25, who said she would ask her brother to pick it up in his car and deliver it to her home at 15628 Marshfield av., Harvey. She divorced Kissel, who is employed in a war plant, in September, 1943. Kissel was ordered in May to turn over the bicycle to his son, Frank Jr., 6, who lives with his mother.

Joseph H. and Norman Becker, attorneys for Mrs. Kissel, informed Judge Finnegan on Wednesday that the bicycle has not been returned, and the judge ordered Kissel to ride it the 20 miles from his home to the lawyers' office at 105 W. Madison st. Kissel protested, and was put in the sheriff's lock-up for four hours. He rode the bicycle yesterday from an automobile parking lot at Madison and Wells sts., and Judge Finnegan said he was satisfied that his order was fulfilled.

TWO LOSE PLEAS TO CUT TERMS IN DOCTOR SLAYING

Durland Nash and Robert Goethe, who are serving 199 year sentences in Stateville penitentiary for the murder of Dr. Silber C. Peacock in 1936, were among 35 prisoners denied executive clemency yesterday by Gov. Green. Nash and Goethe had asked commutation of their sentences to 30 years each. They were convicted of slaying Dr. Peacock in a holdup after luring him from his office with a fake call for aid.

Also denied was the pardon application of John Ardelean, who is serving a life sentence at Pontiac prison for the rape of a 9 year old Chicago girl in 1937. His attorneys told the pardon board, which makes recommendations to the governor, that a lie detector test showed Ardelean innocent of the crime.

Albert Ciha, 44, convicted in 1934 of murdering Michael Regan in Chicago, was refused a pardon. He is serving a 99 year sentence. A former Menard prison guard told the board that Ciha informed guards and prevented a possible prison break at Menard in 1939.

Nine other men sentenced from Cook county were among those whose petitions were denied.

DRAPERIES STOLEN FROM TRUCK.

A truck belonging to Aaron Milstein, 49, of 2200 N. Kedzie av., was looted yesterday of sheets, draperies, curtains, and sewing kits, all valued at $400, he reported to police.

CONVICT MAJOR IN FLOGGING OF 9 AT ARMY CAMP

Atlanta, Ga., July 7 [Special].—Found guilty of ordering the flogging of nine bare-skinned United States army prisoners with bullet-weighted rubber tubes, Maj. Louis Rothschild Lefkoff, 34, of Atlanta, is under arrest at his Camp Van Dorn, Miss., quarters, awaiting review of his case by President Roosevelt, the 4th service command headquarters disclosed today.

Maj. Lefkoff was convicted by a seven officer court-martial of "cruel, inhuman, and unusual punishment" of general prisoners. Col. T. B. Birdsong of Camp Shelby, Miss., headed the court-martial at Camp Van Dorn on June 15.

Gets Year's Sentence.

It ordered Maj. Lefkoff, a former Atlanta clothing merchant, confined for a year at hard labor, forfeiture of pay and allowances, and dismissal from the service.

The army presented testimony to show that six white and three Negro prisoners were flogged with the rubber tubes on April 27 under direct orders of Maj. Lefkoff. An army spokesman said the prisoners, described as "trouble makers," were among 160 held at the Camp Van Dorn camp stockade in charge of the major.

The court-martial was told that, after a stockade guard had refused Maj. Lefkoff's orders to flog the prisoners, the officer called 10 military policemen and instructed them to carry out the order.

One Prisoner Collapses.

The prosecution asserted Maj. Lefkoff stood outside the guardhouse while the MP's flogged the prisoners, whose trousers and underclothes had been removed. One prisoner collapsed and was taken to the camp hospital but, the army reported, none suffered permanent injury.

Maj. Lefkoff, whose defense was presented by three officers, testified he was unfamiliar with prison technique. He said the prisoners were "uncontrollable" and had threatened him and members of his family.

Blamed on Incompetence.

A spokesman of the 4th service command said Maj. Lefkoff had been confined to a phychiatric hospital for seven days before the court martial.

The court verdict said "it is believed the offense was the result of malassignment and incompetency rather than any inherent viciousness on the part of the accused."

Maj. Lefkoff, who is married and the father of a 3 year old son, was commissioned a second lieutenant in the army reserve in November, 1940. He was commissioned a major at Camp Edwards, Mass., and served at Camp Stewart, Ga., before being assigned to Camp Van Dorn.

Dewald was a sailor for 14 years, and served on the U. S. S. Arkansas in World War I. He married the Donovan boy's mother, Nelliroy, on May 8, 1933.

REPORT MEXICO WILLING TO SEND TROOPS ABROAD

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 7.—Ezequiel Padilla, Mexico's foreign minister, who is here for talks on Mexican-United States relations, told a press conference today his country is prepared, "if necessary," to furnish an expeditionary force to the allies for overseas action against the enemy.

He explained such a force, of undisclosed size, is available "if the allies request it." But, he said, no request has been made.

The minister expressed regret that the Argentine government has not joined with other Latin American nations in breaking diplomatic relations with the Axis. He said coöperation between the United States and Mexico is excellent.

U. S. Lend-Lease Parcels Go to French Prisoners

Miami, Fla., July 7 (AP).—Philippe Etlin of the supply mission of the French ministry of war prisoners at Algiers reported here today that the United States thru lend-lease is supplying 800,000 parcels monthly for the 1,350,000 French prisoners of war whom the Germans still are holding. Of the total, 850,000 French prisoners are behind bars and the remainder have been forced into civilian labor, Etlin said.

NOXON MUST DIE AS SON DID—BY ELECTROCUTION

Pittsfield, Mass., July 7 (AP).—Protesting his innocence, John F. Noxon Jr., 47 year old lawyer, was sentenced today to electrocution for the slaying last Sept. 22 of his mentally deficient child—killed by an electric current.

The sentence paralleled the words used in the indictment of Noxon, which charged he killed his 6 month old baby, Lawrence, "by causing the passage of electricity thru his body."

After saying he was innocent, Noxon stood in the prisoners cage and heard Judge Abraham E. Pinanski sentence him to die "by the passage of a current of electricity thru your body at a time and place provided by law."

Noxon will be taken next week to Massachusetts state prison at Boston. His counsel said a new trial will be sought.

TOLL IN CIRCUS TRAGEDY IS 152; CAUSE IS SOUGHT

250 Still in Hospitals; Fear More Deaths.

Hartford, Conn., July 7 [Special].—While FBI agents and a multiplicity of other investigating groups sought the origin of the disaster, the toll of dead in the greatest fire in circus history climbed tonight to 152 and was expected to rise.

Still in hospitals were at least 250 other victims, many of them seriously burned and trampled in the flaming inferno and panic that attended the destruction yesterday of the main tent of the Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey Circus.

Difficult and sorrowful identification of the dead continued slowly as relatives of missing persons trooped mournfully thru the big state armory where the victims, two-thirds of whom were children, lay in somber aisles, many of them charred beyond visual recognition.

Plan Common Burial.

About one-third of the bodies still are unidentified. Officials expressed the belief the identity of some of them never would be known. Plans were being made for the city to provide a common burial for the unclaimed bodies.

Amid these developments, it was disclosed in Sarasota, Fla., that the loss to the circus, which has not been disclosed, was fully covered by insurance. Representatives of the fire insurance firm of Ludwig & Walhole said the insurance "covered everything," including fire and liability, with excess coverage carried by Lloyds of London.

Meanwhile, five officials of the circus were held in high bail on charges of manslaughter and State's Atty. Hugh M. Alcorn Jr. said more arrests were probable on the basis of preliminary inquiries.

Detained Overnight.

The accused circus officials are J. A. Haley, vice president; George W. Smith, general manager; Leonard Aylesworth, boss canvas man; Edward Versteig, chief electrician, and David Blanchiefie, chief wagon man. The warrants against them were issued by Police Court Prosecutor S. Burr Leikind.

After being detained at police headquarters thruout the night, the five officials were arraigned in police court. Haley and Smith were held in $15,000 bail and the others in $10,000 bonds each for a hearing July 19.

Prosecutor Alcorn said in a formal statement there appeared to have been "inadequate fire fighting equipment" on the circus grounds and that what equipment was there was manned by "inadequate personnel."

"Treated with Paraffin."

"There is also in our possession," he asserted, "information that the tent had been treated with paraffin which was diluted with gasoline, making the entire tent highly inflammable."

Alcorn said all agencies involved in the investigation were determined not only to "ascertain the exact cause of the fire but also to fix responsibility, if any, for the loss of life." He said it was probable additional warrants would be issued after the coroner's inquest and a hearing by the state fire marshal.

Between 40 and 50 persons were questioned during the day by State Police Commissioner Edward J. Hickey in his capacity as fire marshal. In the group were circus officials, workers, and spectators who were at the circus grounds when the "big top" collapsed in a fiery heap.

Order Its Disuse.

Authorities were concerned over the treatment of paraffin and gasoline said to have been put on the tent to waterproof it. They considered the application so dangerous to crowds assembled under such tents that Fire Marshal Hickey immediately ordered disuse of a similarly processed tent in a smaller show at Waterford, Conn. He said such topping henceforth will not be permitted in Connecticut.

Hickey was in the crowd of nearly 7,000 at the disastrous matinee yesterday and had his trousers shredded as he shepherded nine children to safety.

Indicating the spreading sentiment against tents not made fire resistant was the request made to Gov. Saltonstall of Massachusetts by State Senator F. L. Murphy [D., Boston] to ban any circus from coming to Massachusetts until the fire laws of the state, city, or town were enforced and equipment of an inflammable nature inspected and approved.

Second only to the lamentations for the victims of the disaster here was the constant speculation on the origin of the blaze that mushroomed with stupifying rapidity from a little flame "that could have been extinguished with a bucket of water," as one witness said, into total destruction.

High in the Tent.

While six circus ushers and three Hartford detectives agreed that a cigaret discarded carelessly against a sidewall of the tent had started the fire, other witnesses were equally sure the blaze had its inception high in the tent.

"The fire definitely started at the roof of the tent," said Hal Olver, circus press representative. "We have a theory, but we're not making it public now. Absolutely no credence is being given any theory of incendiarism or sabotage."

Stories of heroism and gripping drama were told again and again thruout the day as those present at the afternoon performance suddenly were turned from a gay, laughing throng into a horror stricken mob.

There were stories also of profiteering residents who demanded $1 a call to permit escaping spectators to notify their loved ones of their safety.

Sign of Trouble

Free enterprise ran into a slight delay yesterday afternoon when two union agents asked three young women to quit painting a sign on the Martin J. Kelly, Inc., garage at 940 N. Clark st. and talk over union matters. The painters were Alice Lewis, 28, of 1325 N. Dearborn st.; Nan Rogers, 21, and Evelyn Thebus, 24, both of 414½ Arlington pl.

The representatives of the Sign Painters' union [AFL], local 830, were H. R. Songhurst and William J. Hickey. They explained they dropped by to ask for compliance with union hours and conditions—and incidentally to ask Kelly to put union men on the job. Kelly wasn't there, and after an hour of waiting the agents departed with the girls' promise to call at union offices Monday. The girls went back to work.

Mrs. Lewis and Miss Rogers are partners in the painting venture known as the Lewis-Rogers studios [only they haven't found any studios yet]. Miss Thebus gave up stenography to become their employe. Both she and Miss Rogers come from Colorado, being the daughters, respectively of Fred Thebus, Denver druggist, and Platt Rogers, well known Colorado contractor. Handyman of the venture is Mrs. Lewis' husband, Edward, who fixes the ladders, etc., but prefers water colors and oils for his painting.

FIRE MAY DELAY SETTLEMENT OF RINGLING ESTATE

Tallahassee, Fla., July 7 (AP).—The Ringling Brothers circus fire in Hartford, Conn., probably will complicate and delay settlement of the 20 million dollar estate which John Ringling left principally to Florida, State School Supt. Colin English said today. English is a member of the state cabinet committee on Ringling estate affairs.

The John Ringling estate owns 30 per cent of the circus stock and dividends from the shares have been depended on as a major factor in paying off numerous debts of the estate.

Florida legislators agreed to accept the Ringling bequest only when it could come to the state entirely debt-free. The principal part of the estate left to Florida was the John and Mabel Ringling museum of art at Sarasota.

After nearly eight years of litigation and negotiations in an effort to liquidate the complex estate, state officials said several months ago that the end was in sight.

REFINERY BLAST AND FIRE TOLL RISES TO EIGHT

Oil City, Pa., July 7 (AP).—The death toll in a series of explosions and fire that swept a unit of the Defense Plant corporation's 100 octane aviation gasoline plant near here rose to eight today.

Eight others were in hospitals, three in critical condition, from injuries and burns suffered as flames swept the building after the first explosion occurred while a valve was being repaired in the gas concentration system. The plant, constructed at an estimated cost of 5 million dollars, had been in operation less than two months.

Officials of the four commercial companies jointly operating the plant—Pennzoil company, Continental Refining company, Quaker State Oil Refining corporation, and Wolf's Head Oil Refining company—said they were unable to determine the exact cause of the explosions.

INQUEST SLATED FOR 66 TRAPPED IN BURNED MINE

Bellaire, O., July 7 (AP).—Sixty-six men entombed in the flame swept Powhatan mine officially will be pronounced dead tomorrow, but tonight the first of two drills began boring down toward them on the faint chance that they may be found alive.

It may be two to five days before the 9 inch and 3 inch shafts, three-quarters of a mile apart, are driven 400 feet deep to a tunnel in which the men were caught.

Coroner Clyde Hardesty said he would hold an inquest at the mine tomorrow and issue death certificates for the men. This, he said, would permit families of the miners to obtain workmen's compensation benefits promptly.

SEDITION TRIAL JUDGE REBUKES OUSTED LAWYER

Washington, D. C., July 7 (AP).—Chief Justice Edward C. Eicher of District court, presiding in the mass sedition trial of 29 defendants, charged in Appellate court today that Defense Attorney James J. Laughlin had been "continuously contemptuous and disrespectful of the court" since the trial began. Laughlin has been twice fined for contempt.

Eicher's statement was filed in answer to the lawyer's request for a writ of mandamus to revoke the jurist's ruling barring Laughlin from further participation in the sedition trial.

Laughlin filed with the speaker of the House a request for impeachment of Justice Eicher.

Jellico, Tenn., July 7 (AP).—At least 19 persons, all but two of them soldiers, were killed last night when the engine and four cars of a troop train plunged 50 feet into a desolate mountain gorge of the Clear river, 11 miles south of here. About 100 persons were hospitalized for injuries.

Wreckage of four cars—two of them burned—rested in the river after leaving the Louisville and Nashville railroad tracks. A fifth car hung on the edge of the defile.

Besides 17 soldiers, the known dead included Engineer John C. Rollins and Fireman J. W. Tummins, both of Etowah, Tenn.

At Least 100 in Hospitals.

Identification of enlisted dead proceeded slowly. Army public relations explained that most men were in their berths or in wash rooms, preparing to retire, when the crash occurred. Personal belongings were thrown in heaps, and some victims lost identification tags.

Wavering lights of acetylene torches flashed in the rugged glen as army and civilian squads worked under an overcast sky to free the injured and recover bodies. At least 100 were hospitalized.

Each was pulled up the steep embankment in block and tackle slings and removed to near-by army infirmaries or to civilian hospitals. Many received blood plasma before being moved.

Toll of 40 Estimated.

Estimate of a death toll of "between 40 and 50" was made by Dr. E. C. Muncy, resident physician at Knoxville's general hospital, who directed part of the rescue operations.

Express Agent C. L. Alley said the train carried 1,006 soldiers, but army officers at the scene said they had been told that the total army personnel aboard was 399.

NEGRO EDITOR NAMED AS A PUBLICITY AID FOR DEWEY CAMPAIGN

New York, July 7 (AP).—The appointment of Dr. C. B. Powell, a Negro, publisher of the New York Amsterdam News, as assistant director of publicity of the Republican national committee, was announced today by Herbert B. Brownell Jr., national chairman.

In 1936 and 1940 Brownell said Powell was a director of publicity for the Democratic party. Powell is a member of the New York state athletic commission by appointment by Gov. Dewey.

Powell, a graduate in medicine of Howard university, Washington, D. C., was present at the press conference when his appointment was announced.

"There has been a definite shift of Negroes to the Republican party since 1940," Powell said. "It was brought about mainly by the treatment of soldiers in southern camps and the riots last summer."

SOLDIER'S WIFE GETS 6 MONTHS ON CHILD CHARGE

Mrs. Clara Ludwig, 21, of 5816 Wentworth av., a soldier's wife, charged with misconduct and with contributing to the delinquency of her two children, 5 and 2, was sentenced by Judge Victor A. Kula in Domestic Relations court yesterday to two concurrent sentences of six months each in County jail.

Bettis Sylvester, 32, a welder, was charged with misconduct with Mrs. Ludwig and was also sentenced to six months in jail. Police said Sylvester is an ex-convict, and had been living with Mrs. Ludwig. They went on a trip from June 30 to July 5, police said, while Mrs. Ludwig left the care and feeding of her children to her nephew, Leon Jordan, 11, of 5831 La Salle st.

Judge Kula told Mrs. Ludwig she was "not a fit mother." The children are now wards of the Juvenile court. Mrs. Ludwig's husband, Robert, is an army private at Camp Blanding, Fla. She had been divorced twice before he married her.

In delivering the censored parts to the convention, he said:

"We can't seem to say what we would like to say about a great many things I don't entirely blame the radio station. The federal communications commission sits like a devil on a pedestal, wielding the power of life and death over a radio station. The speech I delivered so solemnly thru the microphone is not the one I prepared. The discrepancies are the result of rules that still the tongue. This is freedom of speech, 1944 style."

Station WMCA was operated until January, 1941, by the Knickerbocker Broadcasting company, headed by Donald Flamm, president.

Flamm testified last Feb. 9 before a special house committee investigating activities of the FCC that he had been forced to sell the station in a deal that was "greased from the White House down."

Claims "Forced" Sale.

Flamm testified that, under threats of a former FCC official that his operating license would be rescinded if he refused, he sold the station for $850,000 to Edward J. Noble, former undersecretary of commerce to Harry Hopkins.

The deal, Flamm testified, was negotiated by the former FCC counsel, William J. Dempsey, who was Noble's attorney in the transaction. Flamm asserted the plan for the sale to which he unwillingly assented originated with David K. Niles, special administrative assistant to President Roosevelt, and Thomas G. [Tommy the Cork] Corcoran, then a White House intimate.

Noble, when he purchased control of the Blue network, in turn sold WMCA to Straus last September for a reputed $1,250,000.

TANGY LIMA CASSEROLE

3 cups lima beans parboiled	1 onion sliced	1 tsp. salt
2 cups stewed tomatoes	1 lb. sausage meat	¼ tsp. pepper
1 green pepper sliced	1 tbsp. shortening	3 tbsps. bread crumbs

Form sausage meat into small cakes and brown slightly in a skillet with 1 tbsp. shortening. Place a layer of lima beans and tomatoes (which have been mixed together and seasoned with salt and pepper) in a greased casserole, add slices of pepper, onion and a layer of sausage cakes. Repeat this sequence until casserole is filled. Sprinkle the top with bread crumbs and bake in 350° F. oven for 1 hour. Serves 6-8.

SALMON RICE PLATTER

3 1-lb. salmon steaks (1½" thick)	1 cup milk
5½ cups hot cooked white rice (about 1½ cups uncooked)	1 egg, beaten
6 tbsps. butter or margarine	½ cup mayonnaise
1½ tbsps. flour	1 to 1½ tbsp. lemon juice
½ tsp. salt	¼ cup minced parsley or fresh herbs
Speck pepper	Watercress

If necessary, scale the steaks. Remove any small bones in the tapering ends of each steak; then skewer these ends into place with metal skewers or toothpicks. Arrange the steaks toward the front of an oven-glass platter (a baking pan may be used). Brush top surface with salad oil; then bake in moderate oven of 350° F. for 20 min., or until the fish close to the center bone flakes easily, but is still moist. Brush with salad oil once or twice during baking. Meanwhile, cook the rice.

ALSO PREPARE THE FOLLOWING SAUCE:

Melt 2 tbsps. butter or margarine in a saucepan; stir in flour, salt, and pepper, then the milk. Cook, while stirring constantly, until smooth and thickened. Remove from heat; pour slowly over beaten egg, while stirring constantly. Return to low heat for 2 min., while stirring. Stir in mayonnaise and lemon juice, and serve at once. When fish is done, remove; arrange the hot rice, to which ¼ c. butter and the parsley have been added, around back of steaks, with watercress garnish in front. Pour sauce over top of steaks. Serves 4 to 6.

"Coming Attraction" in your post-war kitchen

. . . a time-saving electric range

One of these days you'll get the "go" light... and your dreams of a cool, pleasant, perfectly equipped kitchen will come true. It will happen—quick as a wink—the day your electric range arrives. You'll save hours of time—foods will cook while you're away. Vegetables prepared with accurately controlled electric heat will retain their color—their precious vitamins. This flameless cooking is fast and clean—never leaves soot or smoke streaks on your walls.

You'll find it amazingly easy to keep clean, too. Just the flick of a cloth over the surface of the range... no more hard rubbing, endless hours of scouring. And year after year you can depend on the low operating cost of your automatic electric range. Remember this "coming attraction"... you'll want one of these dependable timesavers in your new post-war kitchen.

TOMORROW'S PROMISE...

War has brought a new appreciation of old values.

The railroads, for example. They are indispensable. Never have they meant so much to so many people.

★ ★ ★

But we in the railroad industry are not satisfied merely to be doing a good emergency job.

★ ★ ★

This war has made us realize, more than ever, the tremendous force that is under our direction—its mighty hauling power; its flexibility; its absolute indispensability to our community life, to our country, to our allies.

When the world again turns to peaceful pursuits, America's railroads will provide a post-war transportation service finer than any you have ever experienced.

For the railroads have clearly demonstrated their ability to perform and to progress. They have transported millions of additional tons of freight with no appreciable increase in rolling stock; carried millions of fighting men with but little inconvenience to essential civilian travel.

2,754 from 1st Marine Division Return to U. S.

San Diego, Cal., July 7 (AP).—Nearly 3,000 members of the famed 1st marine division, first to see action in the Pacific ground warfare, reached their main objective today—home. Maj. William J. Piper Jr., Shelton, Conn., was senior officer aboard the transport which brought the veterans home, lined the rails with 2,743 other leathernecks. Most of the marines had been away 26 months and engaged in action on Guadalcanal, Tulagi, Gavutu, Tananbogo, and Cape Gloucester.

COL. VANDEGRIFT IS WOUNDED IN SAIPAN FIGHT

Washington, D. C., July 7 (AP).—Lt. Gen. Alexander A. Vandegrift, commandant of the marines, was notified today that his son, Lt. Col. A. A. Vandegrift Jr., marines, has been wounded in action on Saipan.

Young Vandegrift, 33, was shot in the leg while leading an infantry battalion against the Japanese in heavy fighting June 28 around Mount Tapotchau.

He previously had participated with the 4th marine division in the assaults on Roi and Namur in the Marshall Islands last February.

ALBERTA VOTES AUG. 8; FIRST TIME SINCE '40

EDMONTON, Alta., July 7 (AP).—General elections will be held in Alberta Aug. 8, Premier E. C. Manning announced today, with nominating day July 29.

The last Alberta election was in 1940, when the Social Credit government was returned to power. It first took over the government in 1935, sweeping out of office the United Farmers of Alberta.

Quebec also will have a provincial election Aug. 8. Saskatchewan voted June 15, electing the first Cooperative Commonwealth federation government in Canada.

ONE TRIBUNITE A NAZI CAPTIVE; ANOTHER HURT

Sgt. Robert Freislinger, 23, who was reported missing in action over Austria May 24, is a prisoner of war in Germany, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Julius Freislinger, 56 E. Chicago av., have been informed. Before his enlistment in October, 1943, he was employed in The Tribune rotogravure pressroom.

Sgt. Freislinger was on his 27th mission when the B-24 Liberator on which he was engineer gunner failed to return to its base in Italy. According to the war department, only two parachutes were seen to leave the craft, which was disabled in a daylight raid.

Sgt. John W. Sonley, formerly a police guard for THE TRIBUNE, has been discharged from a hospital in Italy after being treated for a wound behind one ear, he wrote his wife, who lives at 6947 Ada st. Sonley worked for THE TRIBUNE several years before entering the army in October, 1942. He has served in Africa and Italy. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. Fred Sonley, 950 W. Marquette rd.

THE TWO GREAT POWERS.

Secretary Hull's proposal for an international conference on post-war plans has run into a stumbling block, reported to be Russia. The Russians are understood to be unwilling to disturb their good relations with our enemies, the Japanese, by sitting down in any multilateral conference with the Chinese, but, further than that, Stalin apparently does not wish at this time to set down on paper any of his proposals for post-war security.

This, of course, is in line with Russian policy as it is disclosed in the day to day conduct of the war. If there are any one-worlders or proponents of an international police force in Russia, Stalin is not letting their views get abroad. From every appearance his post-war plans rest on the age old principle that the strong must depend upon their own strength.

The talk that four great powers will order the affairs of the world after the German and Japanese military machines have been destroyed is devoid of reality. There are in the world today, disregarding our sinking antagonists, two great powers. They are the United States and Russia. Both have the people, the resources, and the territory. There are more Russians than Americans, but our resources are better integrated and their development further advanced. The Russian territory abuts on Europe while ours is separated from other powers by two oceans. The Russians have to guard against attack from the west and east, but in compensation they are able to exert their force to influence their European neighbors. Our power of intervention is less but the danger of our being invaded is less.

China has a huge population, but its people, whatever their attractive moral qualities, are largely untrained in technology and lack the equipment of industrial civilization. They occupy a wide land, but appear to lack enough of the resources on which modern industry is based to give the Chinese nation power commensurate with its numbers. If the resources exist in the required quantities in western China they have still to be discovered and exploited. China may be a great power in the next century, but hardly in this.

This war has demonstrated the insufficiency of British power and Great Britain will come out of it with far less power than she had upon entering it. It is certainly thru no lack of effort or self-sacrifice that the British have failed to produce in this war the power that made them the leader of world affairs in the 19th century. They have subjected themselves, of necessity, to greater personal privations than it has been necessary to impose on the people of this country. They have regimented themselves in an effort to make effective use of every pound of raw material and every hour of man power, but they started under the handicap of obsolescence in many branches of industry.

Britain has been found wanting, not in spirit, but in resources. There are not enough people, there is not enough natural wealth, and the home islands are too vulnerable to attack. The war has demonstrated, and the robot plane has made the lesson more vivid, that whoever holds the near-by shores of the continent has a weapon pointed at the heart of Britain. The military potential of industry must be discounted heavily when it is subject to destruction by the enemy.

Never again can it be said that the British fleet is the shield of the United States, after a war in which the American navy has carried the whole burden of the war in the Pacific and still has been able to dispatch powerful fleets to assist the British in the Indian ocean, the Mediterranean, and the channel itself. The news from France suggests that more than half of the troops so far engaged in Normandy have been Americans.

Nor has the decline of the British potential been solely in the military field. Great Britain will end this war with a large proportion of her foreign investments wiped out. Argentina probably has enough blocked pounds today to liquidate every British investment in that country. Canada, instead of being a debtor to the mother country, has the mother country on the cuff. The dominions no longer are content to supply raw materials in exchange for manufactured goods. Not only are they building up their own industry, but they find themselves increasingly able to finance their own industrial expansion.

Britain still has great resources, but they are more and more those of the spirit. The British are the world's greatest salesmen, whether of manufactures for export or of political arrangements. Great Britain can be depended upon to use every effort available to it to preserve as much of its pre-war position as it can, and, with changing conditions within and without the empire, it is obvious that the support that structure has given British power in the past must be supplemented. Thus it is expectable that proposals for world security should come from the British. Some such plan is essential to their survival as a first rate power.

Russia does not see the need for such arrangements and has made no move toward accepting. They are equally unnecessary to the United States. Our attitude should be that of the customer listening to the salesman. It is not for us to propose. Those Americans, found principally along the eastern seaboard, who have been most active in such proposals are speaking not for Americans but for a British social structure, into the lower strata of which they hope to climb if colonialism can be revived in this country.

A PREVENTABLE TRAGEDY?

Nearly 150 persons, about 100 of them children, died the other day when fire swept the tent of the Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey circus at Hartford, Conn. The blaze started in the canvas sidewalls and spread swiftly thru the top.

Probably the first question which occurred to most people who read of this tragedy was whether the canvas couldn't have been fireproofed to prevent such a disaster. It could have been. Canvas converting companies in Chicago say that all government tenting and duck ordered for the army, navy, and marine corps must be treated against fire. The process used under government specifications makes the fabric flameproof, fireproof, and waterproof, and protects it against mildew as well. Several American companies offer this treatment at a cost of about 10 to 18 cents a square yard. While the work is now done under priorities, one company reported that it had several orders granted priority as essential to public safety and health. The fireproofing treatment is good for at least two to three years in the North American climate.

At this writing no formal testimony has been taken on the Hartford circus disaster, but one city official there is reported to have said that the circus tent was of new material, sprayed with a combination of gasoline and paraffin. The canvas converters say that this is a waterproofing treatment which, if anything, adds to the fire hazard. It is difficult to believe that experienced showmen and their insurance companies failed to take every known precaution against fire, but certainly nothing can be taken for granted in this matter.

GEN. DE GAULLE'S BID FOR POWER.

Gen. De Gaulle is in Washington, the administration has taken pains to make clear, as a distinguished guest rather than a diplomat. He can't be a diplomat unless he has a government to represent, and the United States has refused until now to recognize that the organization that he heads is the government of France.

It is that recognition, of course, that he seeks. It may well be that he will be content with the substance and let the shadow of formal recognition go. If he should get control of the gold, more than 2 billion dollars worth, that the government of France stored in this country before its fall, and control of the civil administration of French territory as it is liberated by our and the British armies, it would matter little whether his group were known as a committee or as the provisional government of France. He would be the works.

Gen. De Gaulle is playing for great stakes—the rule of a nation of some 40 million people and an empire stretched around the globe. In his quest he has pursued a high handed and temperamental course that has tempted every one who has had to deal with him to tell him to go jump in the lake. His stand has been that he is France. He does not ask recognition; he demands it—but it may be doubted that he has earned it, or that such obligations as this nation has to the people of France will be served by granting it.

When Churchill's proposal of a joint citizenship and a further French resistance directed from Africa were rejected, all that the British had left was this officer whose previous obscurity had been relieved only by the publication of a book on armored tactics which it was said the Germans had read while his own army ignored it. De Gaulle started out as a sort of house Frenchman for the British empire.

He did not prove to be a great military asset at the beginning. British and American diplomacy and arms gained control of more French territory than did De Gaulle's proclamations. It was Darlan, the collaborationist, not De Gaulle, the patriot, who turned the African invasion from a hazardous enterprise to a quick and overwhelming success.

In the political sphere De Gaulle was undoubtedly more effective. He became the symbol on free soil of French resistance and the patron of the French underground movement. When Russia was forced into the war the French Communists threw their considerable strength into that movement, and De Gaulle quickly reached a working arrangement with them. His committee stepped into French Africa and in the face of considerable American opposition was permitted to set up a provisional government there.

Out of De Gaulle's control of North Africa came a new French army, equipped by the United States, which has acquitted itself well under Gen. Juin in Italy. De Gaulle's civil administration has been less attractive. He has been less than coöperative with American forces on occasions, and he has pursued a vindictive and bloody policy against his political rivals that does not augur well for the healing of French schisms if he gets control of France.

De Gaulle has pledged himself to restoration of the French republic, with the proviso that it must be purged of disloyal officials. His definition of disloyalty could, of course, leave none but De Gaullists in power. Such of his ideas of government as have become known follow totalitarian, but not necessarily communist, lines. Some of them, in fact, are not too far removed from the mystical maunderings of old Marshal Petain. The French professional army has never been noted as a school of political liberalism.

Our obligation to the people of France who are being liberated by our army is confined to giving them the kind of government they want. If De Gaulle is granted even provisional power over them, it is not certain that they will have an election to express those wishes, and that the election will be free. If, of course, they want De Gaulle, as many of them in liberated Normandy seem to, that is their own business.

Select the answers which you consider best. The last problem counts five points. Then look for the correct answers below.

1. Astigmatism refers to a disorder of which bodily organ?
   Liver Ear Heart Eye.
2. A statue inscribed MCCCCXCII would probably represent Julius Caesar Columbus Washington Lincoln.
3. The caliber of a bullet refers to which of these characteristics?
   Length, Diameter, Range, Amount of powder.
4. A Waldorf salad would be characterized by which one of these?
   Lettuce Apple Carrot Cucumber.
5. A girl is eligible for membership in the Girl Scouts at what age? 8 10 12 14.

[a] Lye	[v] Acetic acid
[b] Sugar	[w] Sodium chloride
[c] Salt	[x] Sodium hydroxide
[d] Vinegar	[y] Sodium bicarbonate
[e] Baking soda	[z] Sucrose

Score yourself as follows: 0-2, poor; 3-6, average; 7-8, superior; 9-10, very superior. [Note—The last question counts five points.]

MR. PEPYS CELEBRATES.

8th July—Celebrated the Fourth of July by joining a large assembly at Wrigley field and watching the Cubs climb out of the cellar. Felt much uplifted by this noble spectacle and cheered lustily for the gallant lads, especially when they made home runs inside the park, which curiously enough came out in the box score as two-base hits. Maybe the experts think that way, but to me it is always a home run when the batter scampers all the way around the bases while the ball is in play, and a more diverting spectacle than when the ball goes over the fence.

Then to my word-spinning cage at home, for Tuesday is always a two-column day for me, no matter what the law says about it being legal to loaf. Came the laundryman the next morning to announce a two weeks' armistice in picking up bundles, because of the numerous holidays enjoyed by the help from July 1 to July 4, inclusive. In this crisis, went to a Chinese cash-and-carry laundry to ask if it could tide me over, and was told by Little Ah Sid, "No takee no new customer."

It seems that laundries are the most exclusive clubs in town at present. Shall write a letter to Secretary Morgenthau, telling him, if he wants to sell more war bonds, to give away laundry memberships with every $1,000 purchase.

Did a mite of broadcasting on the Words and Rhythm radio program, by request. It seems that this column is the theme of Words and Rhythm didoes for the next few days, and the merry lads at the W-G-N mike, who have to remember songs containing words picked out of the Line o' Type column, have asked me to use nothing but short words for a while. Am wondering if four-letter words will do. Can think of some bell-ringers, in several languages.

MARCO POLO HANK.

"O, dear," said F. D. R. one day, "what can I do with Hank?
He's got to be my next V. P., and folks think he's a crank.
The nuisance of election means we've got to make a bluff
To cater to the dopes that vote, and all that kind of stuff;
To go thru all the motions of another draft for me;
Why won't they take my word for Hank, and let the matter be?"

Then up spoke Hannegan, or Ick, or maybe Harry Hop:
"What Henry needs is glamor, Chief, to bring him out on top.
He goes around declaiming that he's for the 'common man,'
And no one ever heard of one since your New Deal began;
He won't grow up; he reads the stars; his dome is in the clouds;
What Henry needs is glamor, Chief, to sell him to the crowds.

"We'll send him on a trip some place, where he can do no harm,
A Marco Polo trip routine is just what Henry needs,
With lots of roto pictures of him passing out free seeds,
And talking to some common men who haven't any vote—
In China, or Siberia—somewhere that's quite remote."

Now Henry is a worthy guy; he did as he was told;
With Lease and Lend they were content; he tried to keep them sold.
Some friendly papers mentioned one Siberian harangue
In China he played volley ball, and ate with Chiang Kai-shek—
But he'll be back; the voters still have Henry on their neck.

The Problem of Pie a la Mode.

"Waiter, will you bring me some apple pie à la mode?"

"Sorry, sir, we are not permitted to serve both pie and ice cream together. I can serve either of them."

"O, sure, I should have known better than to ask. Now, let me see—I can order anything I wish à la carte, can't I?"

"Certainly, sir."

"Well, bring me a piece of apple pie."

"Yes, sir."

"And a dish of ice cream."

UNDERNUTRITION FROM DIET FADS.

WHEN we encounter disorders of the digestive tract we usually look for trouble within the stomach, the first portion of the intestine [the duodenum], or the colon. Too little attention is given to the possibility that the small bowel may be responsible.

There has been a revival of interest in this part of our anatomy. Enough information has been obtained to warrant the suggestion that this structure constitutes the chief absorbing surface, particularly for vitamins. In other words, anything which disturbs its normal behavior may lead to a nutritional deficiency. Symptoms then appear, varying from loss of appetite to grumbling pain, and accumulation of gas, nausea, and diarrhea.

Learner and his colleagues, who have made numerous studies of this area, recognize a pattern which is characteristic. One of their patients was brought to the hospital with heart failure. With this emergency under control, the individual was ordered to reduce and was placed on a thousand calorie diet. Months later she returned, complaining of nausea and lack of appetite. X-ray plates showed the typical markings within the small bowel. Vitamins were then prescribed. Response was prompt. Within two or three weeks further films revealed a perfectly healthy structure.

Another of their cases had exhibited diarrhea for several years. The victim had decreased his food intake sharply. Examination disclosed a shortage of all the vitamins as well as too little calcium in the circulation. In addition to a substantial number of stools daily, he mentioned pain and weakness in the legs. The best that could be done was to ameliorate gross symptoms and control signs of scurvy—bleeding gums, etc. This emphasizes again that if we indulge in dietary fads it is important that we limit the period. Carrying on such a program for a long time is risky.

Whenever X-rays reveal that the small intestine is abnormal, several questions may be asked—for example, are the menus well planned? Is a psychic disturbance at fault? Is the percentage of calcium in the system depleted? Is the protein level of the blood too low?

More often than not, the cause will be a gross neglect of properly balanced meals. Slight failures will not show in this manner, but, in the presence of gaseous distress and general discomfort—when combined with a distaste for food—we may well consider the need for extra quantities of vitamin B.

When should we be on the watch for a type of nutrition which is quite too scanty for vigor? This may present itself during a slimming program. This explains why not more than a pound a week should be shed—unless the excess is due to accumulated fluid.

There are other conditions, such as vomiting or diarrhea, which may rid the body of essential edibles long before absorption can take place. But it is probably the diet crank who experiences the most trouble. Many patients will come from the upper brackets of intelligence. They have been overpersuaded with some alleged "Hollywood" schedule, which is dangerous if not devastating. We observe, in consequence, irritable colons, nervous indigestion, and abdominal pain. I have in mind a matron of sizable proportions who, in desperation, confined herself to tea and toast. About the fourth or fifth day she developed a sore tongue and wondered why. Only with restoration of regular food requirements were further indications of inadequate nutriment banished.

We regret to report that, while ultimate recovery is confidently expected, an esteemed colleague of ours is for the moment virtually deprived of the use of both arms. He is, so far as we know, the last survivor of that once numerous tribe of gentlemen who long ago decided that life without sleeve garters would be intolerable. Now he has lost his last pair and his appeals have fallen on deaf ears. The government, having learned that the victim is a Republican, says it can't spare the elastic for replacement.

Time was when the unfortunate fellow possessed one of the world's finest collections of sleeve garters. He had pink ones, blue ones, lavender ones, white, black, gray, green, and yellow, enough to match every shirt. Now—none.

So he waits and hopes, using his left hand only to pull up his right sleeve, his right to adjust the left, and is saved from madness only by the blessed coming of the night. Bear up, O. D., bear up.

THE ENGLISH LANGUAGE FOREIGN PRESS.

Washington, D. C., July 3.—The New York Times says, "The Republican party still contains a strong isolation faction represented by certain die-hard newspapers in the middle west." In the first place, isolation is a foreignism, derived from the word island, and was used by England to designate her foreign policy thruout the 18th and 19th centuries, and has therefore no place in the vocabulary of the American people of the continental United States.

It would seem to be the self-conceived function of our English language foreign press of the Atlantic seaboard to import these foreignisms and choke them down the throats of the American people.

Every real American must thank God that there are American newspapers and men and women in this country who are determined to preserve the institutions, principles, and traditions of the founders of the Republic, for what will be left if they are lost?

From the time of the birth of the Republic there have been factions on the eastern seaboard whose gaze was fixed on Europe and their backs turned on America. Jefferson knew them and dismissed their vaporings with contempt.

OUR GUARANTORS.

Barrington, Ill., July 4.—Economist Keynes has proposed a world bank, to which money from various countries will be loaned to reconstruct war torn countries. Could it be our guarantors are the same ones who haven't paid their debts from the last war?

"THE FOLLOWING PROGRAM IS TRANSCRIBED:"

Chicago, June 29.—Whether I tune in on WEA 1212, morning, noon or night, or even after midnight, that same sweet, unctuous, ingratiating voice drones out the official weather report. Now the question is, does that sweet, unctuous, ingratiating voice ever sleep?

She surely deserves a gold medal for efficiency and stick-to-it-iveness. What a gem!

FATHER SCHILDGEN.

SHE LIKED IT.

Greybull, Wyo., June 30.—Radio commentators are very scornful of the recent speech Rep. Clare Boothe Luce delivered at the Republican convention in Chicago. They forget to take into account the millions of mothers, wives, and relatives of G. I. Joe and G. I. Jim who listened and applauded her for a speech which will go down in history.

MRS. FRANK KELLERSMAN.

ACCENT ON YOUTH.

Winnetka, Ill., July 4.—The nomination of Thomas E. Dewey by the Republican party shows a sense of the trend of the times—the rising preeminence of a new, youthful leadership in the nation. It symbolizes a desire of the new world to be done with the quarrels and bickerings of the old, and on its way. It gives hope to our young men when they have shaken off the shackles of war, of a return to a revitalized nation, inspired with the spirit of youth and hope and confidence in the future. The accomplishments of this young man again exemplify that the possibility of success in a free America is still dependent upon the labor and effort of the individual.

The candidacy of this able, youthful executive presages an end to an administration "grown old in office—tired and quarrelsome." The accent is on youth—youth is on the ascent.

GRANDMOTHER.

POLL TAXES AND FLOATERS.

Chicago, July 1.—A great ado is raised about the poll tax states.

A state lying on the Canadian border, where I was born and raised, has always had a poll tax, and in 25 years in that state, I never heard a word against it.

If the average good citizen could spend election day, as the writer does, at the polls, and see the ward-heelers of both parties bring in the illiterate, the feeble-minded, the drunken bums, and the panhandlers to vote, it is my belief that he or she would be heartily in favor of more, better, and bigger poll taxes, and restrictions on the right to vote.

CHICAGO POLICEMAN.

TRIBUTE TO THE MAKEUP EDITOR.

Chicago, June 28.—The object of this letter is to pay tribute to whoever arranges the news in THE TRIBUNE. It makes clear the location of anything continued from the first page. If one is specifically interested in some picture appearing on the back page of the second section, the caption correctly indicates the exact location of the reading matter pertaining to it.

H. M. RILEY.

ACCOMMODATING POLICEMEN.

Chicago, July 3.—Hats off and many thanks to the very gracious plain-clothes men in a squad car on the Outer dr. who came to my rescue at 5:00 o'clock last Saturday and changed a flat tire for me.

MRS. JOHN B. MURPHY.

FRIEND OF THE PEOPLE

NO BIRTH RECORD.

Chicago, July 6.—My husband was born in Indiana but he has been unable to get a birth certificate because the doctor in attendance, who has since died, did not notify the recorder's office. It is necessary for him to have evidence of his birth. Can you suggest a way out of his predicament? L. L.

Illinois has liberal provisions for delayed registration but Indiana does not. If your husband's record is not available and cannot be supplied, he cannot get a birth certificate. The alternative is to try to induce prospective employers, etc., to be satisfied with such church records, Bible entries, etc., as he can supply.

Music and Turf Events Assure Full Week-End

BY JUDITH CASS.

MUSIC and horse enthusiasts will have a busy week-end, with concerts tonight at Ravinia park and Grant park and again tomorrow afternoon at Ravinia, the Arlington Park races today at Washington Park, and a horse show tomorrow at the Knollwood Country club.

Among the many parties before tonight's Ravinia park concert, at which Joseph Szigeti, violinist, will be the guest artist, are a dinner the Harold O. McLains will give at the Exmoor Country club and one which Mrs. Louis Eckstein will give at the Lake Shore Country club. The McLains also will have guests at tomorrow's concert, when Jennie Tourel, mezzo-soprano, will sing. The Donald R. McLennans and the Jack Spachners also are entertaining tonight.

Tonight's program at Grant park will be a broadcast of the W-G-N Theater of the Air from 8 to 9 o'clock, followed by an additional hour of music dramatizing excerpts from the life of Mendelssohn. The newly organized Grant Park Symphony orchestra and bands from Great Lakes and Fort Sheridan appear nightly in the Grant park bandshell.

Knollwood Horse Show.

The youngest generation will be out in full force for the Knollwood Amateur Horse show, for, beginning with little tots in a lead rein class on thru junior jumpers, there are many classes planned especially for youngsters. Some of those who have given trophies for the various events are George Rossetter, president of the club; the Charles Steeles, Paul Butler, the Louis F. Swifts, the Donald Boweys, and Mrs. James E. Baggot Jr. Mrs. Steele again painted the attractive parking signs—and all the parking spaces have been sold, incidentally—and Mrs. Thomas McDermand and Mrs. Lucius Teeter executed the clever posters heralding the show.

Men and women in uniform will be admitted free to the show. Refreshments will be available to supplement the picnic luncheons which many will bring, and exhibitors and their guests will have luncheon at the clubhouse. Selling programs will be Miss Joan Monroe, Miss Martha Stephens, Miss Jeannette Hurley, Miss Flossie Curtis, Miss Jane Stevens, Miss Lucile McGowan, and Mrs. Lawrence Denman. Col. Chester L. Fordney of the marines will pin ribbons on the winners.

Birth News.

Uri B. Grannis has been receiving more than his share of congratulations in the last few weeks, during which two new grandchildren arrived, the second of which is carrying on his name. Lt. and Mrs. Grannis Jr. [Marjory Banks] became the parents of a son, their second child, last Sunday in Silver Springs, Md., where they are living while Lt. Grannis is stationed in Washington, D. C., with the navy. The day before Uri Balcom III. arrived his father was promoted to a senior grade lieutenant. The baby has a 2½ year old brother, Alexander Banks Grannis. On June 19, the W. C. Dustin Grannises became the parents of a daughter, and shortly afterward Lt. Grannis was promoted from lieutenant to captain in the army. He is stationed in New London, Conn., and his wife and baby, who was named for Capt. Grannis' mother, the late Jane Given Grannis, are in Petersburg, Va., with young Mrs. Grannis' parents.

Tomorrow's Events.

Leonard Bernstein, who is conducting this week's concerts at Ravinia park, will be the special guest at a benefit musical for which Mr. and Mrs David Dushkin will open their Winnetka home tomorrow. David Moll, violinist, and Agatha Lewis, lyric soprano, will give a joint recital. The program is sponsored by the north shore group of the joint anti-Fascist refugees committee, which is in the midst of a campaign to raise money for the relief and rehabilitation of International Brigadiers and Spanish Republican refugees who have been freed from concentration camps in Spain and North Africa. Members of the committee include Rudolph Ganz, Kenneth Colegrove, Curtiss MacDougall, Mrs. Mitchell D. Follansbee, and Judge John Gutknecht.

The Service club will give another of its popular U. S. O. parties from 3 to 7 p. m. tomorrow at the headquarters at 131 S. Wabash av. under the direction of Mrs. Frank Nahser and Mrs. Leland R. Newell. The regular Sunday luncheon will be followed by tea-dancing.

Movie, 'Ladies in Washington,' Is Well Done

"LADIES IN WASHINGTON."

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

The housing shortage is only one of the reasons why maids go mad in Washington. There also is the man shortage. . . .

"Ladies in Washington" tells a melodramatic little story about a bunch of nice war working femmes whose happiness is menaced by a snake in the grass.

SPAR Carol [Trudy Marshall] who had known Snake Jerry [Sheila Ryan] in other days when she was an unhappy, poorly oriented youngster, invites her to share with her and several other girls "the hen coop," a cooperative residence owned by a kindly old fellow the girls call "Mother." Jerry, at the moment, is out of a job, due to an affair with her employer which had been terminated by the latter's reconciliation with his wife. . . .

The sullen, dark damsel moves in—and with her—trouble. In all ways that matter she is an unscrupulous gal, but because of some beauty and a certain amount of charm she fools a number of people for awhile. Her association with handsome Michael Romanesque [Anthony Quinn], who turns out to be a foreign agent, leads to a murder which implicates for a time some mighty nice people. Eventually, however, the truth comes out—and the picture ends.

Trudy Marshall is delightful as Carol. There's a wholesomeness about her that is refreshing—and she's awfully pretty. Miss Ryan is a slinky and ominous siren. A cute trick named Robin Raymond drives a taxi and contributes considerably to your entertainment with her quips and detecting prowess. Anthony Quinn is a fascinating heavy, and I think you'll like Ronald Graham as Dr. Mayberry, Carol's fiance, and Robert Bailey as an intern whose interest in Jerry threatens to ruin his career. . . . Other roles are nicely handled.

Action spins along interestingly under apt direction.

See you soon.

Brazilian Will Be Speaker for Pan-American Council

The Pan-American council will have as its guest at a language tea tomorrow the Brazilian educator, the Rev. Savoia Madeiros, dean of the philosophy department at the Catholic university in Rio de Janeiro. A member of the Jesuit order, Father Madeiros is in Chicago to visit Loyola university. As a guest of the state department, he also is visiting several other educational institutions in this country. His talk tomorrow will be on "The Cultural Background of Brazil." The meeting will be at 3 p. m. in the Woodrow Wilson room at 84 E. Randolph st. Another special guest at the tea will be Robert C. Jones, former council director here, who now is with the division of labor and social information of the Pan-American union in Washington, D. C.

Kappa Delta Council to Be N. U. Tea Guests

Northwestern university chapter members and north shore alumnae of Kappa Delta sorority have invited members of the sorority's national council, who are holding a business conference at the Medinah club, to a tea at 3 p. m. today in the chapter house at Evanston. Mrs. Herbert Mueller of Evanston, national membership director, has assisted Miss Pearl Brenk and Mrs. Edwin A. Faytinger, chapter and alumnae presidents, respectively, with plans for the party. Among the special guests will be Mrs. Walter E. Militzer of Lincoln, Neb., national president of the sorority, who is conducting the conference.

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., July 7.—Charlie Brackett doesn't know whether he and Billy Wilder can pull it off or not, but they sure would like to have Katharine Hepburn opposite Ray Milland in "Lost Week-end." As the girl's part is being written, she'll have the same strength of character Katie displayed in "Bill of Divorcement." In that, she had the advice and guidance of John Barrymore. . . . Cary Grant has played practically every type of role, but never a western. Don't be too surprised if he and Sam Wood get together and make "Jubal Troop." Cary would like a dose of Sam's direction, and Sam could do with the latter's charm, not to mention acting ability.

Notes on Our Travelers.

Carole Landis has been added to Jack Benny's overseas troupe. . . . Gracie McDonald is leaving on another eastern and middle western tour of hospitals. Gracie's one gal who can do something besides talk. She sings and dances. . . . Lt. Comdr. Jack Dempsey's first stop here was to visit Mercedes Marlowe in a local hospital. . . . Anna Lee and her bridegroom, Capt. George Stafford, are back home. Vera Vague is being a good sport about Bob Hope's refusal to give her permission to head her own radio show. . . . Don Ameche is flirting with the idea of doing a play on Broadway, also directing it.

The Set-up Is Different.

The Jan Kiepuras are back in town. I suppose Jan will try for another picture. He must be regretting the fact that while he was here before he did nothing to influence people and make friends. . . . Is it true what they say about Bob Howard and Andrea Leeds—that it won't be long before an announcement is forthcoming? . . . Linda Darnell is so upset over those divorce rumors that when Pev Marley goes golfing she carries his bag. . . . When Paramount biggies saw sneak preview of "Practically Yours," they gnashed their teeth for letting Fred MacMurray slip thru their fingers. They might have retained Fred's services if they'd granted him one outside picture a year.

Hope Springs Eternal.

Rita Hayworth's uncle, an Arthur Murray instructor here, has pupils standing in line waiting for him, hoping they'll turn out to be other Ritas. . . . Eddie Horton had better look out or the OPA will be after him. He has 200 chickens which are multiplying fast. They've all become pets and he can't kill 'em. Eddie's not sure yet whether he'll do a New York play this fall. . . . Lloyd Nolan is wearing his pals down with the razzle-dazzle rave he puts on about Dorothy McGuire's performance in "A Tree Grows in Brooklyn." We know she's good. I'm wondering if Lloyd isn't influenced because in this he wins the girl, and the girl happens to be Dorothy. Ferike Boros, in the same picture, met Lee Shubert, who'll take back to New York two of her plays for consideration—"Desperate Bachelor" and "Eternal Power."

It Could Happen—and Did.

The other day Sam Goldwyn was watching Danny Kaye and Vera-Ellen rehearse, so he invited them to lunch. They had fun, and stayed an hour and a half. When Sam returned to his office, he called up Studio Manager Harvey Foster and said, "What goes on? They should take only an hour for lunch." "Can I help it if they were lunching with you?" asked Foster. "Well, I suggest you resign!" said Goldwyn, and Foster did. . . . Ramsey Ames and Emil Coleman whipped up two songs for R. K. O.'s "Pan-Americana." . . . Groucho Marx won, on a bad debt, a blacksmith shop, so Dick Mack asked, "What are you going to do with it?" Groucho replied, "Turn out horseshoes for the whole family." . . . Susan Hayward had a letter from a former schoolmate, Sgt. Oscar Collins, who wrote: "That first night on the Normandy beachhead, I was so scared I walked off with the jitterbug contest and wasn't even dancing." . . . Doris Kenyon and Nelson Eddy will be co-hosts with service officers at Miss Kenyon's Brentwood home Sunday. The party's sponsored by the Officers' club of Beverly-Wilshire. . . . When an actor in "Tomorrow the World" said to Director Leslie Fenton, "Look, Fenton, I feel the scene this way—do you mind if I do it that way?" "Sure," said Leslie, "roll 'em." After the take Fenton took the film out of the camera, placed it neatly in a can and gave it to the actor, and said, "Okay, you've had your way. Now let's do it mine."

The dedication of the Gardiner General hospital at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow will be the occasion for the presentation to the hospital of a posthumous portrait of the late Lt. Ruth M. Gardiner, for whom the hospital was named. Lt. Gardiner was the first army flight nurse to be killed in this war. Edmund Giesbert, who painted the portrait, will make the presentation. Mr. Giesbert teaches at the School of the Art institute.

Engagements

Mr. and Mrs. John B. Schneider of Oglesby av. announce the engagement of their daughter, Gloria Marie, to Warren John Klopsch of the naval reserve, son of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Klopsch of Jeffery av. Miss Schneider will enter the University of Chicago in the fall. Her fiancé attended Wilson Junior college and the University of Illinois and now is enrolled in the university's college of medicine under the navy V-12 program.

Mrs. Claude B. Connelly of Wilmette announces the engagement of her daughter, Shirley Irene, to Corp. Joseph Gerard Frey of the army air forces, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Frey of New York. Miss Connelly, niece of Corp. Edward J. Barrett of the marines and Mrs. Barrett, attended Northwestern university. Corp. Frey is stationed in Nebraska.

Helen Niblack to Be Among Brides Today

BY HARRIETT PRIBBLE.

A large circle of the Austin Niblacks' relatives and friends will gather at the Church of the Holy Spirit in Lake Forest at 5 p. m. today for the marriage of their daughter, Helen, to Ensign William Gordon Lyle Jr. Here for the ceremony and reception to follow at the Onwentsia club are Ensign Lyle's mother, Mrs. Lyle of New York; his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. John Lyle of Toronto, Ont., and the bride's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. John Stearns of New York.

In the bridal party preceding Miss Niblack to the altar will be Mrs. Arthur Davis Fulton Jr., the former Sarah Fenton King, as matron of honor; Ensign Lyle's sister, Leontine, as maid of honor, and five bridesmaids: Miss Lucy Mitchell of Boyce, Va., Miss Lina Wild of Milwaukee, Miss Nancy Cochran, Miss Olive Robbins, and Miss Polly Porter. Lt. Joseph Downer, a Harvard classmate of the bridegroom who is stationed with the army in Texas, is to be best man. Ushering will be Lt. Donald Cain, Lt. Danforth Holly, Ensign Walter Taylor, Lt. Comdr. Henry Timothy Russell, Lt. Andrew Bulkley, and the bride's brother, Albert Niblack. Ensign Lyle is stationed at the naval training school at Northwestern university.

The marriage of Miss Ruth Breen to Lt. Earl E. Matthews of the army at 10 a. m. today in St. Francis Xavier's church in Wilmette will be followed by a reception in the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John A. Breen of Winnetka. Mrs. Breen Jr. will be matron of honor for her sister-in-law, and Miss Dorothy Grossmann will serve as bridesmaid. Lt. Matthews, son of Mr. and Mrs. Engene H. Matthews of Tabor, Ia., will have his brother, David, as best man, and the bride's brothers, Robert and John A. Breen Jr., as ushers. After a short wedding trip, Lt. Matthews and his bride will be at home near his post at Camp Ellis, Ill.

The marriage of Miss Evelyn Ward to Chief Petty Officer Raymond J. Murphy of the navy will take place at 10:30 a. m. today in Our Lady of Peace cathedral, with a breakfast following in the Windermere hotel and a reception at 5 p. m. in the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Damien J. Ward of Merrill av. Miss Ward will have her sister, Frances, as maid of honor, and Miss Virginia Furlong as bridesmaid. Paul Lothrop will serve as best man and Charles Barrett as usher.

Mr. Murphy, son of Mrs. William Murphy of E. 69th st., will report to Providence, R. I., later in the month. He has served 18 months in Africa since entering the navy. His bride attended Our Lady of Peace school, Longwood academy, and De Paul university.

The marriage of Miss Yvonne Crowley, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Edward X. Crowley of Glenwood av., to Lt. Donald K. Cardy of the army quartermaster corps, will take place at 10 a. m. today in the chapel of St. Ignatius church, with a breakfast following in the Edgewater Beach hotel. The bride attended Mundelein college and was an assistant to the food editor of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE. Her fiancé, who studied at Northwestern university, recently returned from two years' service in the South Pacific. After a wedding trip Lt. Cardy and his bride will go to his new post.

Following their marriage June 28, Lt. Hartwell Davis and his bride, the former Nancy Richards, went to Shreveport, La., to live, as he is stationed there with the army air forces. The ceremony took place at 8:30 p. m. in the First Methodist church of Wilmette, with a reception following in the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. James V. Richards of Wilmette. Lt. Davis is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Albion Davis of Webster Groves, Mo.

Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Smith of Downers Grove have announced the marriage June 9 in St. Andrews church of their daughter, Virginia B., to Harold L. Heskett, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Heskett of McCook, Neb.

Women in War Work

By Dorothy Johnson

[Official U. S. Navy Photo.]

effective Monday. The assignment attests Miss Bernatitus' ability, the result of varied experience over a period of almost eight years.

Lt. Bernatitus believes the heroic work of nurses isn't brought sufficiently to public notice. However, mention of her own bravery under enemy fire at Bataan and Corregidor marks her extremely reticent, as are all war nurses. She admittedly is averse to interviewers.

"There is nothing to tell," she said to this reporter, her discerning blue eyes clouding momentarily with memories of around the clock care of the wounded in battle theater hospitals in the Philippines, work for which she received both the Legion of Merit, and a Presidential unit citation.

"There were so few to care for so many. Hours were unimportant," she said.

Then an ensign, Lt. Bernatitus was stationed at the navy hospital at Canacao, P. I., for a year and a half before the attack on Pearl Harbor. Japanese fire that December made it necessary to evacuate the installation's staff and patients to Manila. Lt. Bernatitus became one member of a five-person operating team, including two doctors and two corpsmen, assigned to army duty. Her unit was moved to Bataan Christmas eve. When the front lines drew back a month later, the unit moved down the peninsula to hospital No. 1, which was bombed twice, in March and again in April.

Miss Bernatitus and the team left Bataan two days before its fall, moving on to Corregidor, and leaving there, too, two days before "the rock" succumbed to the enemy.

The evacuation was made by submarine to Fremantle, Australia. Lt. Bernatitus, the only navy nurse to escape from the Philippines, spent 17 days in the submarine, which surfaced only at night. Her companions were 11 army nurses [one of whom, Capt. Ruth Straub, now is assistant chief nurse at Vaughan General hospital, Hines], a navy wife, six army colonels, and six navy officers.

Lt. Bernatitus, who is young and blonde and whose experiences have given to her intelligent features a look of serious gentleness, arrived in the United States from Australia two years ago this month. She served in the medical center, Washington, D. C., as chief nurse of sick officers' quarters for a year, and next as chief nurse in the dispensary of the 8th naval district headquarters in New Orleans, La., before coming to Great Lakes.

Miss Bernatitus, whose home is in Exeter, Pa., wants to go overseas again, this time to England, where her sister, 1st Lt. Alberta Bernatitus, is stationed as an army nurse.

Park Orchestra and Met Singer Perform Ably

BY CLAUDIA CASSIDY.

The news was good at Grant park last night. Not only had its newly organized symphony orchestra pulled itself into shape under the direction of Rudolph Ganz, but the soloist, Walter Cassel, scored a friendly success that was still exploring encores when I left the park. One of the newest young baritones of the Metropolitan Opera. Mr. Cassel recently has been in Los Angeles singing the role of Grieg in the popular new operetta, "Song of Norway." Confronted with an outdoor audience of thousands and a symphonic program, he probably didn't know just what to sing, so he felt his way around the repertory from opera to "Oklahoma!" and even managed some not too rueful jests about the wind in the sparse topknot of his blond hair.

Mr. Cassel has a big and resonant voice fresh in quality and exceptionally bright in timbre, with the high lyric range for "The Masked Ball's" "Eri Tu," tho not yet all the dexterity for its Verdian subtlety, and the robust roistering for the ageless "Mandalay." Last night he looked like an agreeable arrival, both with Mr. Ganz and the orchestra and with Robert Macdenald at the piano, but he could well afford to leave La Forge's "Hills" to the tender mercies of Bert Lahr, who knows exactly how to treat one of those intolerably he-man songs. Remember the dire fare of his baritone woodchopper?

Altho the orchestra's future looked much rosier last night, even in the handsome blue grotto that is now the band shell, the reassuring glow was delayed until after the overture to Wagner's "The Flying Dutchman," which couldn't get off the ground. But Mr. Ganz has an affinity for Beethoven's First Symphony and he gave it crisp performance somewhat on the small side, but clean, correct, and in character, with a finale that had true pace and sparkle. There was encouraging richness of tone, too, in Saint-Saëns Bacchanale from "Samson and Delilah" and in Victor Herbert's dulcet arrangement of Rimsky-Korsakoff's "Song of India," tho what Mr. Herbert had done to the same composer's "Dance of the Clowns" seems to have served him right for what many sticklers for the original of "Boris Godunoff" insist he did to Moussorgsky.

Catholic University Club Plans Outing Tomorrow

An afternoon of picnicking, swimming, fishing, tennis, and other sports is planned for tomorrow by the Chicago Catholic University club. The outing will be held in Pottawatomie park, which borders the Fox river near St. Charles. The party will board the 11:10 a. m. Aurora & Elgin train in the loop.

White Collar GIRL

BY RUTH MAC KAY

War Job.

A young New York business woman, trying to apportion her time among a home, a family, and a flourishing career, has found it necessary to engage household help to work in three shifts. Consequently, many valuable minutes are wasted checking to find if the appointed maids have appeared at the appointed time. Describing her predicament betwixt a responsible position—where she is needed—and a household—where she is needed—she summarized her troubles tersely: "If any one asks me what I did in the war effort I'll say I just coped!"

It Sticks in the Mind.

The rumor circulating in the Washington airport that Gen. Montgomery was there and the discovery that Gen. Montgomery was a beautiful, alert, red cocker spaniel belonging to Gen. Mason, named for the British general. Returned from overseas, in the pink of condition, the dog was traveling by plane.

The appropriate surname of the employment director of a large New York bank—Mr. Bombard.

The numerous white collar girls living in one time arty Greenwich Village . . . the Church of Ascension in the village where the girls light candles on the flag decked altar . . . the young woman strolling past our sidewalk cafe table and pointed out as holding a war job with the comment: "She works on Men's Wear!"

Advertising Head.

She began as a messenger girl at 14. At 17 Harriet Raymond had her own secretary and has had ever since. For six years now she has been advertising manager of Celanese Celluloid corporation.

Born in Brooklyn . . . coached girls in English while still in grammar school . . . always had a basic love of words . . . her father, an inventor, died and left her mother with two little girls . . . Harriet felt herself "the man of the family." "I always carried the suitcases when we went on trips," she recalls, a wiry, slight person with vitality enough for a half dozen people.

Her department now is "102 per cent feminine" . . . she has been the only woman present at New York Sales Executives' club luncheons . . . serves as educational director for the New York Advertising Women's club, teaching a class one night a week [in advertising] to assist other business women.

She believes wholeheartedly there is a place for women in advertising: "Women do 85 per cent of retail buying" . . . believes men and women should be on same level without patronizing, that the best job a woman does is to "help a good man" . . . believes women will remain in business "as supplementary creatures"—"men will continue to be the handshakers, contact makers, and salesmen."

She feels there is a place in advertising for the woman with a feeling for words ["childhood bedtime stories always made music to me"] . . . feels there is a place for one who likes research in advertising and also a place for women in the purchasing end of advertising . . . thinks a good job in advertising is one part creative and one part backing up the other fellow . . . is married . . . sweet-tempered . . . full of fun . . . and not too big an executive to lug around a cumbersome package and not mind a whit.

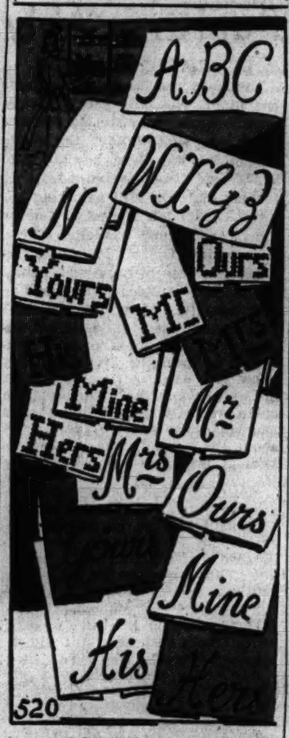
The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 club	Pass	3 no trump	Pass
4 clubs	Pass	6 clubs	Pass
Pass	Pass

West boldly opened from his king of spades. It was tempting, of course, for declarer to reach for the ace, since he easily could discard his second spade on the heart king, but looking far ahead, declarer saw that this would be tantamount to giving up his contract. Even tho he stripped the hand and threw a defender in with a diamond, and even if that defender did not have another diamond to cash, it would do South no good to get the opportunity for one diamond discard while he was ruffing in the other hand—he still would have to concede a second diamond trick.

That point established, declarer purposefully finessed the opening lead. When the spade queen held, he drew the outstanding trumps, cashed the top spade and the hearts, discarding a diamond from his own hand, then led the ace and a low diamond. East, thrown on lead, had to return a spade or a heart. Thereupon declarer got rid of his own last diamond while he ruffed in dummy.

Towel Motifs



BY NANCY CABOT.

A hot iron transfer pattern containing a complete alphabet and personalized motifs is a group every embroidery worker should have on hand. Personalized towels are ideal gifts. Started now, they will be ready when the first round of fall entertaining begins. These designs are executed in cross-stitch, outline, and satin stitches.

For the hot iron transfer pattern of the alphabet and personalized towel motifs, No. 520, send 10 cents in stamps or coin, plus 2 cents to cover mailing cost, to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 5th av., New York 11, N. Y.

Two navy yeomen, Ruth Lorene Laurence, 21, a WAVE of Boulder, Colo., and Donald Becher Arndt, 27, of Minneapolis, Minn., were married last night at St. John's Lutheran church in Wilmette. Their romance began in St. Louis, Mo., when the naval air primary training command, to which both are attached, was quartered there. It was moved to Glenview, Ill., recently.

Mrs. Arndt exercised the WAVES' prerogative of being married in bridal white and a veil rather than in uniform. She was attended by Yeoman Betty Hansen of Minneapolis, also of the WAVES, who was in uniform.

Mrs. Arndt is assigned to the office of Rear Adm. Osborne B. Hardison, chief of the command. Her husband is in the aviation training division. After a 10 day leave, they will report back for duty at Glenview.

Mrs. Arndt is the daughter of Sgt. and Mrs. Harry Laurence. Her father is with the army overseas.

Mrs. Ed. S., La Salle, Ill.—If you splattered some of the new types of rapid-drying wall paints on your woodwork, in process of painting, try removing with rubbing with every-day kitchen cleansing powder—abrasive powder. I find this is more effective than sandpaper or a razor blade.

Mrs. Morrow G., Evanston—I have hit on a way to use a small paint brush which I think is helpful. I treat it first with liquid furniture polish which makes the work of getting into floor and furniture corners much simpler.

Bob H., Chicago—Here's a hint to mothers with boys or girls who'll have to tote rulers to school next fall along with note books, etc. Last year I drilled holes in my ruler and slipped it over rings in my loose leaf note book. For the first year since I can remember—I always had my ruler where I could find it.

'One Is Missing'

By H. Vernor Dixon

(Copyright: 1944: By H. Vernor Dixon.)

INSTALMENT XII.

JAPANESE BASE.

Bart corrected Mae. "You are much in error, Miss Nolan. Capt. Reed has become a killing machine, by circumstance, but he is far from being cold blooded. He wouldn't admit it, even to himself, but he is very much a sentimentalist and a romanticist. How else could he have chosen the life he has led? Because of the war, tho, he has firmly closed the door on that side of his nature and has actually come to doubt that it ever did exist."

Mae pulled a small fern from the ground and thoughtfully shredded its fronds. "A romanticist," she echoed. "That, of course, I can't conceive at all. Tell me, Bart; he—ah—must have had someone he was, well, fond of. Some girl, I mean. You know, at some time in his life—"

She paused and a smile tugged at Bart's lips. "Well," he replied, "the captain had quite a reputation thru the islands, but not as a ladies' man."

"I didn't mean it that way."

"You mean, was there some one in particular?" He thought a moment, then shook his head. "No. No one. He enjoyed the company of a number of women, but he was never in love. Does that answer your question?"

Mae's cheeks flushed. "Yes. I—I was just wondering about it."

"Of course."

Mae looked down at the flat surface of the sea and decided to drop the conversation. It was becoming too dangerous.

She decided not to think of Jed Reed as an individual. The decision was no sooner made than she began wondering what it would be like to be held in his arms. A smile began to pull at one corner of her mouth.

When Jed awakened in the late afternoon he clasped his hands behind his head and stared up at the low, white beams over the bunk. It was raining outside, the normal Malayan cloudburst.

He was thinking of the two women, Mae and Ellen. Mae would fight for what she wanted of life and expect the worst. Behind her hard veneer of cynicism there was something shining and honest about the girl. But that veneer was important; as long as it remained, she would survive. If it cracked, for any reason, she would fade to dust.

He thought of Ellen Banning. She was soft, feminine, and seemingly weak, but about her was a wall of protection greater than Mae's; a shield of men. As long as that wall remained in place she, too, would survive.

Jed stared unseeingly into space. The thought had come to him that he was part of that wall and, of them all, he was the better equipped to stay on his feet to the last. "It boils itself down to a man and a woman," he thought. "The wrong man and the wrong woman. The others will certainly perish."

The thought irritated him and he snapped to his feet. As he dressed in his bush clothes the seed of escape was planted in his mind. He reviewed all possibilities, then swore under his breath: "I'm helpless."

He thought of another Jap garrison farther up the coast and stepped from the stateroom into the galley, again a cool, calculating machine of destruction. He smeared his face and arms with green paint, gathered all his paraphernalia and called Bart, who was sleeping like a child in the forecastle. Then he turned toward the main salon.

Mae was curled in a corner of the couch, half dozing in the stifling, humid heat. Ellen Banning was lying on a bunk across the room, frowning up at the ceiling. When she saw Jed she smiled at him, without effort. St. John and Banning were at the chart table, a blueprint of the schooner spread out before them. Jed looked over their shoulders at the print.

St. John said: "Just trying to grasp the layout a bit."

"Do you know something about boats?" Jed asked.

"Not as much as I should like to know at the moment. I've puttered about them a bit. Sailed in the Fastnet at one time."

Jed returned his smile. "That so? Interesting race. The best I've ever done was San Francisco to Diamond Head. This schooner. We placed third on corrected time."

"Well. Really!" St. John's eyes lighted with pleasure. "I say, we'll have to get together and talk over old times. "We're going to start work in the morning. You still don't mind, do you?"

"Not at all. Keep the rain out."

Mae turned her head and cried, "And that's about all. If you men think—"

Banning looked at them and asked, "Where do you go tonight?"

"Another small Jap garrison," Jed replied. "A salvage party, I believe, sent out to see what they can do about some abandoned tanks up the coast."

"O."

Jed looked about him and was suddenly conscious of the absence of the two pilots. He asked where they were and Banning replied, "Young Cary went out a couple of hours ago to examine that wrecked torpedo boat you were talking about. When he didn't come back I got a little worried and sent Tom out to find him."

Jed's green-streaked face darkened and he snapped, "One of you will have to take a rifle and go look for them. Bart and I have work to do. We don't have the time to act as nurse-maids."

St. John asked quietly, "Why is time so important to you, captain?"

"Why? I'll tell you why. Eleven miles up the coast is a base for patrol boats. It's a fairly large base and protects this coast for a good hundred miles. I would like to destroy that base, if possible."

"I see. But time—"

"Well," Jed said, "Bart and I haven't exactly been inactive in this neighborhood. The Japs have placed a flattering reward on our heads and are unceasing in their efforts to root us out. Until previously, they were looking for our hiding place in the vicinity of a fairly good highway a few miles inland."

"And now?"

"Now they are looking for us along the coast. We captured one of them last week and he—under a little pressure—told us about it. So, you see, time is running out of the glass."

College Fees' Boost Foreseen in U. S. Policy

Higher tuition fees in America's colleges and universities are a post-war prospect, Harvey C. Daines, University of Chicago controller, said yesterday at the 22d annual institute for administrative officers of higher institutions being held at the university.

He explained that, with federal control of interest rates, no rise in the income from investments suitable for college endowment funds is probable, and there is little likelihood of increased endowments because present day tax policies make it impossible to amass the large fortunes of past decades.

"Increased enrollments will provide the major source of income in the post-war period," he said, "but unless the fees charged equal the cost of instruction greater enrollment will represent a liability instead of an asset." He thought that pressure for requests for federal funds might be anticipated despite the risks which such a step would entail.

On the subject of enrollments, Ernest C. Miller, registrar of the university, said that he foresaw a college and university attendance of two million in this country by 1948, as compared with 750,000 this year and a pre-war peak of 1,500,000. A large number of these students will be more mature than most college students have been in the past, he said, and this fact will create new problems in placement and in individual attention, and may in many cases reduce the importance of course credits and degrees. Much of his talk was oriented to the educational needs of returning war veterans.

A session on "Race—a Problem in Market and School," held as a part of the fourth annual conference for teachers of the social sciences in secondary schools and junior colleges in Ida Noyes hall at the university, brought forth the warning that only under conditions of intense post-war industrial activity can there be hope of widespread improvement in the Negro's status as an industrial worker. The speaker was Robert C. Weaver, executive director of Mayor Kelly's committee on race relations.

"Should the war be followed by a period of serious, long run unemployment, a disproportionately large number of Negroes will be without jobs," he said.

Peake Group to Sponsor Benefit Sailing Party

The first in a series of sailing parties sponsored by Meredith Peake group of the Mary Crane league will be held Wednesday night aboard the sloop, Regina II., putting out from Belmont harbor at 6 p. m. The sloop has been chartered for the summer by Julian Romane, whose wife is chairman of the sponsor group. It is planned to serve supper from the galley. Proceeds from the parties, which are to continue until mid-September, will be contributed for the maintenance of Mary Crane nursery school at Hull House.

Thru the Looking Glass

We've been deluged with letters from mothers recently who seem bent on having permanent waves for their small daughters, aged anywhere from 6 to 14. We're agin it.

The straight haired female is going to get on that permanent wave treadmill soon enough, and she's going to be on it, probably, until she reaches the age where she doesn't give a hoot about having curl in her hair. Why she should be placed on it at the tender age of 6 we don't know.

Besides which, there is the highly important point of guidance in good taste. Children should be taught good grooming, heaven knows, but they shouldn't be dolled u p to look like adults in miniature. They should be dressed and groomed to look childlike—a most attractive state, by the way.

Permanent waves, adult styles in hairdress, and nail polish are simply not becoming to a child. She looks a little silly, and her appearance is most certainly a reflection on the good taste of the mother or guardian who dresses her.

Simple little frocks, like the pinafores, are far more becoming to most little girls than what their mothers think of as party dresses. In the same way, pigtails are more attractive than hair cut and curled exactly like mother's. And childish hands are best left unadorned. Scrubbed, of course, but not tinted at the finger tips with scarlet.

A large part of the charm of childhood is the natural unaffectedness of children. This same unaffectedness should carry over into the way they're dressed and groomed. Well scrubbed faces, clean hair and hands, simple dresses—these are quite enough. Fussy clothes and curls that are obviously artificial make a little girl look grotesque.

Kitchen Pointers

By Mary Meade

This department has noted that to date not one prospective canner has called for oven canning directions. It seems that at last the story of the inadequacy and danger of oven canning has been effectively told. When that first request does come in, we hope we'll be able to "sell" another method—one without the failure angle of underprocessing and minus the danger of explosions which often result in serious accidents.

"Pears and peaches which I canned last year turned brown; how can I prevent this in canning those fruits this year?" writes an early bird canner who wants to be all ready for the first good peaches and pears of the season.

Top fruit browning often is due to insufficient sirup covering. Pack precooked fruit into hot sterilized jars to within ½ inch of top and fill with sirup to the same level. After processing in the boiling water bath the fruit will shrink somewhat and be well covered by the sirup. Browning is due also to exposure of fruit to air before canning. It is advisable after peeling fruits [peaches, apricots, pears] to drop in a solution of 1 tablespoon salt to 1 quart water. Another cause for discoloration is under processing. Use the hot pack method and process in boiling water bath 20 minutes.

Cherry canning calls recently have outnumbered those on any other fruit canning. For best results follow these directions: Can with or without pits; if canned unpitted, prick each cherry with clean needle to prevent shrinkage. Heat until juicy, sweetening to taste with sugar, or cook in boiling thin or medium sirup for 5 minutes. Pack hot into hot sterilized jars, no higher than ½ inch from top, fill with hot sirup to the same level, and process in boiling water bath for 15 minutes.

Chicago's Annual Recreation Parley Is Set for Nov. 10

Dr. Philip L. Seman, chairman of the Chicago Recreation commission, yesterday set Nov. 22 as the date for the 10th annual Chicago Recreation conference, which will bring together supervisors of recreation for hundreds of Chicago groups.

W. Ellis Stewart was appointed chairman of the general conference committee and George W. Fleming, director of the civilian morale department of the office of civilian defense, co-chairman. Both are commission members. The conference will be in the Hotel Sherman.

Other chairmen named by Dr. Seman are Mrs. Charles W. Balch, luncheon; Mrs. Edward O. Brown and Vernon F. Hernlund, program co-chairmen; Judge John P. McGoorty, promotional, and Peter J. Peel, publicity.

Shoppers Find Tiny New Hats Too, Too Divine

BY REA SEEGER.

Handy little hat bars around the shops and stores, equipped with dashing new creations specially designed for the young shoppers, prove that this crowd is either eager to spend its cash or is insatiably hungry for something new. It is snapping up newly arrived felts and the first sleek, shining black satins, which are going as the susceptible pay their money and take the new toppers of their choice.

The felts are small and snappy, with that effervescent manner of accent or trim. They have perky high bows, clusters of pinked edged posies, jaunty little pinwheels, all of felt, anchored to a tiny skullcap, beanie, or round disc. When a veil is attached it is just a whiff or mist of veiling, for wear over the eyeline and just tickling the nose or back over the head. Most of the newest arrivals are fetching creations to achieve a dark bit of contrast or a vivid spot of color, with, of course, all the new fall colors featured. Every model is a tantalizing hint of what's to come this fall.

Gleaming black satin hats, as small and pert as the felts, are also telltale whispers of a new hat season, compelling little trifles with plenty of dash for any coiffure or headline. There are side swept affairs, some with wicked black feathers, others with glistening black coq feathers, and still others with sharply cut and formed bows. Prophetic creations for fall are the newest models, called "souffle turbans," tho any cook worthy of the name would say the souffle had fallen, for they have exactly that squashy outline. Crushed large berets are also promised for early delivery.

Settlement's Junior Board to Have Picnic Monday

North shore junior board members of the Northwestern university settlement will have an open meeting and picnic Monday at the House in the Woods, summer camp for the settlement children, situated south of Wheeling on the Milwaukee road. Mrs. Hayden Macdonald, project chairman, will explain plans for financing the camp, which members have been maintaining during the war period. After the meeting, Miss Harriet Vittum, head resident of the settlement, will take the group on a tour of the grounds.

Nature Plays Vital Role in Child Training

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.
[Copyright: 1944: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

One of the so-called new fashioned or extremely "modern" ways of training babies and small children which we who are interested in their welfare are trying hard to discourage is the intensive and early training for bowel and bladder control.

This procedure, like the hard and fast sleeping schedule and eating schedule, is opposed to nature. While a certain measure of conformity to routine and rules is good for the baby and his family, still he is not a machine. He is a human being, an individual exactly like no other baby in the world, and so he has a temperament and body very much his own. That means quite logically that he has a rhythm of his own. This rhythm is seen in his eating habits when he's a baby, in his sleeping habits, and in his elimination. It is important, and interesting, to keep this in mind in observing him.

But this training for elimination is different from the training aimed at good and convenient eating and sleeping habits. And one way in which it is different is that it is based on the child's own control of his functions. And, this it is really vital to remember, all babies are not ready to control bowel and bladder functions at exactly the same age.

Nature makes them ready. All we do is help and encourage, by praise and a fairly regular eating and sleeping schedule, and by learning to understand what a baby's own signs and sounds mean.

It is interesting to notice, too, that all this too early fancy training which was advocated as "modern" was not really accomplishing control; it consisted merely of "catching" the baby before the deed was done. This premature training was unquestionably a nervous strain on the baby, and frequently resulted in later toileting difficulties known as a "reversal" of habits of elimination.

A baby or small child can be trained, but only as it fits in with his bodily and mental development. His sleep and rest should not be constantly interfered with for this purpose, as they have to be under an intensive training program.

Ruffled Apron

Self-fabric or contrasting ruffles do trimming honors on this pinafore apron, which may double as a house frock on hot days. Flowered fabrics are especially pretty. Style No. 3703 is designed for sizes 12 to 44. Size 36 requires 4 yards of 35 inch fabric.

Order Clotilde patterns from Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central Annex, NEW YORK CITY. Print name and address; state size. Each pattern is 10 cents, plus 2 cents for mailing. The spring and summer fashion book, on sale at Tribune Public Service offices, is 15 cents, 12 cents if ordered by mail with a pattern.

Protestant Service Club Group to Meet Monday

South side members of the Protestant Woman's Service club will gather to sew at 10 a. m. Monday at Mrs. William H. McClellan's home, 10929 Longwood dr. The group will work on aprons for the club's annual bazar, to be held in the Stevens hotel in the fall.

SENATOR LASHES AT PIPELINE DEAL OF DALL FIRM

Trading of Rights Under Fire at Quiz.

BY WILLIAM MOORE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 7.—Sen. Johnson [D., Colo.], today criticized the dealings by which a small group acquired the right to build a natural gas pipe line from Texas to West Virginia to augment the gas supply of the Appalachian region, and then sold the rights to Chicago corporation, midwestern investment trust.

Curtis Dall.

The corporation obtained control of the project by buying most of the stock of the Tennessee Gas and Transmission company, which had been given a certificate of convenience and necessity by the federal power commission. Sen. Moore [R., Okla.], has charged that the Tennessee company was a "paper company" with neither a supply of gas nor adequate finances.

He Challenges Ethics.

"These people went out and peddled that certificate," Johnson told a senate interstate commerce subcommittee. "Such a certificate is a monopoly, something you can go out and sell. If you think this thing was right, you have a different conception of a public commission than mine."

Johnson made his observations after hearing the testimony of William Daugherty, former attorney for the Standard Oil company of New Jersey, that the Tennessee company had no finances when it got the certificate, but that it had "traded on" the certificate once it was obained.

The Tennessee company sold all its preferred stock and 90 per cent of its common stock to the Chicago corporation for $500,000.

Clash Over U. S. Financing.

The actions of the FPC and its chairman, Leland Olds, are under consideration by the committee in its investigation of the advisability of senate confirmation of President Roosevelt's reappointment of Olds.

Sen. Moore is opposing confirmation on the grounds that Olds favors government financing rather than financing by private enterprise. The Hope Natural Gas company, a Standard of New Jersey subsidiary, had also sought the certificate with the idea of financing the pipe line privately.

Got $1,000 a Month.

Curtis Dall, former son-in-law of President Roosevelt, defended the commission and the Tennessee company at the hearing. Dall organized the company and was its president until it was bought by the Chicago corporation.

Dall, now a lieutenant-colonel in the army air forces, testified that he earned $1,000 a month while active as president of the company and scoffed at stories that he had received a large fee for his part in the transactions.

Dall bitterly criticized THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE for publication of a story that the subcommittee was investigating the possibility that he had received a large fee.

F. D. R. REBUKES REPORTER FOR 4TH TERM QUERY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 7.—Facing a barrage of political questions, President Roosevelt today curtly rebuked a reporter who wanted to know whether he had found a candidate for Vice President on the fourth term ticket.

Mr. Roosevelt characterized the question as unfriendly and declared that he would not answer it. This was regarded as a strong indication he is determined to take Vice President Wallace as his running mate again. Wallace has the backing of the radical New Dealers and Communists.

Politics was thrust into the press conference when Mr. Roosevelt was asked when reporters might get an answer to the question they had been posing for weeks—the fourth term nomination. With a laugh the President replied he didn't know—that it might be around November or it might be this month. He declined to state whether he would make a statement before the Democratic convention opens.

O'DANIEL BRANDS WLB PAPER QUIZ SMEAR ATTEMPT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 7.—Sen. O'Daniel, anti-New Deal Democrat from Texas, today denounced as a "smear attempt" the war production board's questioning of his publication of a four page weekly newspaper urging the defeat of President Roosevelt. O'Daniel said he had complied with all WPB restrictions in printing his newspaper, which is published in Fort Worth, Tex.

The senator's charge followed an announcement by Arthur R. Treanor, head of the WPB's printing and publishing division, who said he was asking O'Daniel how he obtained newsprint for his publication. Deliveries of newsprint are subject to quotas set by the WPB.

"This is just part of the old New Deal smear," O'Daniel said in an interview.

"The joke of it is that I have a letter from the regional WPB office in Dallas, Tex., stating they found after full investigation that I have not violated any WPB order. The trouble with these burocrats is their left hand doesn't know what their right hand is doing."

The senator said the regional WPB letter he had received was dated June 30 and was signed by George Noble Jr., regional director at Dallas.

Not a New Publication.

O'Daniel said he had made no special application for newsprint for his weekly, which was first printed in 1940 and was revived on July 4. Apparently, he added, the WPB office here thought it was a new publication, which would have required a special application for newsprint.

The senator said he obtained newsprint for his weekly, called the W. Lee O'Daniel News, from reputable suppliers.

The July 4 issue called for a house cleaning in Washington to break up the Roosevelt regime and rid the capital of burocrats. O'Daniel says it has a circulation of 100,000 in 45 states.

12 Arrested as Police Raid Alleged Handbook

Policemen commanded by Capt. Michael Spatz of Chicago av. station yesterday raided an alleged handbook at the rear of 948 N. Wells st. and arrested 12 men. They also seized $450 in currency, two telephones, and a number of gambling sheets. Capt. Spatz said John B. Romano, 34, of 463 W. Oak st., would be booked as the keeper.

RED ENVOY REACHES ETHIOPIA.

ILLINOIS FARMS OFFERING WORK TO 500 WOMEN

More than 500 Chicagoland women of 16 and over are needed from July 14 to Aug. 5 to detassel corn for the production of hybrid seed on farms near El Paso, Champaign, and De Kalb, Ill., it was announced yesterday by F. F. Gingrich, assistant state farm labor supervisor.

Gingrich headed a meeting last night in the farm labor office to acquaint volunteers with the jobs that are to be done when the first detachment leaves for El Paso next Friday morning.

Seed Needed in Program.

"This is your opportunity to get a change out in the sunshine and fresh air, to invest in your country's victory by working on a farm for two weeks," Gingrich told applicants. "The job is to detassel corn for the production of hybrid seed, which is vitally needed in the food for freedom program."

Wages for workers will be 50 cents or more per hour for eight hours of work each day. Transportation from Chicago will be provided by growers on bus or train. Gingrich appealed for 400 volunteers to leave on Friday for El Paso, where they will detassel corn for the Pfister Hybrid Corn company. All girls will be housed in a camp dormitory in the high school gymnasium, where cots, mattresses, blankets, sheets, and pillow cases will be furnished at no cost to the individual.

Nurse to Be Provided.

Adequate supervision and a nurse will be provided. Meals will be obtained from the company cafeteria or local restaurants at $1 to $1.50 per day.

A second group of 50 volunteers will leave on July 15 for Champaign, where they will be employed by the Pioneer Hi-Bred Corn company.

They will be housed in the Alpha Gamma Rho fraternity house at a cost of $7.50 for the two week period. Meals will run from $1.25 to $1.60 each day.

On July 24, a group of 50 women will go to De Kalb to detassel corn for the De Kalb Agricultural association. They will be housed in private homes. The meals will cost a maximum of $1.60 per day. Only women over 18 will be in the groups going to De Kalb and Champaign.

Diver Who Fails to Rise Is Saved by 2 Lifeguards

Patricia Agazim, 18, and Robert Schwartz, 17, lifeguards at the California park swimming pool, at California av. and Irving Park rd., saved Arthur Lemke, 19, of 3418 Elston av., from drowning yesterday when he failed to rise to the surface after diving. They carried him to the edge of the pool, and he was revived by inhalator squad No. 6 under Capt. James Leahy.

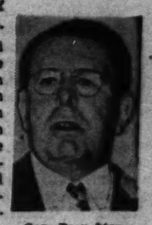
G. O. P. WORKERS TO HELP YANKS OBTAIN BALLOTS

Republican precinct workers will go thru their neighborhoods next week offering application cards for soldier ballots to every home with a man or woman in service, County Chairman George M. Fisher said yesterday. A similar canvass by the Democratic organization already is in progress.

Fisher said the Republicans would use the postcard form of combined application and affidavit of qualification devised by County Clerk Flynn, who is given that task by the Illinois special soldier vote act.

U. S. MUST LEAD IN WORLD PEACE, SAYS BROUGHTON

Gov. J. M. Broughton of North Carolina told members of the Executives' club of Chicago yesterday in the Hotel Sherman that the United States can coöperate with other nations in establishing an enduring peace "without sacrificing national dignity or integrity and with sovereignty unimpaired."



Gov. Broughton.

The North Carolina executive, frequently mentioned as a candidate for Vice President, declared that America, "coöperating fully with other nations of good will in the honest and determined purpose to preserve peace, can and must lead in the effort toward a better and a happier world."

Broughton said that in America's war production "the complete answer has been given to the question of democratic survival in a world emergency."

He drew laughs when he remarked that "no one knows whether victory will come in the first year of the fourth term or the fourth year of the last term."

109 Police Lieutenants Apply for Captain Test

In three days, 109 police lieutenants have registered for the civil service commission examinations on Sept. 6 for promotion to captaincies, the commission reported yesterday. Registrations will be accepted thru Sept. 2. There are 146 police lieutenants eligible to apply. The last civil service list for captains was canceled Nov. 3, 1940.

CUBS, GIANTS SPLIT; A'S DEFEAT SOX, 4 TO 3

In the WAKE of the NEWS

BY ARCH WARD.

"THE secret of successful pep talks to ball players is not to give too many of them," opines Connie Mack. "Clubhouse harangues, like any other stimulant, lose their effect in daily repetition." . . . Prof. C. H. Hinton of Princeton university constructed the first mechanical baseball pitcher in 1897. It was called a "baseball cannon" with the propulsive force supplied by gun powder. The size of the charge regulated the speed of the ball. . . . The modern robot pitcher was invented by Myron Moser, a St. Louis banker, who has organized a company for its manufacture under the name Baseball Machines, Inc. . . . College football coaches do not believe the rule permitting forward passes from any place behind the scrimmage line will make as much difference in the style of play as expected. They point out that even the pros generally fade back at least five paces before firing. . . . In the first 10 weeks of the Pacific Coast league season Babe Herman batted .411, mostly in pinch roles, and Dolph Camilli slammed 13 home runs. . . . Baby Arizmendi, the fighter, dropped 35 pounds in navy boot training. He has been assigned to Camp Perry, Va., where he hopes he may be used as a ring instructor. . . . Indiana university's fieldhouse probably will be named the Hayes Memorial, in honor of E. C. [Billy] Hayes, veteran track and cross-country coach, who died last December. . . . A woman dashing for a Milwaukee street car collided with Peter Murphy Jr., secretary of the Wisconsin A. A. U. . . . Pete was taken to a hospital, where four stitches were needed to close a cut over his right eye.

Fielding H. Yost calls attention to the fact that the University of Michigan football stadium could have been paid for twice over if all the receipts from football could have been used in redeeming stadium bonds. . . . Edward Barrow, president of the New York Yankees, is frothing because a Gotham writer referred to the Yanks as stumble bums during their recent slump. . . . "Stumble bums, is it," moans Ed, "for a team which has won 14 pennants in 23 years and has given the game such stars as Babe Ruth, Lou Gehrig, Joe Di Maggio, Red Ruffing, and Bill Dickey?" . . . Ed should remember that, in New York, as in every other big league city, a team is great only as long as it can stay on top. . . . Earl Whitehill, the aged southpaw, went in as a relief pitcher for the Buffalo Bisons with the bases full the other day and passed three batters. . . . Now the fans are calling him "No-Hit Earl."

Easterner Scores 74th Triumph.

Fight Decisions

At Comiskey park—Willie Pep beat Willie Joyce [10]; Bobby Gunther knocked out Jimmy Santora [1]; Johnny Bratton knocked out Alvin Jordan [4]; Jimmy Sherrer knocked out Rocky Wells [5]; Kenny Reed stopped Lou Robinson [3]; Tommy James knocked out Danny Robinson [4].

BY FRANK MASTRO.

Willie Pep, recognized as world featherweight champion by the New York athletic commission, scored his 74th victory in 75 starts in a 10 round overweight bout which topped the first major outdoor show of the season in Comiskey park last night.

Altho the decision of Referee Frank Sikora and Judges Carl Witt and John Bray was unanimous, Joyce's aggressive fighting kept the battle interesting thruout. The referee and Witt each voted 55 to 45 and Bray scored 58 to 42.

Crowd Favors Joyce.

The verdict met with the approval of most of the 10,113 spectators who paid a gross gate of $33,987.60. Pep, the more skillful boxer, had an edge in all except the second, sixth, and 10th rounds.

Joyce received a big hand when introduced and it was obvious the majority in the crowd was pulling for him to deal Pep his second setback in a four year career.

There was some question as to whether Joyce, 1937 Chicago intercity Golden Gloves featherweight titleholder, could make the required 134 pounds without weakening himself. He had trouble making the stipulated weight and showed signs of it at the end of the sixth round when he staggered to his corner and had to be assisted to his stool.

Gary Boy Takes Sixth.

Even so, the sixth was Joyce's best session. In this round the Gary lightweight drove Pep to the ropes repeatedly with wild, slashing blows to the head and body. Pep's early efforts had taken some of the speed out of his legs and he couldn't seem to stop the fierce offensive launched by his rangy foe.

There were few in the arena, however, who thought Joyce would answer the bell for the seventh. He was a tired warrior, when he came out, but Pep was weary, too. Pep coasted thru the eighth and ninth, but in the 10th Joyce put on another spirited offensive and the champion had to resort to every defensive trick in his repertoire.

Supporting Bouts All Knockouts.

All of the five supporting bouts ended in knockouts. Winners were Bobby Gunther, New York 136 pounder; Johnny Bratton, 1944 Chicagoland Golden Gloves lightweight finalist; Jimmy Sherrer, Milwaukee welterweight; Kenny Reed, Battle Creek 150 pounder, and Tommy James, Chicago 146 pounder.

James knocked out Danny Robinson, also of Chicago, in the fourth; Gunther flattened Jimmy Santora, Chicago, in the first; Bratton knocked out Alvin Jordan, Milwaukee, in the fourth; Sherrer knocked out Rocky Wells, Dearborn, Mich., in the fifth, and Reed stopped Lou Robinson, Chicago, in the third.

TELLMENOW SCORES IN CHARITY FINAL

Tellmenow (foreground) beats Three Dots (3) across finish line in the John Hervey handicap at Washington Park. The event was the feature race of yesterday's final session of the Charity week program sponsored by The Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc. Tellmenow is owned by Hal Price Headley and was ridden by Freddy Smith.

CHARITY WEEK RACE MEETING DRAWS 114,000

BY WILFRID SMITH.

The five day charity program of racing sponsored by The Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., at Washington Park with the coöperation of the metropolitan tracks, which donated the time and facilities, ended yesterday with an amazing total attendance record of 114,000. Thirteen thousand, five hundred were present for the last day's program.

No one predicted the remarkable support Chicago's turf fans gave the midseason charity races. Many believed, of course, that it would be a success, but their highest hopes became a minimum goal in view of the tremendous attendance record.

Record Stands 24 Hours.

The week began with a capacity crowd of 35,500 last Monday which established an Illinois state wagering record of $1,681,395. This all-time mark lasted 24 hours. On Tuesday, with incentive of the 16th running of the $50,000 added Stars and Stripes handicap, a throng of 36,000 holiday fans wagered $1,740,293. These high marks were soundly supported for the remaining days of the charity engagement by crowds which doubled those of the comparable period in 1943.

Yesterday's crowd wagered the almost unbelievable sum of $785,094 on a day which customarily is one of the least favorable in the week. This financial support brought the week's total for the parimutuel machines to $5,910,989. Thus, the daily average for the charity program set a mark of $1,182,198 which was deemed impossible when the meeting was planned.

Tracks Deserve Credit.

Major credit, of course, for this tremendous success is due to Chicago's tracks and to the Illinois racing board which approved the suggestion by The Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc. to raise funds for the city's needy. Washington Park, Arlington Park, Lincoln Fields, Hawthorne and Sportsman's Park each donated one of their regularly allotted days of racing.

The directors of Chicago's racing, who made this most notable program possible, include Benjamin F. Lindheimer, executive director of Washington and Arlington Parks; John D. Allen, president of Arlington Park; Walter L. Gregory, president of Washington Park; John L. Keeshin of Sportsman's Park; Matt Winn of Lincoln Fields and Charles Krutckoff, president, and Charles Bidwill, chairman, of Hawthorne.

Here Are Figures.

The record of daily attendance and wagering of the first midseason charity week in American turf history follows:

	Attendance	Wagering
Tuesday	36,000	1,740,293
Wednesday	14,000	830,319
Thursday	15,000	873,888

BY MAURICE SHEVLIN.

The brightest week in the long history of thorobred racing in Chicago closes today at Washington Park with the 11th running of the $15,000 added Arlington Matron stakes, a mile event for 3 year olds and up. The fixture, one of the country's foremost races for fillies and mares, has drawn a field of seven, topped by the Calumet farm's Mar-Kell, queen of the racing mares last season, which will carry high weight of 122 pounds.

Third Big Stake of Week.

The Matron will have a gross value of $16,950 with a net value to the winner of $11,450 if all seven contribute starting fees of $200 each. It will be the third stake of the week, the first five days of which were sponsored by The Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., and had the $59,350 Stars and Stripes handicap and the $10,000 Skokie handicap as its banner attractions.

Mar-Kell, which probably will be ridden by F. A. Smith, Warren Wright's contract jockey, is expected to go postward a 6 to 5 favorite even tho the contenders include two fast sprinters, Happy Issue and Gold Princess, and the established and seasoned stake winners, Silvestra, Traffic Court, and Burgoo Maid. The 3 year old Harriet Sue and Bold Style complete the lineup.

$100,000 Mark Is Goal.

Trainer Ben Jones of the Calumet layout will be pulling for Mar-Kell to win for more reasons than one. He has announced that this will be the mare's last season of racing and a victory today will put her close to the select circle of horses which have won $100,000 or more. She has earned $77,640 to date.

Calumet farm already this season has graduated Pensive and Sun Again into the circle to join the world's money winning leader, Whirlaway, and the famous mare, Anita Peabody. Twilight Tear is knocking at the door with $98,100 to her credit after winning the Skokie Thursday.

Hal Price Headley's Tellmenow, a 4 year old filly, won the $5,000 John Hervey handicap, feature race on yesterday's final Chicago Tribune Charities' program, which brought out a crowd of 13,500.

Tellmenow, ridden by F. A. Smith, scored by a length over J. H. Rouse's Three Dots in the 6 furlong event for 3 year olds and upward. The Woolford farm's Signator was third, two lengths behind Three Dots and a neck in front of the Brolite farm's Roman Sox. Bold Style was last in the five horse field. The race was named in honor of the dean of American turf writers. The winner paid $10 to win and $3.60 to place. Three Dots returned $2.60 to place. There was no show pool.

Jungle Moon Pays $38.60.

The daily double was worth $42.80 on H. E. Jacoby's Cracks in the first and T. B. McGrath's Greville in the second.

The in and out Jungle Moon belonging to Henry Tikulski popped into the winner's circle in the third and paid $38.60. Kempton Knott was the rider. Mose Lowenstein's Soldier's Cap accounted for the fourth race, winning by a neck from N. H. Cantrell's Head Flight in a field of 12 maiden 3 year olds and up. Charley Corbett rode the winner which paid $6.80.

Equine Ladies' Day

SEVEN fillies and mares are entered for the Arlington Matron handicap, $15,000 affair to be contested over one mile today at Washington Park. The field in order of post positions follows:

	Wgt.	Jockey.	Prob. odds.
Silvestra	108	L. Haas	8-1
Gold Princess	113	G. Woolf	5-2
Happy Issue	114	S. Brooks	3-1
Harriet Sue	103	N. Jemas	15-1
Burgoo Maid	113	W. Morrisey	15-1
Mar-Kell	122	No boy	6-5
Traffic Court	108	A. Bodlou	8-1

North Siders Triumph, 3-2; Then Lose, 6-2

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Charley Grimm's Cubs squeezed a dividend from six hits yesterday, but subsequently were foiled in an effort to extract similar happiness from a 10 hit display. The half dozen safe blows served to calm the Giants, 3 to 2, in the front half of a double header, after which the latter revived and gave the Wrigley field occupants a high class cleaning job on 17 hits, 6 to 2, before 13,510 cash customers and 8,000 women guests.

Despite the paucity of Cub blows in the first game, three Giant pitchers were employed in an effort to steer Hank Wyse from his seventh victory. Johnny Allen, the old fellow from the American league, hung around until he developed an arm kink in the sixth, two runs being charged against his regime. Ace Adams attempted a rescue act but got himself into such difficulties in the seventh that Lou Polli couldn't adjust the situation until he had forced in the winning run.

Ott Leads Giant Parade.

The Cubs thought Mel Ott, boss man of the Giants, did pretty well in the first game, what with two singles and his No. 19 homer off Wyse, but he was merely warming up for later in the afternoon. He followed with one double, three singles and a pass in the next game which was so hilarious for the Cubs' pitching department that four members took a hand against Frank Seward. The first of the quartet was Bill Fleming, after which Paul Derringer stepped in for a stretch that included a homer by Ernie Lombardi. Paul quit in a hurry in the seventh, leaving the work for Hy Vandenberg and Mack Stewart, just in from the Nashville club.

The Giants got the jump in the first game when Ott singled to start the fourth, took an extra base on Nicholson's fumble and progressed to the plate on a pair of outs. Singles by Cavarretta and Nicholson enabled the Cubs to tie it in the same inning, but in the sixth Ott hit his homer and the Cubs had to get back to work. They tied it in the same inning on Nicholson's triple and a wild pitch by Adams. Then Hack walked and Hughes singled to open the seventh and when Adams walked Nicholson he was yanked for Polli who tendered Dallessandro the same courtesy, forcing in the deciding run.

They Wasted No Time.

After two were out in the opening inning of the second game, Ott, Medwick, and Lombardi dispatched singles for a run. Their next outbreak against Fleming began with Hughes' fumble of Rucker's hopper at the start of the third. Jurges bunted but Ott drew a walk and both runners hiked home on Medwick's double to left.

Singles by Dallessandro, Pafko, and Williams put the Cubs into run production in the fourth but the value of this exploit was erased when Lombardi hit his No. 3 homer off Derringer in the sixth. In the same inning Dallessandro hoisted his season's fifth over the right field wall, making the score 4 to 2. The Giants must have felt uncomfortable about this. Anyway, they scored twice in the seventh on singles by Ott, Reyes, Kerr, and Luby, the blast being sufficient to remove Derringer.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Philadelphia, Pa., July 7.—The White Sox made a homer, a triple, a double, and nine singles off Luman Harris tonight against the Athletics' seven singles off Jake Wade and one harmless safety off Gordon Maltzberger. Nevertheless, they suffered their third loss under the lamps in three successive nights. The score was Philadelphia, 4; Chicago, 3, and the winning run was put in scoring position with a balk.

Harris left the A's after the game to join the navy and in the first three innings it appeared that Le Roy Schalk, an old soldier, was going to spoil his farewell. Schalk's triple in the first inning was the essential effort in the production of two runs and his homer in the third rounded out the Chicago run total for the evening.

McGhee's Hit Does It.

The A's tied the score in the third and the tie prevailed until two were out in the seventh. It was then Wade walked Roberto Estalella and let him get to second on a balk. Bill McGhee's single sent the Cuban home with the payoff run.

The Sox had runners on third and first in the eighth but couldn't score the tying run and Skeeter Webb opened the ninth with his third hit, a double to left center, but was sunk trying to get to third on an attempted sacrifice.

In 2d Division Again.

The loss tonight dumped the Chicagoans into the second division, which according to growing suspicion is their proper habitat. It was the Sox's 11th loss in 14 night games, the first of which they lost here. Their three night losses in succession resulted in their dropping from third to fifth.

The slipping Chicagoans will come out in daylight tomorrow with Buck Newsom facing Johnny Humphries. Whatever else happens, the entire Dykes' ensemble is pulling for one event—for Thurman Tucker to get a hit. Tonight the American league's leading hitter ran his string of hitless times at bat to a chilling 20.

Tonight's game was played for war relief funds. Altho no special program was presented, 10,402 paid to get in.

Schalk Crazy for Hits.

Schalk first showed signs of having gone slug crazy after Moses had put the game underway by walking to first. Le Roy then busted a triple to left, his second of the year and first since May 21, scoring Moses. He held third while Tucker continued in his hit famine, then scored on Carnett's single to right.

Schalk then convinced everybody he was beside himself with power when he lined his No. 1 homer in the left field stand at the start of the third inning.

The Sox necessity of playing outfielders in the infield had much to do with the A's tying the score in the third inning, tho Wade wasn't blameless by any means. Jake walked Busch, fanned Harris and walked Hall after a three and two count. Garrison bounced to Hodgin who couldn't make up his mind where to throw the ball. The result was the first hit off Wade and loaded the bases.

Estalella then singled off Hodgin's glove, scoring Busch and Hall. Hayes singled over second, scoring Garrison with the tying run. McGhee then fouled to Castino and Kell popped to Schalk.

2 GOLF TEAMS TIED IN GOLDEN VALLEY TOURNEY

Minneapolis, Minn., July 7 (AP).—The teams of Bill Kaiser-Bob Hamilton and Byron Nelson-Jug McSpaden tied today for the lead in the $10,000 Golden Valley invitational best ball golf matches after the tournament had narrowed down at the end of 54 holes to an exceptionally close race.

Altho making a best ball of 65, eight under par, in the morning round, the Nelson-McSpaden pair could do no more than break even with the Twin Cities combine of Les Bolstad and Joe Coria. In the afternoon, however, Nelson-McSpaden gained a 1 up margin over the entry of Jimmy Hines-Willie Goggin.

Following the two leading twosomes were Hines-Goggin and Sam Byrd-Johnny Revolta, in a tie for third.

HALSTEAD PLAYS SEGURA TODAY IN TENNIS MEET

Neenah, Wis., July 7 (AP).—Francisco Segura of Ecuador, N. C. A. A. and National clay court champion, reached the semi-finals of the Western Senior Tennis tournament today by defeating Dick Warner of Salt Lake City, 6-3, 6-3.

Segura will meet Thane Halstead, of Chicago, in a semi-final match tomorrow, the winner to face Bill Talbert of Indianapolis for the title Sunday. Talbert reached the finals by beating Nick Buzolich, of Los Angeles, 6-1, 6-0, 6-3 today.

In the women's doubles, Dorothy Bundy of Santa Monica, Cal., and Mary Arnold of Wilmington, Del., reached the semi-finals by defeating Agnes Oskar of Menasha, Wis., and Helen Bartavis of Chicago in a women's doubles first round match.

Segura and Pauline Betz beat Catherine Wolff and Dick Warner, 6-1, 6-3. Nick Busolich and Mary Arnold beat Bert Rance, Chicago, and Joanne Dunn, 6-0, 6-0. Dale Lewis and Shirley Frey beat Gary Ruby and Betty Hulbert, 4-0, 6-2, 6-2.

Out of Navy, Wakefield Is Likely Tiger

Iowa City, Ia., July 7 [Special].—The seventh place Detroit Tigers' hopes for overcoming the 7½ game margin separating them from the St. Louis Browns, American league leaders, took a decided turn for the better today with the announcement Dick Wakefield had received an honorable discharge from the navy and might rejoin the club.

For the past 10 months the 23 year old Chicago outfielder who batted .316 last year has been a navy aviation cadet. He successfully completed his training at the Iowa Pre Flight school this week, but under the recently revised ruling of the navy only 50 per cent of the graduating classes proceed to primary training.

TRIBUNE RACING PICKER CLICKS ON $172 WINNER

In his three previous starts he had finished out of the money but he showed signs of being in shape when he worked five-eighths of a mile in 1:02 2-5 Monday. Yesterday with Jockey Johnny Littrell aboard he ran six furlongs in 1:12 3-5.

The Tribune selections also included three winners at the Charity week at Washington Park. They were Cracks in the first race at $17 straight, Greville in the second at $5, and Starcress in the eighth at $4. Cracks and Greville formed the daily double combination that paid $42.80.

ARGENTINA HEAD NAMES PERON AS VICE PRESIDENT

Farrell Says Country Will Resist Pressure.

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, July 7 (AP).—Col. Juan Peron, minister of war, was appointed vice-president today by decree of President Edelmiro Farrell. The vice-presidency had been vacant since Farrell succeeded President Pedro Ramirez on March 10.

Rear Admiral Alberto Tessaire, minister of the navy, was named to act also as minister of interior, replacing Gen. Luis Perlinger, whose resignation was announced last night.

[Newspapers of Montevideo, Uruguay, which had been predicting the changes for two months, said Perlinger was considered ultra-nationalist and had opposed moderate policies of Peron in his capacity as minister of war and of the department of labor and welfare. The newspaper Vieira at Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, whose articles often favor the present Argentine regime, said, however, that the move was made with Perlinger's approval and that Peron would instill "life and movement which will enable him to control the governmental situation with the full support of Gen. Farrell and his revolutionary comrades."]

Peron Takes Post Today.

A bulletin said Peron would retain the position of minister of war but made no mention of the department of labor and welfare which he also heads. He will be sworn in tomorrow.

Perlinger had been minister of the interior since last October. At that time he declared he was against all ideologies foreign to Argentina.

President Farrell declared last night that Argentina had given ample proof of her desire to coöperate with the other American nations and would continue to do so, but he emphasized that her course of action could not be influenced by pressure from any foreign nation.

Speaking to a cheering audience at the annual army and navy banquet, President Farrell said:

"Argentina's international conduct is neither deviating nor calculated, and it is based on an honorable tradition never questioned.

'Defender of Principles.'

"In effect, our country has always been the traditional defender of the great principles which comprise international law for the Americas, and which have been approved at many international conferences.

"Among these principles, and in the forefront, stands that of upholding sovereignty and free determination of the people."

Defense of sovereignty with legitimate zeal does not in any way signify isolation or rejection of the principle of coöperation among the nations of the Americas, he asserted.

His country he said, would take all measures necessary to defend herself against aggression and would not initiate any hostile acts.

Hint of Sanctions Seen.

LONDON, July 7 (AP).—The new statesman and nation said today that the recall of the United States and British ambassadors from Argentina hints at the use of sanctions and indicates the "threat to American security has become so great that here, too, appeasement must be abandoned." "Argentina remains the danger spot on the underbelly of the new world," the liberal weekly asserted.

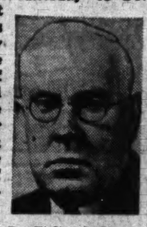
WALTER JESSUP, FORMER HEAD OF U. OF IOWA, DIES

New York, July 7—(AP).—The death here Wednesday of Dr. Walter Albert Jessup, 66, was announced today by the Carnegie Corporation of New York and the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching. He was president of both organizations.



Dr. Walter A. Jessup.

Police said Dr. Jessup's body was discovered in his New York apartment today after his family reported the educator had not returned to his summer home at Arlington, Vt., as scheduled last night. Dr. Harold D. Keyes, the family physician, said death probably resulted from coronary thrombosis.

At various times, Dr. Jessup had been superintendent of schools in Westfield, Ind., and Madison, Ind.; dean of the University of Indiana's school and college of education; president of the University of Iowa, and trustee of the Carnegie Foundation before becoming president in 1941.

5TH BOND SALES TO LARGE FIRMS WILL END TODAY

Philip R. Clarke, chairman of the Chicago and Cook county 5th war loan drive, yesterday appealed to volunteer workers to have all corporation bond subscriptions in the mail before midnight tonight. All mail subscriptions postmarked up to midnight will be valid, Clarke added.

Altho the drive for individual sales will run thru July 31, all sales to corporations and other large investors close today.

The treasury department reported in Washington yesterday that the 16 billion dollar drive had reached 96 per cent of its quota, or a total of $15,364,000,000 in the nation.

Clarke said that sales at the close of business Thursday totaled $718,211,000, or 80.34 per cent of the overall quota of $894,014,000 for Chicago and Cook county.

Sales to individuals were $143,916,000, or 51.87 per cent of the goal for this division. Sales to corporations totaled $574,295,000, or 93.13 per cent of the nearly 617 millions quota for the group.

TWO DAYS LEFT FOR WAR SHOW IN TRIBUNE SQUARE

GENERAL MOTORS DAY.

Today is General Motors day at the War Products exhibit, dedicated to employes of the General Motors corporation for their efforts in war production. The Navy pier band will play from 12:15 to 12:45 p. m. and the program will be broadcast over W-G-N from 12:30 to 12:45 p. m.

THE TRIBUNE'S War Products exhibit in Tribune Square has only two days to run. It will wind up its fourth and final week tomorrow night. Since its opening the show has been visited by many thousands of Chicagoans and out of towns visitors who evinced keen interest in the war machines, guns, plane and boat motors, and a vast array of auxiliary supplies and items on display by the manufacturers.

Bonds and Stamps Sold.

Sale of war bonds and stamps has been accelerated by the exhibit, which is sponsored by the United States treasury department with the coöperation of THE TRIBUNE and the manufacturers whose products are shown. The show is open daily from 10 a. m. to 10 p. m.

Four separate divisions of the General Motors corporation are represented in displays at the exhibit. Among them is the Fisher Body corporation's 120 mm. anti-aircraft gun, known as the "stratosphere gun," which is capable of firing more than 11 miles into the air.

Machine Gun Exhibited.

The AC spark plug division is exhibiting a machine gun for Kimberly-Clark's wasp multiple mount, which visitors may operate by buying a dollar's worth of war stamps.

A .50 caliber air cooled machine gun and mount comprise the Frigidaire division's display. The Pontiac division is showing its Oerlikon rapid fire gun, for which the International Harvester company makes the mount.

Express Train Kills Woman, 80, in Lombard

CHICAGO LEADS IN VARIETY OF DIESEL OUTPUT

Few Reconversion Snags Expected.

The Chicago region has become the producer of the most complete line of diesel engines of any section of the country, Harvey T. Hill, executive director of the Diesel Engine Manufacturers association, told a meeting of diesel engine representatives yesterday in the Union League club. He said that whereas other regions specialize in certain types of diesels the Chicago region produces every kind from small tractor engines to big locomotive and marine diesel power plants.

Harvey T. Hill.

Representatives of the companies said the diesel engine industry does not expect to have the conversion problems in the post-war period that numerous other industries will have. The reason is that the manufacturing process of diesel engines is practically the same whether for war or peace use. Also, plant expansion has not been as large at the diesel engine plants as at many other plants and it will be easier to turn operations to a peace time basis, they said.

Industry's Progress Steady.

The diesel engine industry has been making steady progress since its establishment about 30 years ago in this country largely on a basis of European patents. Just before the war manufacturers were producing engines totaling about 5 million horsepower. Since the war production has increased to an estimated four to five times that volume.

The Chicago region expects to share largely in the sale of diesel-electric locomotives to the railroads. The Electro-Motive division of General Motors corporation—pioneer in this field—in 10 years has built about 1,500 diesel-electric units for railroad use and has orders on hand for others that will occupy its facilities for years. It is now turning out about 50 units a month.

Wider Use Is Forecast.

Diesel company representatives said they expect a much broader use of diesel engines in trucks after the war. They said it has been learned that use of diesels has been justified in light weight trucks used in city delivery service as well as in heavy trucks.

Expansion in the use of diesels for local electric power stations was predicted and other sources of post-war business for the industry are expected to come from manufacturing plants of all types.

Companies represented at the meeting included the Atlas Imperial Diesel Engine company, which has just moved its executive offices from California to Chicago; Fairbanks, Morse & Co.; Electro-Motive, and the Nordberg Manufacturing company, Milwaukee.

PREDICTS F-M WILL ADVANCE FAST IN PEACE

Frequency modulation broadcasting will advance rapidly after the war, but television probably will develop much more slowly, E. F. McDonald Jr., president of Zenith Radio corporation, said in his annual report to stockholders yesterday. He said many economic and some technical problems remain to be solved before television can become a satisfactory home service.

He reported a net profit of $1,788,313 for the fiscal year ended April 30. Provision for federal income taxes was $4,383,860.

LOSS ON STANDARD G. & E.

I notice that the New York Stock exchange has suspended dealings in Standard Gas and Electric common stock, on which I have a substantial loss. Can I charge off this loss in compiling my 1944 income tax return? J. K.

Answer: Both the company's pending proposals for recapitalization and the amendments recently suggested by the securities and exchange commission exclude the present common stock from any participation. "We are clear that there is no possibility that Standard's common has any interest in the company," the SEC ruled.

Since the stock was delisted by the New York exchange on May 31, it has been quoted nominally in the over-the-counter market, recent quotations being 12½ cents to 50 cents a share.

These circumstances do not clearly establish the worthlessness of the shares for the purpose of income tax deductions, if the loss is not established by sale. The regulations provide that if corporate stock becomes wholly worthless, its cost or other applicable basis may be deducted to the extent permitted by the capital loss provisions of the law, without a sale, but a satisfactory showing of worthlessness must be made. In doubtful cases it is considered best to claim a loss for the earliest year in which it might possibly be allowed.

If a recapitalization plan excluding Standard Gas common is formally adopted, the loss will be established without question in the year in which the plan becomes effective, unless the treasury department permits an earlier write-off. Whether the readjustment will be completed during 1944 is uncertain.

Buying Surge Pushes Stock Prices Higher

New York, July 7 (AP).—Stock prices advanced today. Altho many leaders found the going a bit rough from the start, investment demand revived for selected oils, rails, utilities, motors, aircrafts, and others.

Steels advanced in the final hour. Altho minus marks were plentiful at the close, gains of fractions to 2 or more points were well distributed with several favorites at seven year peaks.

Purchasing again was inspired partly by the generally favorable war news, political thinking, and various individual situations viewed as bullish.

Stock Average Rises.

The Associated Press 60 stock average was up 0.2 at 56, canceling yesterday's recession and equaling the top mark since Oct. 2, 1937, established Wednesday. Transfers totaled 1,277,430 shares compared with 1,713,100 yesterday.

Oils reflected further thoughts of a possible imminent boost in crude prices as well as reports of new petroleum discoveries. Motors responded to prospects for the return of some factories to civilian manufacture.

Prominent on the advance were Phillips Petroleum, Houston Oil, Texas Pacific Land Trust, Barnsdall, Nickel Plate common and preferred, Santa Fe, Delaware & Hudson, Public Service of New Jersey, Standard Gas 7 per cent preferred, and White Motor.

CHICAGO STOCKS MIXED.

Closing prices were uneven on the Chicago Stock exchange yesterday. Of 113 issues that made up the volume of 33,000 shares, 44 advanced, 49 declined, and 20 were unchanged. Chicago corporation, the volume leader, was up ¼ point, as was General Finance. Armour was down ⅛.

BOND PRICES RISE.

New York, July 7—(AP).—The bond market generally was higher today, with rails and utilities making a good showing. Several South American and Danish issues advanced in the foreign department. United States government issues were steady. Transactions totaled $8,509,500, against $10,054,700 yesterday.

HEAVIEST HOGS GAIN 25 CENTS; OTHER KINDS UP

Strong to higher prices were paid for hogs in the Chicago stock yards yesterday, with "lard hogs" showing the largest gains. Much of the stock under 300 pounds sold steady to 10 cents higher, but advances of 25 cents and more were frequent in the heaviest butchers.

Prices averaged 5 cents higher at $12.95 a hundred pounds, highest since May 10 and 45 cents above the 1944 low three weeks ago. Top loads sold 10 cents above the floor, at $13.85, and equaled the highest sale since April 17. Price gains over the low point of three weeks ago ranged from 10 cents for "government weights" to as much as $1.25 for stock over 400 pounds that carried a large amount of lard.

Practically no changes occurred in the markets for other meat animals. The scant supplies of cattle and lambs sold mostly steady.

Chinese Diplomat's Son Joins Smith, Barney & Co.

New York, July 7 (AP).—Freeman Fu-chang Koo, son of V. K. Wellington Koo, Chinese ambassador to Great Britain, has become associated with the New York Stock exchange firm of Smith, Barney & Co., it was announced today. Koo, who has degrees from Harvard and Columbia universities, seeks business experience which he will apply later in China. His father was China's minister to the United States prior to his British assignment.

NEW STATE AND CITY FINANCING WILL SHOW BIG GAIN NEXT WEEK

New York, July 7 (AP).—The volume of new state and municipal financing will expand steeply next week after the close of the 5th war loan drive during which only the most urgent business was transacted.

A total of $47,959,500 of new offerings will be made, compared with $29,491,000, including substantial blocks of housing notes, this week. The weekly average so far this year amounts to $20,237,545.

The largest issue of the week will come on Saturday when St. Petersburg, Fla., will open bids on 18 million dollars of refundings, due from 1945 to 1979. Of the total, 12 millions will be in serials and 6 millions in term bonds.

The Modern Woodmen of America, Rock Island, Ill., will sell from its holdings on Wednesday 92 lots of bonds aggregating $8,027,000, and Birmingham, Ala., will open bids on $3,850,000 of water works bonds.

SEC Rules Out Abuses Liquor Dividends Sow

Philadelphia, Pa., July 7 (AP).—The securities and exchange commission announced today the adoption of two new rules, intended to prevent "abuses" in trading before adequate information is available on the nature and amount of a dividend to be distributed. Both rules are based largely on experience gained from trading in stocks of several liquor manufacturers, who recently declared dividends payable in whisky, SEC said.

The first rule requires the filing of reports promptly by issuers of securities registered on a national securities exchange whenever they decide to declare dividends or distributions in the form of an asset other than cash, stock, or a warrant for stock.

Counter Sales Barred.

The second rule prohibits over-the-counter trading in a security in any period when the commission has suspended exchange trading in that security "to prevent fraudulent, manipulative, deceptive practices."

Under the first rule, a telegraphic report must be filed with each exchange on which any security of the registrant is registered and with the commission, not later than midnight of the day the dividend is decided upon. The report must contain a full description of the contemplated dividend or distribution and similar reports are required whenever the terms are changed and upon actual declaration.

May Suspend Trading.

If the commission finds that the information is inadequate to permit investors to make a proper appraisal of the security's value, it may order a temporary suspension of trading in that security on the exchange on which it is registered pending availability of adequate information.

The second rule is not limited in its application to situations contemplated by the new reporting rule, but will operate automatically to outlaw over-the-counter trading during exchange trading suspension.

Value of Listed Stocks Increases to 53 Billions

New York, July 7 (AP).—The New York Stock exchange said today the market value of all its listed stocks was $53,067,698,691 as of June 30 compared with $50,964,039,424 on May 31. There were 1,242 stock issues aggregating 1,492,874,003 shares on June 30. The average price was $35.55 against $34.14 on May 31 and $33.27 a year earlier.

Boost Wheat Grower Loan Rates 7 Cents

Washington, D. C., July 7 (AP).—The war food administration moved today to bolster unsteady wheat markets by increasing grower loan rates on the 1944 crop by 7 cents a bushel. The new rates will average $1.35 a bushel nationally.

The increases were made in accordance with provisions of the recently extended price control act directing the administration to take "all lawful action" to assure growers of basic crops prices as near parity as possible, WFA said.

The parity price of wheat at present is $1.50 a bushel. The new loan rates will reflect 90 per cent of parity compared with previously announced rates designed to reflect 85 per cent. The effect should be to place a floor of 90 per cent of parity under the grain, inasmuch as the loan provides farmers an alternate outlet should the market offer less.

MARKET ADVANCES

Wheat futures were up about 4 cents at one time yesterday, July selling at $1.60½ a bushel on the Chicago Board of Trade, on reports the loan rate would be increased 7 cents a bushel. Trading was extremely heavy, with commission houses and shorts aggressive buyers which more than offset hedging sales. Closing trades were 2½ to 3¼ cents higher. Oats gained ⅞ to 1¼ cents. Rye was up 2⅝ to 2¾ cents and barley closed ⅛ to 2½ cents higher.

Reports that government officials maintain the maximum effectiveness of the support program can be obtained only if market operators are kept guessing as to what the government would do caused adverse comment among brokers. Some of the leading members of the exchange "guessed" the support program would be modified as soon as the new loan basis is announced.

The loan price if increased 7 cents would be $1.56 at Chicago. Government buying thereafter will be done at the loan price, it is believed. The same procedure was followed a year ago, and millions of bushels of cash wheat were obtained.

DENIES SECRET U. S.-BRITISH TRADE ACCORDS

Washington, D. C., July 7 (AP).—William L. Batt, chairman of the combined production and resources board, denied tonight that secret trade agreements have been made by this country and Great Britain.

The National Association of Manufacturers, in its news bulletin of July 1, asserted that American business men had been cut off from some foreign markets by agreements concluded by CPRB, a war time economic agency made up of British, Canadian, and American representatives. Replying to an assertion that American manufacturers of industrial leather belting had been barred from shipping to purchasers in India, Batt said: "The CPRB has never made any decisions affecting leather; I have never heard of any, and I haven't been able to find any one else in the United States who has. I have called both the state department and the foreign economic administration, and have learned that we have never dealt with leather."

Batt said the last available figures, covering shipments this spring, showed the United States was supplying "three to four times as much leather belting to India as in any peace time year of which we have record."

WALGREEN JUNE SALES HIT NEW HIGH FOR MONTH

Walgreen company yesterday reported sales in June of $9,632,061, a new high for the month and a rise of 3.5 per cent above a year earlier. Sales totaled $57,269,793 in the first six months of 1944, a gain of 6.3 per cent.

Sears, Roebuck & Co. reported June sales of $76,863,859, an increase of 11.2 per cent over last year. Sales for the first five months of its fiscal year totaled $372,871,787, up 11.8 per cent.

Montgomery Ward & Co. announced last month's business volume was $47,105,124, or 9.7 per cent less than in June, 1943. Five months sales totaled $236,411,192, a drop of 9.3 per cent.

The Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago reported department store sales in the 7th [Chicago] federal reserve district in the week ended July 1 rose 10 per cent above sales a year earlier and that sales in Chicago alone climbed 14 per cent. Sales thruout the country gained 12 per cent.

URGES PRIVATE DEVELOPMENT OF RESOURCES

End Agencies' Rule, Says Trade Group.

Washington, D. C., July 7 [Special].—Return to states' rights and to private enterprise in development of water resources, including power, was advocated today in a declaration of policy by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States on the basis of a national membership referendum.

One recommendation is that congress should regain control of water resources, lost in the last decade to administrative agencies, and that the legislative branch of the government should maintain and perfect its authority over future public works.

Sound Engineering Urged.

The chamber urged that development should be conducted upon sound and forward looking engineering and economic policies, free from politics and on a nonpartisan basis.

Other recommendations were:

That no project be undertaken without careful consideration of its relation to the other projects, and its effect on other lines of endeavor.

That all projects be reëstimated in the light of increased construction costs now and after the war.

That purposes of each project be clarified and declared in advance by assigning them to the bureau of reclamation, flood control, and navigation and to the army engineers.

Cover Costs, Taxes.

That any government sale of products be at prices sufficient to cover all costs and the same burden of taxes as citizens pay.

That congress recognize the interests and rights of the states in water utilization and control.

That congress preserve and protect to the fullest possible extent established and potential uses, for all purposes, of the waters of the nation's rivers.

That congress limit the authorization and construction of navigation works and improvements to those which can be operated consistently with the fullest use of the waters for all purposes.

That division of water between states be made by interstate compact, or thru the application of the principle of "equitable apportionment" at the hands of the United States Supreme court.

Would Limit Congress.

That congress should not use the commerce clause as authority to limit water uses as established by the states.

That every regional authority plan be examined with care because of serious and obvious social and political problems involved.

That all public or private hydropower companies participate in regional power pools to realize maximum benefits in combination with other sources of power. On this basis all government by-product power should be sold as such, at the point of production.

EXPECT PULLMAN TRUST VERDICT MESSAGE TODAY

Stockholders of Pullman, Inc., are expected to be notified today of the company's decision whether to appeal a government anti-trust decree or accept a court order to separate the two principal divisions of the business.

Today is the deadline for an appeal to the United States Supreme court from a May 8 decision of a Philadelphia court based on litigation pending four years. Unless an appeal is filed, the company has 90 days in which to present a detailed plan for separation of its sleeping car and railway equipment manufacturing businesses.

Rail Carloadings Gain 1.9 Per Cent for Week

Washington, D. C., July 7 (AP).—The Association of American Railroads reported today that 897,800 cars of revenue freight were loaded during the week ended last Saturday, an increase of 16,533 cars, or 1.9 per cent, compared with the preceding week, and an increase of 45,718 cars, or 5.4 per cent, above a year ago.

Asks End of Deficit Financing as Way to Monetary Stability

The United States should lead the way toward world monetary stability by abandoning the policy of deficit financing, the Chicago Association of Commerce said yesterday in urging restoration of a satisfactory gold standard to encourage international trade.

"Stability of the dollar will require abandonment of policies which are designed to encourage deficit financing, repeal of the authority to issue greenbacks [held by President Roosevelt], and prohibition upon exercise of executive power which would weaken the currency standard established by congress," the association said.

Urges Use of Present Facilities.

An international agency, such as that being studied at the world conference in Bretton Woods, N. H., may prove desirable in stabilizing currencies, the association said, suggesting the utilization of existing machinery.

"It is of the highest importance, however, to insist upon proper limitations of power, sufficient national freedom of action in monetary policy, and adequate safeguards in credit extensions," the association cautioned.

The suggestion was made that definite exchange rates be established between the dollar and the British pound, because of the importance of these currencies in world trade, with later adjustments for other countries' monetary units.

Agrees with National Group.

Announcing its views on the gold standard are in line with a declaration of policy being considered by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, the association said:

"The gold standard is the only international monetary standard which has commanded any general acceptance. The restoration and maintenance of a satisfactory standard are dependent upon the development of confidence, the balancing of public budgets, and the ultimate removal of restraints upon foreign exchange."

'44 Furniture Output at '43 Level Foretold

Furniture production in 1944 will approximate that of 1943 despite the new lumber controls to become effective Aug. 1, Henry A. Dinegar, deputy director of the war production board's consumers durable goods division, said yesterday. He addressed a meeting in the American Furniture Mart of the National Retail Furniture association in conjunction with the midsumer home furnishings markets.

Dinegar said that altho certain grades and sizes of softwoods are particularly critical because of demands upon them in the container and shipping program, restrictions on softwoods are likely to have little effect on the furniture industry except on the west coast.

Hardwood Use Large.

He said the industry normally uses 80 to 85 per cent hardwoods, and that the forthcoming hardwood directive and the directives already issued on west coast lumber, including western pine, southern pine, cypress, and California redwood, are no more restrictive than is necessary to accomplish clearly defined objectives.

"I believe I am safe in saying that the effect of the directives will be much less severe than you have been led to believe and will not be discriminatory or unduly detrimental to the operations of the furniture industry," he said.

Warns of Socialism.

J. T. Meek, executive secretary of the Illinois Federation of Retail Associations, warned that unless retailers assume a more aggressive attitude in public affairs their survival as the chief distributive medium would remain in doubt, and a socialistic state may be substituted.

"The next five years will probably show whether or not retailing as we know it today will survive," he said. "We must preserve our thousands of small enterprises, if not for their own sake, for the sake of the system of private enterprise they represent."

BELL AIRCRAFT SET FOR OUTPUT OF KING COBRAS

Buffalo, N. Y., July 7 (AP).—When the Bell Aircraft corporation starts its 10th year of operation Monday, the anniversary will serve as an approximate milestone marking a production changeover from the P-39 Airacobra to the new high altitude P-63 King Cobra fighter. The last of the Airacobras, the first fighter plane to carry a .37 milimeter cannon shooting thru a hollow propeller shaft, will roll off the assembly line in a week or two, the company disclosed today. It has been the company's principal product since 1939. More than 7,500 have been produced.

People and Events

The WPB yesterday announced the resignation of William A. Murphy as director of the division of administrative services. C. Sterry Long, Pontiac, Ill., will succeed him. Murphy has accepted a position with Griffenhagen and Associate, Chicago. Long has been with WPB since 1941 as administrative officer of the steel division.

Storrs J. Case has been appointed advertising manager of Plymouth division of Chrysler corporation. He had been on the staff of A. Van Der Zee, Chrysler vice president.

The Traffic Club of Chicago and the Mid-West Shippers Advisory board will hold a joint luncheon Thursday in the Palmer House. John P. Keeler, president of the National Industrial Traffic league and assistant general traffic manager of the Koppers company, Pittsburgh, Pa., will be the speaker.

STEEL OUTPUT SLUMP BRINGS PLEA FOR BOOST

Washington, D. C., July 7 (AP).—An emergency in steel production, with output down to 94.3 per cent of capacity, was reported by the WPB today at a meeting with the steel industry advisory committee.

Charles E. Wilson, WPB executive vice chairman, informed the industry leaders that production must be boosted "if the expanding needs of the armed services are to be met."

Lt. Gen. Brehon Somervell, head of the army service forces, and other military and maritime officials joined in the plea.

Benjamin F. Fairless, president of United States Steel corporation, ascribed the production deficit almost wholly to a labor shortage. Fairless and other steel company spokesmen estimated that 50,000 workers were needed in the steel mills, and asked more government help in making up the man power deficit.

Several key military programs which have been stepped up in recent weeks, some as a result of invasion experience, were named by Gen. Somervell and Vice Adm. Samuel Robinson as being threatened by the production lag. They included heavy trucks, tanks, naval and merchant ships, heavy artillery, ammunition, and bombs.

NATION'S INCOME UP 12 PER CENT TO 62 BILLIONS

Washington, D. C., July 7 (AP).—National income in the first five months of 1944 totaled 62 billion 181 million dollars, 12 per cent greater than in the corresponding period last year, the commerce department reported today.

Income payments to individuals in May aggregated 12 billion 277 million, compared with 12 billion 493 million in April, and 11 billion 252 million in May, 1943.

THEATER OF AIR TO PLAY TONIGHT IN GRANT PARK

First Half of Two Hour Show to Be on W-G-N.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

When the Chicago Theater of the Air presents an original musical-dramatic production based on "A Midsummer Night's Dream" from the Grant park bandshell tonight, vocal soloists will be heard altho Mendelssohn's incidental music for the fantasy was written for instruments only. Besides the music Mendelssohn wrote for Shakespeare's play, other works by the composer and the Polonaise from Thomas' "Mignon" will be introduced in giving a new treatment to the drama.

"A Midsummer Night's Dream" will be broadcast over W-G-N, WGNB, and Mutual during the first hour—from 8 to 9 p. m.—of tonight's program of entertainment. After an intermission another hour of nonbroadcast music and drama will be presented, featuring additional Mendelssohn works and dramatic bits from his life story.

Col. McCormick to Speak.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will address the radio audience. THE TRIBUNE and W-G-N, in coöperation with the Chicago park district, are presenting these productions each Saturday night thruout the summer.

The musical setting will be provided by the W-G-N orchestra and chorus, directed by Henry Weber. The vocal soloists will be Attilio Baggiore, tenor, and Virginia Haskins, soprano. A cast of leading Chicago actors will recreate highlights of Shakespeare's drama and excerpts from Mendelssohn's life.

SETS RESTAURANT PRICE CASES.

Federal Judge Philip L. Sullivan yesterday set Aug. 10 for hearing on an injunction sought by the office of price administration against the operators of Howell's restaurant, 4756 Madison st., and the Lakeford restaurant, 300 N. Pulaski rd., for alleged violation of OPA price ceilings.

NEGRO FESTIVAL CROWD TO HEAR CHORUS OF 1,500

Celebrities of opera, screen, concert stage and radio are starring in the 5th annual American Negro Music festival at 8 p. m. today in White Sox ball park—an event which will bring together in song massed choirs of nearly 1,500 voices.

Singing stars include Portia White, Nova Scotia, contralto; Richard Bonelli, Metropolitan opera baritone; Lillian Evanti, coloratura soprano; and the Southernaires, a radio quarter. Other participants will be Pat O'Brien of the movies, Maurice Rocco, swing pianist, W. C. Handy, "father of the blues," Eddie South, violinist; and Maj. George Spencer Roberts, commander of the Negro 99th pursuit squadron.

Men Overseas to Hear.

J. Wesley Jones will direct a Chicago chorus of more than 1,000 voices. Dr. Mack Evans will conduct the University of Chicago choir of 85 voices, and a Great Lakes choir of 200 will sing as a unit and also join in events including all three singing groups. Langston Hughes, Negro poet, will be commentator on the program, which is to be shortwaved to men overseas.

The American Negro Music festival was originated in 1940 by W. Louis Davis, south side business executive, who saw it as a program of inter-racial good will that would bring top artists to the public at prices within reach of every one.

For Army and Navy Relief.

Proceeds this year will go to army and navy relief. Tonight's event ends the July 3-8 period proclaimed by Mayor Kelly as American Negro music appreciation week.

An innovation this year will be the presentation of three winners in a midwestern contest conducted by the festival and Negro newspapers in Illinois, Indiana, Missouri, Ohio, Michigan and Kentucky as a means of presenting unknown Negro talent to the public.

MORE CHANCES SEEN FOR NEGRO AT END OF WAR

The Negro workers will remain in a larger number of industries and occupations than ever before after the war, Robert C. Weaver, director of Mayor Kelly's committee on race relations, said yesterday at the University of Chicago. Discussing "The Negro and Post-War Employment," the speaker addressed the university's fourth annual conference for teachers of social science.

Weaver asserted that the Negro's occupational advances and his expanding diversification of employment offer a framework for his wider integration in the industries of the nation. "The extent to which these gains will persist," he said, "will be determined by the general level of employment and the rate and timing of technological changes."

The speaker envisioned the prospect of a disproportionately large number of Negroes without jobs if the war is followed by a period of serious long run unemployment. Unlike Negroes at the close of World War I., Weaver added, however, the Negro of today is a participating member in most labor organizations and is knocking at the doors of those unions which exclude him.

U.S. AID ROWS TO BUOY AND PINS SUMMONS ON IT

In an unusual procedure, Joseph Tobin, chief deputy United States marshal, yesterday rowed out to the buoy marking the sinking of the motorship, Material Service, near Calumet harbor, and attached a court summons order in a special waterproof container. The motorship foundered eight years ago with the loss of 15 crew members. The court summons was attached in accordance with a libel action filed in the federal court under admiralty law, in behalf of the owners of $90,000 mortgage against the motorship, asking for a court sale of the boat.

GARDEN MUSIC FETE TONIGHT TO ATTRACT 3,000

More than 3,000 persons are expected to attend the first of a series of three concerts under the stars to be held tonight at 7:30 o'clock in the International Friendship Gardens, 2 miles east of Michigan City.

The festival tonight is a preliminary event of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S 15th annual music festival, in Soldiers' field on Saturday night, August 19. Miss Florence Smith, director of the Michigan City program, says that more than a score of northern Indiana and southern Michigan towns and cities are sending entries to the various festival contests to be conducted this afternoon in connection with the program tonight.

Ganz to Be Soloist.

Rudolph Ganz, well known pianist, will be guest soloist tonight. He will be introduced by Philip Maxwell, director of THE TRIBUNE'S festival, who will be master-of-ceremonies. Edith Mason, opera star, will be one of the vocal and choral judges and will be presented to the audience.

Other judges announced by Miss Smith are Howard Wills, vocal and choral; Dr. Ganz and Albert Cerny, instrumentalists; Mrs. Geraldine Ellis Roy, fretted instrument group; Mrs. Myrtle Smith, baton twirlers; Palmer Myron, bands, and Harold Olsen, accordion players and groups.

Rhumba and Ballet Contest.

A feature of the entertainment will be a contest to decide which is the most popular—rhumba or ballet. The participants will be Jean Spiers, in the rhumba, and Billie Kuhn, in the ballet. Applause of the audience will be the deciding factor.

Following the concert tonight, the Michigan City festival committee and guests will be entertained in the home of the Otto Zieglers, near the Friendship Gardens.

GIRL, 3, DIES OF BURNS.

Jessica Lee, 3, died yesterday in County hospital of burns suffered Thursday when her clothes caught fire as she and her brother, Paul, 5, were playing with matches in their home at 536 E. 38th st.

SECRET 'SWEETHEART' WAGE DEALS BANNED BY MOVIE OPERATORS

A contract standardizing the pay of Chicago motion picture operators and designed to eliminate the secret "sweetheart" deals that in the past caused bloody strife in the union was signed with the principal exhibitors early yesterday.

Theaters are classified according to the number of seats and the admission price and a scale set up for each class. Every member of the Chicago Moving Picture Operators union is to have a copy. "In the past," said Atty. Dan Carmell, who drew up the contract, "none of the rank and file knew the terms on which union officials dealt with exhibitors and the secret bargaining was as bad for employers. The permit system, which union heads manipulated for their own benefit, is abolished."

The local was represented by its newly elected business agent, E. J. Atkinson, who is credited by his associates with having fought racketeers since the regime of Tommy Maloy, czar of the operators, who was murdered 10 years ago.

"Our organization," said Atkinson, "has no more room for mobsters."

HE NEVER OWES TAXES; HOUSE IS IN JOLIET STREET

Joliet city authorities were perplexed yesterday by the case of Herman Metz of 521 N. Bluff st., in Joliet, who owns a house built in the center of what should be Stone st., between Bluff st. and Broadway, but who pays no property tax since the location is city property and not listed on the tax books. The case was revealed when Frank Ambrose of 511 N. Bluff st. complained to police that Metz had built a fence around his home, blocking the sidewalk. Harry Sampson, city engineer, who surveyed the property, said the Metz home was built on a street that was charted to run thru to the waterway, but didn't.

SURE WAY TO BE HAPPY THO WED: ASK QUESTIONS!

More science and less emotion in connection with marriage proposals is the solution to the problem of the mounting divorce rate, according to the National Institute of Family Relations, 30 E. Washington st. The institute is introducing the use of a new psychological test, called the marriage personality appraisal, to measure traits of personality that will insure a happy marriage.

A glance at the list of 190 questions reveals there are a lot more important answers to be considered than the ones to such age old queries as, "Do you love me?" and "Will you marry me?"

Replies Gauge Maturity.

The yesses and noes to such questions as: "Do you pick out the most comfortable chair in the room for yourself?" "Do you always want your life to run smoothly?" and "When you drive an automobile do you get angry at other drivers who get in your way?" will reveal the emotional maturity of your sweetheart.

If you want to determine beforehand whether or not you will face mother-in-law trouble, quiz your prospective mate on questions 75 to 91. And if you want to find out who should handle the money, get his answer to "Do you feel money can compensate for lack of affection?" and "Is your sales resistance usually overcome by emotional appeals?"

Answers Reveal Traits.

If you want to know whether he is the strong silent type or whether she is a clinging vine, get the answers to these questions: "Do you dislike being told you should do things?" "Do you think of a family as a kingdom in which one of the parents rule?" "Do you believe that women should be as much like men as possible?" "Do you interfere with the business of other people?"

It may sound confusing to the general public, but trained marriage counselors can measure such traits as introversion, extroversion, sociability, self sufficiency or dependence, radicalness or conservatism, infantile fixations, neurotic tendencies, health, habits, and sex, by tabulating the answers to the questions, Leonard Manning Ware, executive director of the institute, contends.

Romance vs. Happiness.

The test, which was compiled by Ware, reveals the special type of instruction and counseling a client needs to receive suitable preparation for romance and marriage. He admits his approach may seem lacking in romance, but contends chances for a happy marriage are increased.

The institute, which is a nonprofit organization sponsored by a group of 27 public spirited educators, public officials, and professional persons, who compose its advisory council, maintains that marital disharmony and broken homes are preventable or curable by means of proper education and instruction. Its services, which are educational, psychological and sociological, are available to those who have not found happiness in marriage as well as those who contemplate the step.
